'No Trespass' Signs Bottle Black Army, 'Save' Capital

War Games Invaders And Defenders Stop In a Pocket of Farms; Start Again Today

By Marshall Andrews
A Staff Correspondent.

Manassas, Va., Aug. 14.—Prince William County farmers halted today's thrust at Washington by an invading Black army just when it had developed what officers called "a very interesting situation."

After fighting off aggressive Black cavalry, infantry and combat cars all morning, the defending Blue found the right flank of their Twenty-eighth Division rolled up just before noon by two columns of tanks which struck them on the south of the Gainesville-Manassas road. While the tanks bored on to within 2½ miles of Corps headquarters here, the Twenty-ninth Division, lying about Gainesville was started toward the crumpled flank to cut off the tanks in turn.

Maneuvers Impossible

With the battle in that critical stage, maneuvering became impossible. The troops had marched and fought into a corner of the maneuver area where farmers, because of standing crops or remembering the encampment of 1904, had declined to lease their farms for the war games.

At noon, then, the battle was called off, attacking and defending troops withdrawn and preparations made to start again on a new front with a new alignment of armies.

Horse cavalry, old as armies themselves, brightened its reputation here today, along with the fast-moving, hard-hitting motorized units in the Black force. On the other side, Maj. Gen. Edward Martin, commanding the twenty-eighth, used the principle on which the Black army was organized to form a little force within his own division which time and again stopped Black assaults in their tracks.

Raid Behind Blue Lines

Early in the action, a squadron of the Third Cavalry from Fort Myer, Va., pushed through Buckhall Church, overran a Blue outpost, split into two smaller bodies and had a high time of it raiding behind the Blue lines. One of these bodies pushed to within 1½ miles of corps headquarters, capturing the Fifty-sixth Infantry Brigade command post on Signal Hill and very nearly gathering in Brig. Gen. Charles B. Smathers before it was stopped by Gen. Martin's "flying battalion."

Organized to counter, in part, the high mobility of the entire Black division, this battalion was made up of infantry and machine gun units from many regiments and placed under command of Maj. Linwood W. McClure, of Norristown, Pa. Acting as a division reserve under Gen. Martin's immediate control, it was loaded into 30 of the fastest trucks in the division and sent at top speed to threatened points.

This battalion employed tactics all its own and proved them effective time and time again. Rushed to a

Dies Investigators Attend Bridges Deportation Quiz

San Francisco, Aug. 14 (AP).—John L. Leech, former Communist and a witness in the Harry Bridges deportation hearing, revealed today two investigators for the Dies Congressional Committee on Un-American Activities have been attending the hearing.

Leech, undergoing extensive cross-examination after his earlier testimony that Bridges was a member of the Communist Party, denied the Dies committee investigators had told him what to say.

The former Los Angeles house painter said he gave one of the investigators, whom he named as George Hurley, an affidavit concerning Bridges, C. I. O. West Coast leader, several months ago at Portland, Oreg.

Brakeman Killed, Crushed by Cars In Alexandria Yard

Tom Schults, 56, of the 100 block of Linden avenue, Alexandria, Va., was killed instantly last night when he was crushed between an oil burning switcher and a string of freight cars in the Duke street yards at Alexandria. He was a brakeman.

Witnesses said the switcher had just placed two refrigerator cars on a track and had backed off with ten cars when others rolled back and truck the train. The engineer, E. S. Toombs, of 1115 Duke street, leaped to safety.

Death Toll Rises to 23 as Bodies Of Mother and Daughter Are Found; 2 Injured Die in Nevada Hospital

By the Associated Press

Reno, Nov. 14.—Deaths mounted to 23 today in the wreck of the crack streamline train, City of San Francisco, as police rushed a general round-up of suspicious railroad yard characters in quest of the mass murderer blamed for Saturday's tragedy.

Two men were questioned in jails of two States as rescue crews found the bodies of two women and a man in the twisted wreckage. Another died in an Elko hospital of injuries.

Latest victims recovered from the wreckage were Mrs. Henry P. Vaux, of Port Ledge, Rosemont, Pa., and her daughter, Miss Susan M. Vaux. Their bodies were found late today in their demolished drawing room.

Albert Johnson, Chicago, at first reported by the Southern Pacific Co. to have perished in the wreck, was found tonight to be alive.

Get Out or Die, Rogge Told in La. Inquiry

Assistant to Murphy Determined to Push Probe to Deepest Corner

By the United Press.

New Orleans, Aug. 14.—Federal Bureau of Investigation agents tonight sought the author of two notes—one signed "The Bullet Gang"—who threatened Assistant United States Attorney General O. John Rogge with death unless he abandoned his investigation of the Louisiana political scandals and left before Wednesday.

Rogge, angered by these forthright orders to fold up his inquiries, announced his determination to delve into the farthest corners of the State political machine.

When Rogge opened one of the unsigned letters, two .38 calibre bullets tumbled from the envelope. That note, written in black pencil on cheap white paper, said:

"You will die before Wednesday if you don't get out of this city. We just paid $18,000 for your death. You must die. You are a damn crook and the underworld men have been on your trail for three weeks. You are in a town now where you will be gotten soon."

The other note warned him not to investigate further into the acquittal of Abe Shushan, former lieutenant of Huey P. Long, of income tax evasion charges. For a week or more, Rogge had investigated charges of jury tampering in Shushan's acquittal in October, 1935.

The second note, written in red pencil, said:

"If you know what's good for you, you and your mincemeat eaters will lay off that Shushan jury tampering case. Who do you think you are, anyway, the big bad wolf? Better let well enough alone if you know what's good for you."

The letters apparently were written by the same person. Both were postmarked in New Orleans today.

Inquiry Begun On Film Labor, Taxes, Trusts

Major Executives and Companies Named; U.S. To Probe Racketeering

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Aug. 14.—A Federal investigation of the motion picture industry for possible income tax evasions, restraint of trade and labor racketeering is under way.

"Letters of authority" from United States Attorney General Murphy were filed in Federal court by a special assistant, Charles H. Carr. Carr said he would spend the next 30 days investigating, with grand jury indictments in view.

Specific objectives mentioned in the letter of authority include:

A reported $100,000 payoff by film producers to William Bioff, representative of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes.

The merger which resulted in the present Twentieth Century-Fox organization, including the activities of its executives, Joseph M. Schenck, Darryl F. Zanuck, William Goetz and William Dover.

Possible conspiracy between producers and labor leaders to stifle union activities.

Possible restraint of trade through block booking or other methods.

Possible income tax evasions by producers, stars and others in the higher salary group.

Included also was a statement by Murphy that "the Government is informed these . . . have violated section 1 and 2 of the Sherman anti-trust act.

He named the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors Association, of which Will H. Hays is president; the Association of Motion Picture Producers, which Schenck heads, and Twentieth Century Fox, Loews, Inc. (which controls Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer), Warner Brothers, Columbia, Irving Trust Co., New York (trustee in bankruptcy for Radio-Keith-Orpheum), Universal and United Artists.

2 Concerts and a Wedding (His Own) on Conductor's Program

Between the two Watergate concerts that Guy Fraser Harrison is to conduct on Wednesday and Sunday, the 44-year-old conductor of the Rochester Civic Orchestra will enter his third adventure in matrimony.

Harrison filed an application in the District Court yesterday for a license to marry Miss Mary Cecile Becker, 23, of St. Paul, Minn. Harrison, at the Raleigh Hotel last night, was unwilling to talk about his bride or his plans, merely saying they expected to be married on Friday or Saturday. Judge Robert E. Mattingly is to perform the ceremony.

HARRISON

CECILE

Harrison stated on the application that he had been married and divorced twice before. Miss Becker attended Sunday night's concert with her fiance, and expects to be present on Wednesday and next Sunday as well. "I'll know the reason why if she doesn't," said Harrison yesterday.

Thanksgiving Advanced by Roosevelt

To Come Week Earlier This Year And on Second Thursday Hereafter

(Football World Upset, Page 16.)

By the United Press.

Campobello, N. S., Aug. 14.—President Roosevelt announced today that this year he will advance the date for observance of Thanksgiving Day to November 23, instead of the traditional last Thursday of November, which is November 30.

The change, he said, was to meet requests that holidays be spaced more evenly during the last six months of the year.

Henceforth, after the coming Thanksgiving, the holiday will be observed on the second Thursday of November.

For the last six years, Mr. Roosevelt said, he has received a great many requests for such action on the ground that the holiday falls too close to Christmas and with too long an interval after Labor Day. Most of these requests, he added, were made by retailers and other businessmen.

The President said he found Thanksgiving was the only national holiday not set by Federal law, although a few States have the date fixed by statute.

Entertains Aboard Cruiser

There is nothing sacred about the customary date, he said, observing that it was not until after the Civil War that the last Thursday in November became generally accepted.

Mr. Roosevelt paused here at the summer home of his mother for a change from his naval cruiser fishing and relaxation trip. He visited briefly with his son, Franklin, jr., his daughter-in-law, the former Ethel duPont, and his grandson, Franklin 3d.

After a press conference, Mr. Roosevelt was host at tea aboard the cruiser Tuscaloosa to a score of old Campobello neighbors.

The President planned to sail around Cape Sable in time to make Halifax by tomorrow night.

His future plans, he said, depend upon wind, weather and fog, but he may cruise off Newfoundland, Labrador, Prince Edward Island and Cape Breton before returning to Washington about August 23 or 24.

Lincoln Fixed the Date

The custom of observing Thanksgiving Day on the fourth Thursday in November was originated by Abraham Lincoln, who issued the proclamation in 1864. His assassination almost caused the plan to fail the following year, but President Johnson was prevailed upon to make the proclamation and it has been made for the same day each year since that time.

The first Presidential proclamation of Thanksgiving Day was by President Washington in 1789. He chose November 26. For some years then the occasion was unobserved except by State governments.

In 1845 a paragrapher reported that "the President (James K. Polk) had some friends to dinner" and that "this new idea of a Thanksgiving in Washington . . . gave such general satisfaction as to lead to the

Hopkins to Go West With Roosevelt, His Friends Say

By International News Service

Secretary of Commerce Hopkins is to accompany President Roosevelt on his trip to the West Coast in early October, intimates of the Secretary declared yesterday.

Hopkins has been convalescing from an illness since last winter, and for the last two weeks has been resting on a Maryland farm, in preparation for the strain of the cross-country trip, it was said. He plans to remain on the farm until near the time for the journey.

The Secretary, though absent from his desk nearly continuously for several months, has taken part in the Administration's attempted appeasement of business and may deliver some speeches during the trip, one of his advisers said. The President thus far has announced he will himself make two speeches on the transcontinental tour.

Glen Echo Mayor, U. S. Worker, Quits

Henry T. McCuen last night resigned as mayor of Glen Echo to retain his position as superintendent of the Friendship postoffice.

He said his resignation was caused by the intent of the Hatch act, which prohibits Government employes from holding local office.

Welles Asks Mexican Oil Settlement

Prompt Payment To U. S. Firms for Property Seized Urged in Statement

By Robert C. Albright

The State Department yesterday warned Mexico it will be held accountable for "prompt, adequate and effective compensation" for expropriated American oil properties regardless of whether pending independent negotiations for settlement fail.

In a statement by Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles, the department admonished Mexico that a protracted dispute will dislocate relations and jeopardize the maintenance of a friendly understanding between the two nations.

The public statement, carrying the approval of Secretary of State Hull, also advised the American oil companies they would be expected to consider all constructive proposals to reach a fair settlement.

Compromise Rejected

Welles' comment followed rejection last week by Mexico and the oil companies of a compromise plan put forward informally by the Government, and a resultant serious impasse in negotiations.

Before issuing the statement, Welles conferred separately with Dr. Francisco Castillo Najero, Mexican Ambassador, and Donald R. Richberg, counsel for the oil companies. Najera said he thought the way toward settlement remained open. Richberg declined public comment, pending talks with company executives.

Welles, at his press conference, expressed hope for an equitable settlement. State Department officials said there was not the slightest discrepancy in the positions taken by Welles, Hull and the President toward the oil controversy. The President has been advised and has approved in advance all steps taken by the Government, it was said.

"A continuance of the dispute not only will dislocate still further beneficial commercial relations between Mexico and the United States, with great economic losses to both countries," said Welles' statement, "but more important still, it will constitute a material barrier to the maintenance of that close and friendly understanding between Mexico and the United States which both governments regard as in the best interests of the two peoples.

Points to Obligation

"The discontinuance of the present discussions can of course in no sense relieve the Mexican government of its obligations to make prompt, adequate and effective compensation for the petroleum properties which have been taken, if the expropriation is to be regarded as valid.

"At the same time, however, this Government expects that its own citizens with direct interest in this controversy will give the most ample and attentive consideration to all constructive proposals that are advanced to overcome the difficulties now standing in the way of a fair settlement of the controversy which exists. In the rapid, fair and equitable solution of this contro-

American Woman Reported Slapped By Japanese

Tientsin, China, (Tuesday), Aug. 15 (AP).—A 60-year-old American woman, Mrs. F. M. Richard, was reported today to have been slapped and detained by Japanese sentries at barriers to the blockaded British concession.

The incident was said by reliable sources to have occurred late Monday as Mrs. Richard attempted to bring vegetables and fruit into the concession for the canning business she operates and in which she does the work herself.

One report said a sentry held the woman while a Japanese officer slapped her.

Air Corps Awaits Tragedy Report

Langley Field, Va., Aug. 14 (AP).—Army Air Corps officials awaited today a report from a board of inquiry in the crackup of a twin-motored bombing plane that took the lives of nine men last Friday.

The board continued its inquiry as arrangements were made for sending the bodies of eight of the victims to widely separated parts of the country for burial.

Hundreds overflowed the Langley Field Chapel yesterday as chaplain Charles I. Carpenter conducted simple funeral services for the two officers and seven enlisted men who died as the plane crashed

Artist Returns Stolen Master, 'Glorified'

Russian Tells Police He Took $200,000 Watteau From Louvre to Restore It to Its Old Splendor; Painting Altered

By the Associated Press

Paris, Aug. 4.—A young Russian artist today restored the world-famed Watteau painting, "L'Indifferent," which he told startled police he took from the Louvre "only so that I could restore it to its original glory."

Despite changes which the 25-year-old Serge Bogousslavsky had made in the $200,000 painting of a young seventeenth century cavalier, officials of the French National Museums unhesitatingly pronounced the tiny picture genuine.

The 10 by 8 inch portrait was stolen June 11.

Bogousslavsky, a slim youth, unshaven and poorly dressed, told police he had long been "disgusted with the way museum officials touched up (restored) great masterpieces."

"Watteau has always been my favorite master and 'L'Indifferent' my favorite painting," he said, "I could not stand to see it in that

Policeman Killed In Skid; Fishing Party Is Wrecked

A Washington man was fatally injured, a woman hurt critically and two other members of a party suffered lesser injuries in an auto accident on their way home from a fishing trip yesterday.

Earlier in the day, a District policeman was killed when his motorcycle skidded as he answered a radio assignment. His death was the fifty-fourth this year in District traffic.

Marcus Spanus, 45, of 919 Twenty-second street northwest, a waiter at the Hotel Washington, was the victim who died from injuries when a car in which he was a passenger careened from the road and overturned near Lyons Creek in Anne Arundel County, Md.

Motorcycle Policema Raymond E. Grant, 29, was the other victim. Responding to a radio call early yesterday, his motorcycle skidded rounding a curve on Loughborough road northwest. He died of a skull fracture in Georgetown Hospital.

Spanus was a member of a fishing party returning from North Beach. Injured in the crash were Martin Laue, 52, driver of the car; his wife, Mrs. Jennie Laue, 50, and Samuel Morris, 37, of 1015 N street northwest. Laue is a bartender at the Hotel Washington. Morris is a waiter. The two men suffered minor contusions and lacerations. Mrs. Laue was reported in a critical

Frugal Autoist Prefers Fines To Parking Lot

Economist Tells Court Her System Costs Less Than $1 a Week

When constabulary duties must be done on the illegally parked car of Miss Constance A. Kiehel, 38, an associate economic analyst for the Social Security Board, the policeman's lot can be a happy one.

Miss Kiehel likes tickets. She has figured it all out. It's cheaper to go to court and pay the fines than park on a commercial lot. It is a simple matter of mathematics to the economist.

Her system costs less than $1 a week, she told Judge Edward M Curran in the presence of a courtroom of parking-perplexed spectators and three outraged policemen who brought her up.

The policemen said they had stuck four tickets on the economist's car in the last few months.

The court wanted to know how many parking tickets she had paid. "Oh, I don't know. Quite a few. It's much cheaper, though, than paying to park on a lot. They tear your car up," she said.

$66 in Parking Fines

It was shown that over a two-year period she had paid $66 for parking on the streets.

Replied Miss Kiehel: "It's still cheaper than parking on a lot. "Besides," she said, "I've now hired a man to drive my car around and around the block until the 9:30 o'clock deadline to park on the street."

She was ordered to pay $3 on each of the tickets. Her total fines leaped to $78 for the two-year parking.

Adrian Weds Janet Gaynor; On Honeymoon to Mexico City

By the Associated Press

Yuma, Ariz., Aug. 14.—Janet Gaynor, auburn-haired film star, and Gilbert Adrian, studio fashion designer, were married today by Justice of the Peace Ed M. Winn.

The couple arrived from Los Angeles by automobile. Witnesses at the ceremony, performed in a hotel, were Clifford Mogal, Miss Gaynor's chauffeur, and Larry Barbier, assistant publicity director at the studios where Adrian heads the costume department.

ADRIAN

JANET

The bride gave her age as 30, five years younger than Adrian.

Miss Gaynor's first marriage to Lydell Peck, of Oakland, Calif., ended in a 1934 divorce. Adrian has not been married before.

Hitler Seeks Munich Pact For Danzig, British Hear

London Advised Rome and Berlin Want Parley to Settle All Issues

Polish Warning

Parley Reported Sought

By the Associated Press

London, Aug. 14.—Reports of peace moves in Rome and Berlin were interpreted by informed London quarters tonight as an attempt to lead Great Britain and France back to the policy of Munich.

The same four powers at Munich September 30 decided the dismemberment of Czecho-Slovakia. The latest proposals would be for disposition of the German-Polish dispute over the Free City of Danzig.

These reports included:

Advices from Rome, attributed to Italian sources not connected with the government, Italy and Germany were willing to meet Britain and France in a conference to discuss settlement of the Danzig problem as well as Italy's demands for French colonial concessions.

Hitler, Burckhardt Confer

Official confirmation from Berlin that Fuehrer Hitler had conferred over the week-end with Dr. Carl J. Burckhardt, League of Nations high commissioner in Danzg, on a plan for negotiation of the dispute.

British officials refused to comment on either of the reports, other than to say they had been informed by Burckhardt that Hitler had invited him to Berchtesgaden. A detailed report from Burckhardt was expected, and Berlin reported he would soon visit London.

Diplomatic circles, however, were quick to point out the similarity of the apparent bid for a four-power conference to the events which led to the Munich conference.

Poland's Consent Wanted

They recalled that there had been the same intense propaganda campaign in Germany and Italy and the same heavy troop movements—and that the same four powers were mentioned as possible participants.

The question uppermost in the minds of London diplomats was whether Britain would enter into a conference on the Danzig question. Official circles have maintained there could be no settlement without Poland's consent and that Britain would put no pressure on her.

If the government adhered to that policy, it would be difficult to take part in a conference in which Poland was not included.

Reports to Britain

As an official of the League, Burckhardt is responsible to the committee of three for Danzig—Britain, France and Sweden—and must report his moves to Britain, since she acts as clearing house of information for the committee.

Diplomatic sources said they could see little difference between Hitler's "final" demands, which were rejected by Poland last spring, and the new plan, which was said to include annexation of Danzig by Germany and guarantee of a passage across the Polish corridor.

Some quarters were doubtful Poland would enter into any negotiations with Germany. Polish leaders have declared on numerous occasions they would not consent to incorporation of Danzig into Germany under any circumstances.

If Poland should refuse to negotiate, the possibility of an extremely grave situation was foreseen.

Diplomats said Hitler might use Poland's refusal as a pretext for marching into Danzig—and place

FRANKLYN VS. FRANKLIN.

Lately that grizzled Voltaire of the White House, the Honorable Charlie Michelson, has seemed a little tired. His fabulous typewriter Excalibur, which found a vulnerable spot in Herbert Hoover's starched collar in 1932, is coughing on three cylinders; his arsenic is diluted, his flame-thrower flickers and wavers.

—Franklyn & Charlie . . . miracle men?

The Honorable Charlie has found his talents less suited to defense than to the dashing attack of 1932. It was easier to taunt Hoover with the collapse of GOP prosperity than to defend the most luxuriant of tree belts, the most bustling of WPA shovelers.

It's easier to sling dead cats than daisies.

Would Hoover have been beaten, would Roosevelt have been elected, without Michelson, the miracle man? I defy the lightning and assert Yes, probably. Will it be the Michelson magic that saves Roosevelt in '40? If a competent jury of White House observers and spokesmen rules in the affirmative, when the returns are in, I'll roll Mr. Michelson from Alexandria to Mount Vernon in a wheelbarrow, on November 11, 1940.

* * * *

"—Charlie was a gallant attacker"

I used to marvel at the legend of the Michelson magic. Could one man's enchanted prose overthrow a President, elect another?

When I was a cub reporter I read Charlie Michelson's competent political yarns in the old morning World. But was there more? Had I overlooked a glint of Joseph Conrad, the sheen of Bernard Shaw, the lucid enchantment of Somerset Maugham?

* * * *

I concluded that I was just too dumb to recognize wizardry when I saw it . . . But now I am in a fresh quandary. If Franklin Roosevelt is unhorsed next year, will Franklyn Waltman be the witch doctor of 1940?

Now he plays the Michelson role of 1932; he's the gifted phrase maker of the attack, the Republican adjective-and-epithet expert, the little elf who writes opposition congressmen's speeches while they sleep.

* * * *

Franklyn Waltman is, if anything, a more vigorous literary fuselier than the Michelson of 1932. For one thing, he's almost 30 years younger, and he has it on Charlie by almost 100 pounds of brawn, stripped at the keyboard. I've known Franklyn to have four or five dead cats spinning through the air within two hours after a New Deal faux pas. He never leans on his shovel.

"—but the defense is harder"

Offhand I'd estimate that during the last 200 days he's supplied an average of two speeches or statements for each of the 190 Senators and Congressmen of the Republican minority. Some lucky statesmen get more, others less. From some of them he is said to have blanket authority to issue in their names any statement on any subject without consulting them. Some are egotists enough to write their own.

* * * *

The rumor is rife in the Capital's bistros and other salons that some of the G. O. P. spokesmen never read their Waltman speeches or statements, either before or after issuance. All this may be a baseless, unfair and vile canard. But there is undeniably certain homogeneity, a certain family resemblance, a robust re-echo, a baritone indignation and challenge in much of the G. O. P. eloquence which is not un-Waltmanesque.

* * * *

So to the same extent that 1932 was an epic struggle between Michelson and Hoover, 1940 may be Franklyn vs. Franklin. I want to be the first to hail the new wizard, the Leonardo of the GOP renaissance. If a competent jury of my peers rules, in executive session at the Press Club bar, when the 1940 returns are in, that Waltman did it, I'll roll him in a wheelbarrow from the House Office Building to the Senate Office Building. This is a shorter distance, but Waltman is a heftier miracle man.

Manufacturers Accused of War On Labor Act

La Follette Committee Charges Co-ordinated, Organized Movement

The Senate Civil Liberties Committee, in a special report yesterday, charged the National Association of Manufacturers "deliberately organized and co-ordinatad the efforts of employers and employers' associations in a planned Nation-wide campaign to nullify the administration of the national labor relations act."

The report charged the association, "financed by a small group of powerful corporations," has "flooded the country with biased propaganda directed against organizations of American workingmen and against social legislation adopted by Congress."

The report was signed by Senator La Follette (Progressive) of Wisconsin, and Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, comprising the committee.

The National Association of Manufacturers immediately called the investigation and report "examples of the assaults on business that have retarded recovery."

"The facts in the printed transcript of the La Follette-Thomas sub-committee's hearings are sufficient answer to the tissue of half-truths and innuendo now offered by the two Senators as the result of their two-year inquisition, and as justification for their further expenditure of public funds," said a statement by the association.

Senator Thomas, chairman of the Senate Education and Labor Committee, disclosed he will appoint a Democratic Senator as a third member of the Civil Liberties group in the next two or three days. The choice must be made from the eight other Democrats comprising the full labor committee. Thomas said further organization of the committee's work will await selection and a meeting with the third member.

Report Filed With Senate

Third part of a larger report on the "Labor Policies of Employers' Associations," the Thomas-La Follette charges against the National Association of Manufacturers, were filed with the secretary of the Senate.

The report declared propaganda, "for the most part unidentified" as coming from the National Association of Manufacturers, "is reiterated day after day through the means of every channel of public expression, in the press, over the radio, in schools, on billboards, by public speakers, by direct mail and in pay envelopes."

"Much of this propaganda," it said, "is intended to influence the public with reference to elections, and, officials of the association have boasted that its propaganda has influenced the political opinions of millions of citizens, and affected their choice of candidates for Federal offices."

The report called the association, in effect, "a vehicle for spending corporate funds to influence the opinion of the public in its selection of candidates for office" and questioned "whether such use of the resources of corporate enterprise does not contravene the well-established public policy of forbidding corporations to make contributions in connection with political elections."

It said less than 10 per cent of the association's 3,000 members largely financed its operations and, "a much smaller clique of not more than 60 in number, have supplied it with active leadership."

Through the N. A. M. "and its affiliated national network of employers associations in the National Industrial Council," the Senate committee charged, "this small group of powerful interests has organized the strategy for a national program of employer opposition to labor unions and to governmental action to improve conditions of labor."

Du Pont Largest Donor

The report said the association's budget reached $1,440,000 in 1937. It said the largest contributor in the 1933-37 period was E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., with $118,600, and listed General Motors Corporation as the second largest contributor in the same period, with $66,520.

Others listed as "substantial supporters" in the five-year period were the National Steel Corporation, $42,050; United States Steel Corporation, $41,450; Monsanto Chemical Co., $36,775; Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., $35,912; Chrysler Corporation, $35,400; Bethlehem Steel Corporation, $29,250; the Texas Corporation, $27,500; Borg-Warner Corporation, $27,141; Republic Steel Corporation, $24,650; Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., Inc., $22,000; Swift & Co., $21,150; Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, $20,600; Eastman Kodak Co., $20,216.

In reply, the statement of the National Association of Manufacturers declared "the sub-committee's own records demonstrates that there is no central control of the policies of the various industrial organizations comprising the National Industrial Council."

"If there is an identical position among manufacturers and their organizations it is because the attacks upon private enterprise are identical," said the N. A. C. "It would be strange indeed if American business did not oppose measures which it believes, from experience, are inimical to industry, and hence to the Nation's welfare."

Goodwill Cited

The association declared its public information program was designed to "stimulate community goodwill, to foster a more general understanding of business as the source of jobs and livelihoods; to promote sound recovery, and to combat smear campaigns against business." It said the right of any group to criticize proposed or enacted legislation "is one of the fundamental civil rights which the sub-committee asserts it is zealous to protect."

C. I. O. Maritime Union Chiefs Plan Organization Drive

Underwood & Underwood.

Leaders of eight C. I. O. maritime unions met yesterday at a meeting called by Joseph Curran, chairman of the C. I. O. maritime committee, to draft plans for a national organization drive and to prepare renewal of contracts with major steamship lines. Left to right—Bjarne Halling, Maritime Federation of the Pacific; William L. Standard, N. M. U. attorney; Walter Fisher, Marine Firemen, Oilers, Watertenders and Wipers of the Pacific; N. Hedley Stone, N. M. U. Great Lakes organizer; Lora Mermin, a secretary; John O'Donnell, Marine Cooks and Stewards of the Pacific; Samuel J. Hogan, president Marine Engineers Beneficial Association; Roy Pyle, Marine Division, American Communications Association; Joseph Curran, president, N. M. U. and chairman C. I. O. C.I.O. Indorses Plan for Single Seamen Union

Sailors on Both Coasts, Including A. F. L. Men, Would Be Welded

The C. I. O. Maritime Committee last night indorsed a proposal to invite all seamen's unions on both coasts, including those affiliated with the A. F. L., to form a united front in negotiating revisions of their contracts expiring September 30, and to join in the creation of a single, bicoastal union of seamen.

According to Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union and committee chairman, the proposed union would, in turn, be a unit of a second organization toward which the C. I. O. is driving, a national federation of all maritime labor groups.

Curran admitted that the time was probably too short to allow the formation of a single negotiating unit to meet with a joint delegation of both East and West Coast ship operators on this year's contracts, which affect an estimated 100,000 men. He said, however, he hoped to be negotiating on a Nation-wide basis next year.

Would Meet September 20

Curran said the committee, meeting here in a two-day conference, supported his proposed first step in the united front, a plan whereby East Coast union leaders would meet with Pacific union officials on September 20 in San Francisco to discuss progress in the negotiations, which would then be pending.

At a press conference, Curran did not hesitate to answer questions on the extent of the co-operation Eastern unions would give to Western groups if the latter were unable to reach agreement with the operators and went out on strike this fall. He said that he did not believe a strike on the East Coast would be called, but indicated that his union would seek to stop any Eastern ships which might attempt to handle Western cargo, either by picking it up on the Pacific Coast or loading "hot cargoes" shipped by rail across the country.

Commission Assailed

Earlier in the day, in a report to the committee, Curran lashed out at the "antiunion policy" of the United States Maritime Commission. He scored its "insistence on compulsory arbitration" and the establishment of seamen's training schools "recruiting farmers and plow jockeys."

"The Maritime Commission must be accepted by us as an agent of the shipowners and ready, at all times, to attack and undermine the organizational rights of American seamen," Curran wrote.

The committee will discuss past and present legislative proposals today. Curran indicated he would ask adoption of a program opposing legislation making arbitration compulsory for the settlement of maritime disputes.

Mutiny Inquiry To Seek Evidence Of Union Plot

San Pedro, Calif., Aug. 14 (AP).—Reginald S. Laughlin, general counsel for the American President Lines, today reported an investigation was under way "to determine if there was a conspiracy scheme by union groups against the American President and other United States flag lines."

Meanwhile, Federal investigators opened an inquiry into an alleged mutiny aboard the President Hayes just before the ship reached the Canal Zone from New York.

F. B. I. agents said Thomas Kelleher and William Crouch, members of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, were awaiting trial on mutiny charges at the Canal Zone as the result of an attack upon Chief Engineer James Fay and Second Assistant Chief Engineer Claude Gardener.

40,000 Puerto Ricans Sign Petition Urging Roosevelt to Run for Third Term

A petition signed by more than 40,000 Puerto Ricans urging President Roosevelt to run for a third term was received yesterday by Secretary of the Interior Ickes for transmission to the White House, the press information office of the department announced.

Signers of the petition, whose names cover 200 2-foot sheets of paper, are members of a Puerto Rican "peoples committee," the office said.

Miss Mary Anderson, chief of the Federal Woman's Bureau, said yesterday she was encouraged by the "cold shoulder" which State Legislatures have given numerous attempts to restrict married women's employment.

Reports to the Women's Bureau, Miss Anderson said, show that no "antiworking wives" statute was enacted although such bills were introduced in 22 State Legislatures this year.

Senator Vandenberg, Michigan Republican, declared yesterday that the United States under an administration "sympathetic to the return" of free enterprise would pull itself "out of this economic depression in six months."

Under such an administration, he predicted, the United States would become an $80,000,000,000 country in terms of annual income.

Vandenberg spoke at a convention of the National Fraternal Congress, an organization representing 93 fraternal societies.

The Department of Agriculture yesterday announced the appointment of Paul H. Jordan, formerly with the Farm Security Administration, as assistant regional director of the Surplus Commodities Corporation's Midwest division.

Jordan will head the Administration's food-stamp plan in Midwest cities with headquarters in Milwaukee.

House Minority Leader Martin, of Massachusetts, last night declared the recent session of Congress "definitely ended an era of rash and reckless experimentation" in government.

In a Nation-wide radio address, Martin cited as the session's most significant result the "reassertion by the Congress of its time-honored independence, and reclamation of constitutional rights being assumed by bureaucrats."

Clinton, Mass., Aug. 14 (AP).—Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, today predicted "the Democratic Party will continue in power," if it maintains its "liberal, social and political policies" and assures the country of curtailment in "some" administrative wastes and excessive expenditures.

Senator Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, said yesterday that if rival labor factions would unite, they could pick the next President.

"If the A. F. L. and the C. I. O. would get together, they would hold the 1940 election in the palm of their hand," Lundeen told reporters. "The farm vote would swing in, and they could march right into the White House."

Utility Turns Over Tennessee Field To TVA Agencies

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 14 (AP).—Wendell L. Willkie, president of the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, said tonight the company's Tennessee electric property had been sold to public agencies "for about four-fifths of the real value" because "we could not stay in business and compete with virtually tax-free and heavily subsidized plants."

His statement, announcing formal transfer of the Tennessee Electric Power Co. facilities to the Tennessee Valley Authority and local public agencies at midnight, was in the form of a full-page paid advertisement in the Nashville Tennesseean, which long has advocated the public power program.

Willkie concluded with an expression of gratitude to friends and associates in the State and a hope that "they will never be required to defend a business of their own against Government subsidized competition."

"We have always believed and still believe," the statement said, "that the interests of the public are better served by privately operated utilities than by publicly operated plants."

$180,307 Assigned To Maryland For Farm Buying

By the Associated Press

A limited number of farm tenants, share-croppers and farm laborers in eight Maryland counties will be able to purchase farms through loans from $180,307 allocated to Maryland this year by the Farm Security Administration.

Counties included are Frederick, Washington, Calvert, Charles, Worcester, Kent, Caroline and Queen Anne.

The administration announced today the appointment of A. Claude Turner, of Lusby, Md., and Howard S. Leaverton, of Rock Hall, Md., as members of the Maryland State farm security advisory committee.

They will succeed Walter A. Burall, of New Market, and Samuel C. Linton, of Riverside, who retired from the committee.

Census Begins Today

The first special census in the Nation's history will begin in Indiana today, with 158 enumerators and 16 inspectors of the Census Bureau dispatched through St. Joseph and Marshall counties to gather data upon which the 1940 national census will be based, the Commerce Department reported last night.

46,000 Hosiery Workers Get Pay Increases

Andrews Approves 32½ Cent Wage-Hour Minimum in Industry

Pay increases for 46,000 hosiery workers, effective September 18, were assured last night when Wage-Hour Administrator Elmer F. Andrews approved recommendations of a wage-hour industry committee.

The recommendations were the first approved by Andrews since the fair labor standards act went into effect last October. They establish a 32½-cent-per-hour minimum for 80,000 workers in the seamless hosiery division and 40 cents an hour for 60,000 full-fashioned hosiery workers.

It is estimated that 30,000 seamless and 16,000 full-fashioned workers will receive pay hikes.

The wage-hour act itself fixes a minimum of 25 cents an hour for the first year, 30 cents for the second year, and 35 cents the third, with a goal of 40 cents within seven years, but provides for bigger increases on recommendation of industry committees.

Andrews also has before him for approval or rejection a minimum recommendation of 32½ cents an hour for the textile industry which, it is estimated, will raise the wages of approximately 175,000 of the industry's 650,000 workers. Southern manufacturers are opposing this recommendation and have asked President Roosevelt to block approval.

U. S. to Participate In Byzantine Meet

By the Associated Press

The United States yesterday accepted Frances invitiation to be represented ta the sixth International Congres sof Byzantine Studies in Algiers, October 2 to 10. President Roosevelt has approved a delegation composed of Thomas Whittemore, director of the Byzantine Institute, Boston, Mass., chairman; Dr. Kirsopp Lake, professor emeritus, Harvard University, and Royall Tyler, Paris, France.

Mock War Booms Trade At Manassas

Townfolks Learn Soldiers Are Friendly And Vice Versa

Manassas, Aug. 14.—Manassas, much to its surprise, likes having 23,000 soldiers camped around the town during First Army maneuvers, but some of the farmers are getting worried. They fear their wells won't hold out.

"It's awful hot," a blue-eyed Virginia said, "and these soldiers and their horses drink plenty of water.

"The deep wells on the old farms probably will be all right," he explained, "but the shallower ones, 'specially those near houses on hills, may not stand it. Some of them run dry every summer, anyhow."

Mrs. T. E. Counts, who lives on a farm near Manassas, remarked the soldiers were "nice boys who have not bothered us a bit."

Generosity Everywhere

As she spoke, a squad of National Guardsmen was busily filling a washtub at the pump. Mrs. Counts calmly went on with her housework, but paused to point out there was little danger her well would run dry, "because those little bottles the soldiers carry don't hold much."

Nearby, a field artillery battery was setting up an observation post in an old, hay-filled barn. Lieut. J. C. Fairbank, who was supervising the work, remarked that "everyone has been grand to us."

"Everywhere we have been during the last seven or eight days, the people give us everything we want," he continued. "They just gave us some milk here."

Although the Army has arranged to pay for damage to crops and fences, nobody seemed very anxious to take advantage of the provision.

Police Chief W. T. Dutton, of Manassas, asserted "there has been no willful damage and no complaints."

Farmer Sam White declared, nothing had been harmed on his place and other residents in the area said they had no complaint to make.

Within the town of Manassas considerable changes had to be made to care for the additional traffic of Army trucks, motorcycles and staff cars.

Two additional town policemen were placed on duty and parking on the 38-foot main street was prohibited in the three-block business district. Military police have been detailed throughout the town and on the famous Bull Run Battlefield.

One Man Jailed

Only one soldier was jailed, Chief Dutton said, while many "Knights of the Road" have been picked up.

Dutton explained the townspeople had "expected a lot of trouble, but they've met some nice boys and are greatly surprised at the orderly conduct of the soldiers." Business was was booming, he said. Town Manager W. F. Cock emphasized that "everything is going fine."

A few "chores," Cock remarked, had to be done to fit public utilities to meet Army requirements.

As an example, he said, water was being pumped from the town's artesian wells at the rate of 125,000 gallons a day, but explained the system is equipped to deliver 200,000 gallons every 24 hours.

Greenbelt Votes $100 Personal Tax Exemption

The town council of Greenbelt, Md., last night authorized a $100 exemption from personal property taxes. Convening at its regular meeting, the group ordered the town treasurer to draw up and distribute forms for the valuation of personal property, including automobiles.

Charles Marbury, town solicitor, declared that a State law allows a $500 exemption on personal property taxes, but opined that it applies only to counties and the City of Baltimore, and not to incorporated towns. The council agreed on exemptions to co-operatives and non-profit organizations.

Miss Elizabeth Yuretich was appointed superintendent of Greenbelt Hospital to fill the position left vacant by the resignation of Miss Fredericka Martin on August 15.

Manassas Soldier Suffers Wounds

Private John O'Connell, of the District's 121st Engineers, suffered a fractured hand in the battle near Manassas, Va., yesterday when he fell while escaping capture by the "enemy." He told surgeons at Fort Myer Hospital he fell on his revolver, which he was holding.

Two members of the same regiment were treated at the Fort Myer hospital for stomach disorders. They were Pvt. Perry Hand, of Company E, and Pvt. James Stewart, Headquarters and Service Company.

Goldsborough Hits Police for Long Detention

Keeping Prisoners Hours for Inquiry Is Called Illegal

Police officials were smarting yesterday under a new attack on the practice of holding prisoners "for investigation" without charges, as Justice Goldsborough denounced such action as a violation of the law if the prisoner is held more than six hours.

"We never hold a man for investigation more than a reasonable length of time," said Chief of Detectives Bernard Thompson. Supt. of Police Maj. Ernest W. Brown would not comment.

Justice Goldsborough delivered his attack in District Court during a hearing on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus brought by Attorney James J. Laughlin for James (Buzz) Donovan, who was held by police from 1 p. m. Saturday until early yesterday for "investigation" in connection with a robbery.

"These police are supposed to be upholding the law and engaged in the apprehension of those who have violated the law," said Justice Goldsborough, "but they are guilty of an offense against the law when they hold prisoners for more than six hours.

"This practice is not permissible under any circumstance," the Justice continued. "So far as I am concerned, I shall do my best to see that the law is not violated."

An earlier attack against holding prisoners for "investigation" was delivered February 27 by Justice Edgerton in the case of Benett vs. the United States before the Court of Appeals. "We deem this an appropriate time to say that confinement without a charge violates one of the most important rights of the citizen," he said.

2 Planes Collide; One Pilot Dies

Parkersburg, W. Va., Aug. 14 (AP). While officials watched 1,500 feet below, two planes piloted by students collided today over the Ohio River. Merne Bowers, 23, die and tool company worker, fell to his death in the stream while Robert Kraft, of Wheeling, pulled his ship out of a spin and landed near Belpre, Ohio, hurting his shoulder.

E. A. Goff, jr., of Pittsburgh, civil aeronautics inspector, and Clarence McElroy, chief pilot at the airport, watched the collision.

Berryville Auto Victim Succumbs

Berryville, Va., Aug. 14.—Miss Dora Boyd Singhass, 19, daughter of Ernest W. Singhass, of Clarke County, died today in Winchester of injuries suffered when struck by an automobile.

She is survived by her father, eight brothers and two sisters, all of Clarke County.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 11 a. m. at Duncan Memorial Methodist Church, conducted by the pastor, the Rev. W. O. Luttrell.

Capital 'Saved' From the Invader When Great Battle Surges Too Close 'No Trespass' Signs; They'll Move Out of Danger Today

spot where the line was bending, where pressure from the mechanized force across the way had become unbearable, it would pile from its trucks, slew them across and along the road, an impassable barrier to tanks and cavalry alike, and lie beside them to take pot shots at whatever attacking force it faced.

The cavalry action which penetrated so dangerously near corps headquarters was, in spite of its success, a minor phase of the battle. Sent in to divert attention from other parts of the line, the cavalry drew in five Blue battalions before it was halted and held those battalions out of action for a time while Black tanks and armored cars hammered at the Blue line farther west.

Promptly at 6 a. m. Blue planes of the 103d and 104th Observation Squadrons pushed into the area, observers squatting in their cavernous bellies. Out of a thick haze that lay between the Potomac and the Blue Ridge, these observers spotted Black patrols in possession of fords and bridges along the defensive watercourses a very few minutes after the war officially opened.

At 6:07, a plane of the 103d spotted a Cavalry patrol standing in Occoquan Creek at Spriggs Ford. A few minutes later, at 6:15, four scout cars and about 100 infantrymen were seen creeping cautiously toward the bridge over Occoquan Creek just east of Brentsville.

Important Bridgeheads Held

So rapidly had the Black Cavalry and motorized patrols moved that they held all important bridgeheads before the 103d Engineers could blast them out with demolition bombs. From those captured bridgeheads and fords moved the succession of raids and hornet-like stabs behind the lines that caused the Blue troops such keen discomfort.

By 7 a. m., Blue air observers made out above the dense woods below them long plumes of red dust, very like that which so helped to spoil McDowell's flanking march on this same field 78 years ago. Under them observers made out the long columns of trucks loaded with riflemen and trucks towing field guns, all hurrying north and west.

An hour later, the columns, moving fast and steadily, had begun to concentrate at Aden; from there they moved on northward toward Bristow and at a little crossroads between the two the columns halted. Infantry clambered down, formed in tight columns and swung out toward Bristow. Aircraft roared down upon them, skimming the treetops, raking the marching columns which broke formation while machine guns spat back at the diving planes.

While the heavy columns of the invading Blacks were forming south of Bristow and marching toward Manassas, Black raiders were creating manifold trouble behind the Blue lines. Two Black Scout cars annihilated a company of the 116th Virginia Infantry south of Gainesville, roaring down upon them and spraying them with machine gun fire before the doughboys could get into action.

Blue Troops Killed

A Black motorcycle spattered into a Blue infantry detachment, its gunner braced in the sidecar, an automatic rifle between his knees laying down a withering barrage. In both cases, umpires ruled all Blue troops exposed to fire were killed.

Units of the District National Guard, a little later, dosed the Blacks with a little of their own medicine. Col. Walter W. Burns, commanding the 260th Coast Artillery, personally captured a Falstaffian motorcyclist and gave him a funny paper to read. Another motorcycle man was captured on the Bistow road south of Gainesville by Battery C of the 260th and a scout car was captured far back of the Blue lines by Battery F. The District outfit fired on 15 enemy planes which sought to destroy the Twenty-ninth Division railhead at Gainesville.

Back toward the south, the Black infantry column, composed of the Twelfth and Thirty-fourth regulars, attacked in force along Broad Run near Brentsville, supported heavily by armored scout cars. They drove the second battalion of the 109th Infantry more than a mile along Route 614. There they were stopped by Broad Run, whose bridges had been knocked out earlier by Blue artillery.

Later in the morning, Company E of the 110th Infantry came to the 109th's support and together they forced back the Blacks over half the territory they had gained.

Tanks Roll Forward

Stalemated along Broad Run, the Blacks reached into their bag of tricks, hauled out 60 fast tanks of the Sixty-sixth Infantry and sent them rolling forward through the heavy red dust. In two chattering columns they moved north, past Aden, past Brentsville and on to the the little village of Bristow on the Southern Railway.

One tank column crossed the railway at Bristow, turned north along a narrow rutted road and came to rest at an ancient ford over Broad Run. A couple of boys there, careless of wars and moving troops, were having a fine time swinging from a rope into the run and a dozen or so dusty gunners stripped to the buff and joined them.

Their commander's whistle shrilled and they rushed back to their tanks, clothes in hand, and moved off into the ford, struggling into underwear and pants.

Building Delay Threatened by Smoot Strike

200 Sand and Gravel Company Employes Establish Picket Lines

Progress on numerous local and Federal construction projects was threatened yesterday when 200 employes of the Smoot Sand and Gravel Corporation left their jobs in protest against company refusals to meet union closed-shop demands.

The strike call, following long negotiations, will affect $54,000,000 worth of current contracting work, union officials claimed. Although picket lines were thrown around the company's K street plant yesterday, trucks, operated by a skeleton staff, continued to haul materials.

Management of the corporation said union projects throughout the city had threatened to refuse Smoot sand and gravel shipments unless demands were met. Although the Sand and Gravel Workers' Union No. 22075 announced the dispute involved wages, hours and better working conditions, company spokesmen insisted the closed-shop issue prompted the strike.

"We agreed to all but the closed shop demands," said a company official last night, "and the strike was a complete surprise."

Jack Shields, union business agent, listed among Federal and District projects threatened, the Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge, Naval Hospital, Navy Yard projects, the K street overpass, construction at Fifteenth and H streets northwest, the new Social Security Building and a bridge at Morgantown, W. Va.

Until settlement is reached, Shields said, picket lines will be maintained, although workers will be permitted to pass through the lines in cases of emergency, when property is endangered by water or gas main blowouts.

U. S. Indicts 5 For Harboring Fugitive Lepke

Amoruso Arraigned By Dewey as Aide In Garment Racket

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 14.—Federal and city authorities struck parallel blows today at the racketeering syndicate being run in absentia by Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, fugitive gangster for whom a national search of almost unprecedented urgency is under way.

While New York County District Attorney Dewey was arraigning Joseph Amoruso, otherwise known as "Joe Strawberry," on an indictment charging him with participation with Buchalter in the garment racket, the Government obtained extraordinary indictments charging five persons and two corporations with conspiracy to harbor the missing Lepke.

One of the obvious, although unannounced, objects of this Federal action was to stop the flow of money by which Buchalter presumably has been able to conduct from hiding a campaign of death against former associates who might be presumed to know too much.

Brunette Also Held

As to Amoruso, a 45-year-old former convict arrested with great secrecy yesterday on a farm hideaway near New Paltz, N. Y., where he had been living his conception of the life of a retired country gentleman, Dewey said he was the most important of all the figures in the garment racket save Lepke himself and his erstwhile top partner, Jacob (Gurrah) Shapiro, who now is in prison.

Amoruso pleaded innocent and was held in default of $50,000 bail. Assistant Dstrict Attorney Victor Herwitz accused him in court of having run "the extortion and strong-arm work in the dress industry."

Jean Russo, a young brunette, said by Herwitz to have been the hoodlum's mistress, was held in $10,000 bail as a material witness.

The five persons accused in the Federal indictment for conspiracy to harbor Lepke were held in bail aggregating $36,500. They were:

Carl Shapiro, brother of Gurrah, manager of the Raleigh (Clothing) Manufacturers, Inc., of Baltimore, Md., and treasurer of Raleigh Manufacturers, Inc., of New York, an affiliated corporation which sells the finished product;

Nathan Borish, president of both corporations, which were made corporate defendants;

Philip Kasokave, member of an accounting firm;

Samuel Smith, Gurrah's brother-in-law and treasurer of the Baltimore corporation; and Florence Dwyer, secretary of the two concerns.

Specifically, they were charged with having paid $250 a week to Lepke and Gurrah during periods when both were fugitives and could use the money in evading arrest, and with conspiring to conceal these payments.

Federal authorities said the indictment was the first in this country to be based on the legal theory that the knowing passing of money to a fugitive constitutes an act of harboring him.

Museum Visitor Recognizes Brother in Civil War Picture

Michigan Woman Picks Out Kin in Photo of Infantry Group Participating in Second Battle of Fredericksburg

At last someone has recognized one of those Civil War soldiers among the old Signal Corps photographs. The furry beards they lurked behind have baffled identification generally.

Mrs. Francis Clifford, of Perrinton, Mich., last week looked at one of the group pictures in the museum at the Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania National Military Park and emitted the cry, "That's brother Joe!"

"This was the first instance known to museum attendants of a visitor's identifying somebody in any of the old photographs," came the official announcement.

Now "Brother Joe" was Josiah P. Hackett, and the picture is listed in the files as representing a group of Maine infantry after the Second Battle of Fredericksburg. But Hackett was not from Maine. He came from Michigan. His outfit was organized at Flint and was composed mostly of Michigan men.

And in those rugged times, wealthy and patriotic individuals, with a desire to be officers, sometimes organized and supplied military units. From Mrs. Clifford's revelations, it now appears that the Michigan organizer of "Brother Joe's" outfit sold out his interest to a Maine man.

Poland Warns Only War Can Win Danzig

Peaceful 'Anschluss' Or 'Second Munich' Will Be Rejected

By International News Service

Warsaw, Aug. 14.—Germany can regain ownership of Danzig "only through a victorious war," Poland warned tonight in a semi-official statement.

A peaceful "anschluss" (reunion) between the Free City and the Reich will be rejected by Poland if it is proposed and Poland furthermore will not tolerate any attempt, no matter from where it comes, to achieve such an end, it was emphasized.

A semi-official Polish spokesman declared Germany apparently is seeking to bring about a "second Munich" to impose her will upon Poland through an international conference.

The semi-official comment made it plain Poland has drawn certain lessons from the events of September, 1938, and is determined not to be transformed into a "Second Czecho-Slovakia."

Poland has asked no one to intercede for a settlement of her Danzig controversy with Germany and does not intend to do so, it was asserted.

Beck Sees Envoys

Warsaw, Aug. 14 (AP).—Reports of new efforts to find a peaceful solution of the quarrel over Danzig gained strength here tonight with the announcement that Foreign Minister Beck had conferred with British Ambassador Kennard, French Ambassador Noel and Filippo Cortesi, papal nuncio to Poland.

Responsible Polish quarters described as a German "propaganda move" the visit to Fuehrer Hitler by Carl J. Burckhardt, League of Nations high commissioner in Danzig.

These same circles were tight-lipped regarding the theory that Burckhardt, having talked with Hitler, now might provide a point of contact between Poland and Germany.

Nevertheless, there were evidences of intense diplomatic activity, and long distance lines to London and Paris were jammed with official calls.

Slovakia Claims Land

Bratislava, Slovakia, Aug. 14 (AP). Territorial claims by Slovakia against Poland were advanced today by Propaganda Chief Sano Mach. Authoritative circles reported the claims had the "support" of Germany.

The government claims that Polish forces illegally occupied 86 square miles of Slovakia, having a population of 9,940, after the international crisis last September.

Mexico Warned On Oil Seizures

very the interests of their Government are directly concerned."

U. S. Proposal Rejected

For the first time, Welles disclosed the Government had suggested informally, the compromise solution rejected last week by the oil companies and Mexico. His statement generally was interpreted as a bid for resumption of consideration of that plan as a temporary base for agreement.

Mexico and the oil companies contended for majority control on the board of directors administering the properties, and had deadlocked on this point when the Government informally entered the picture, Welles disclosed.

As a temporary solution, pending final agreement, the Government suggested a board of nine directors, three to be named by the Mexican government and three by the petroleum companies. The remaining three would be selected by both parties from a panel of nine neutrals having no direct interest in the dispute, and mutually agreeable to the United States and Mexican governments.

Reiterate Control Demands

Najera announced last week his government was no longer considering the plan. Spokesmen for the companies previously had called it unacceptable to them. Both sides reiterated demands for majority control of the properties.

Welles said the United States Government "naturally regrets" the proposal was discarded "without the fullest exploration of its possibilities, especially when both parties fully comprehended the purpose for which it was put forward."

In reiterating demands for prompt compensation for the millions of dollars involved in seized properties, Welles said this Government's position is based on well recognized rules of international law. He said Mexico recognized its liability to make compensation in its expropriation decree and on numerous occasions since.

In Mexico, President Cardenas called Mexican Foreign Minister Eduardo Hay into conference as soon as Welles' demand for prompt settlement became known, according to International News Service dispatches. A meeting of Cardenas' cabinet was expected. The dispatches said Cardenas was quoted by the newspaper Novedades as telling an oil workers' delegation.

"As long as I am president of the republic, the petroleum shall be ours. I assure you the petroleum industry will not be returned."

In Washington, Ambassador Najera told newsmen the oil companies have many Mexican proposals to choose from.

Notes on Town Of Tomorrow

The Town of Tomorrow at the New York World's Fair is a practical demonstration of what industry, science and art have made attainable in respect to the comfort, convenience and beauty of the home and its surroundings.

It shows the man on the streets, the man of average means, how he can possess what he has always considered to be luxuries, how on a moderate income he can find solid comfort and really begin to live, in the home of tomorrow. But, more important than these, it will show him how he may live in the community of tomorrow.

Warned Victims of Shell Explosion

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Private D. K. Fitch, of Princeton, Md., treated in the Fort Knox Hospital for injuries suffered in the explosion of a shell which killed six National Guardsmen, said he warned his companions against tinkering with the explosive. Fitch was 50 feet away when he heard the blast and fell flat to the ground

Text of U. S. Oil Statement

Following is the statement by Acting Secretary of State Welles on the Mexican oil situation:

On March 18, 1938, the Mexican government, by decree, undertook to expropriate the properties in Mexico of certain foreign-owned, including American-owned, oil companies operating there.

This action was similar in nature, although involving investments of far greater magnitude, to the steps taken by the Mexican government in recent years to expropriate farm and other properties belonging to American citizens. With regard to the seizure of these agrarian properties, this Government has consistently pointed out that in the exercise of the admitted right of all sovereign nations to expropriate private property, such expropriation must be accompanied, in accordance with the recognized principles of international law, by provision on the part of the government of Mexico for adequate, effective and prompt payment for the properties seized. This latter problem was largely settled when, on November 9-12, 1938, the two governments exchanged communications agreeing upon a satisfactory procedure for the determination of the fair compensation to be given American citizens whose lands have been taken subsequent to August 30, 1927, and in consequence of which agreement the Mexicon government will provide compensation in cash for suchc properties.

Payment Was Expected

Immediately following the action taken to expropriate the petroleum properties belonging to American citizens, this Government informed the Mexican government of its expectation that prompt compensation would be made in the form of just and effective payment to the extent of the fair and equitable valuation of such properties. This Government's position is firmly based not only on well recognized rules of international law, but the elemental considerations of justice and of fair dealing which should govern the relations between nations demand such payment for the properties taken. The attitude of applying the principles of established international law in the solution of this problem has been consistently maintained by every official of the United States Government in its representations to both parties to the controversy throughout the period of the discussion. Furthermore, the close and friendly understanding which this Government desires to continue to maintain with the government of Mexico requires the reciprocal assurance on the part of both governments that their relations will in fact be governed by such principles of justice and of fair dealings.

In the decree of expropriation itself and on numerous occasions subsequently, the Mexican Government recognized its liability to make compensation and stated its willingness to discuss terms with the petroleum companies concerned. Since that time, there have been discussions between representatives of the Mexican Government and of the petroleum companies in an endeavor to come to some fair and equitable agreement. This Government has continuously and consistently sought to facilitate and to further these negotiations by conferring with both sides, first with one and then with the other. For a time, the conversations between both parties proceeded satisfactorily, appearing to hold promise of an eventual solution. A set of bases of discussion, within the scope of which there might be found an agreement for the future operation of the industry, were believed to be determined, but recently a serious obstacle to final agreement was encountered. In this situation, this Government, without prior consultation with either party, and in accordance with its repeatedly demonstrated desire to further an agreement, informally laid before both parties a suggested solution of this obstacle, without requesting or receiving any commitment or obligation on the part of either party to accept it.

This proposal was as follows: Each party had claimed that it must control the management operation of new companies, which it had been agreed in principle might be established to operate the properties seized. In an endeavor to overcome the deadlock this Government informally offered the suggestion that the boards of directors, as a temporary arrangement, and pending a final agreement, be composed of nine persons, three appointed by the Mexican government, three appointed by the petroleum companies and three selected by the wo parties from a panel of nine drawn up in mutual agreement by the governments of Mexico and of the United States. In order to attain complete impartiality on this panel of nine, no persons were to be included who come from any country whose citizens had a direct and important interest in any of the petroleum companies involved. These persons were all to be of demonstrated integrity and standing and of practical experience in commerce, finance, or in the petroleum industry itself. This proposal seemed to offer a temporary middle ground on which the Mexican government and the petroleum companies could have met with the balance between them resting in the hands of impartial and competent persons.

This Government naturally regrets that a proposal suggested for no other purpose than to reconcile a major difference of approach which threatened a breakdown in the recent negotiations should have been discarded by either party without the fullest exploration of its possibilities, especially when both parties fully comprehended the purpose for which it was put forward.

Principles Must Control

It is, of course, evident that a solution of this controversy must be found in accordance with the basic principles of international law, as this Government has invariably insisted at every step of the present negotiations. A continuance of the dispute not only will dislocate still further beneficial commercial relations between Mexico and the United States, with great economic losses to both countries, but more important still, it will constitute a material barrier to the maintenance of that close and friendly understanding between Mexico and the United States which both governments regard as in the best interests of the two peoples.

The discontinuance of the present discussions can, of course, in no sense relieve the Mexican government of its obligation to make prompt, adequate, and effective compensation for the petroleum properties which have been taken, if the expropriation is to be regarded as valid. At the same time, however, this Government expects that its own citizens with direct interest in this controversy will give the most ample and attentive consideration to all constructive proposals that are advanced to overcome the difficulties now standing in the way of a fair settlement of the controversy which exists. In the rapid, fair and equitable solution of this controversy, the interests of their Government are directly concerned.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste matter out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills. Adv.

Japanese Buy Ohio Factory, Take It Home

Huge Steel Mill Firm Makes Sale, Despite State Dept. Protests

By International News Service

Japan, hard-pressed for munitions machinery to prosecute the war with China, has purchased an American factory in Wooster, Ohio, and transported it—lock, stock and barrel—to Tokyo, it was revealed here yesterday.

The Japanese, with the purchase, also obtained a $5,000,000 American loan, extended on a credit basis to the Shibaura Engineering Works of Tokyo, to equip them for the most modern, high-speed volume production requisite to munitions needs, a reliable Government source disclosed.

U. S. Protests Sale

The United Engineering & Foundry Co., of Pittsburgh, one of the world's largest steel mill machinery firms, made the sale and the large credit extension, which was tacitly sponsored by the Japanese government, through one of that nation's "big four" financial houses, this source declared.

Over oral remonstrances of the State Department, and against advice of the Commerce Department, the transaction was completed several weeks ago, before notice by this Government of intention to abrogate its commercial treaty with Japan.

[The Associated Press reports the State Department is giving serious consideration to invoking a "moral embargo' to prevent the shipment to Japan of raw materials capable of war use.

[Such a course was suggested by Senator Schfellenbach (Democrat), Washington, in a letter last week to Secretary of State Hull. He proposed extending to raw materials generally the "moral embargo" that Hull imposed last year on the shipment of airplanes to Japan.

[While there has been no comment from Hull, acting Secretary Sumner Well gave a cordial reception to Schwellenbach's proposal.

[It is known several officials of the State Department favor such action. They believe a "moral embargo' on the shipment of raw materials generally to Japan could be made as effective as it has been with regard ot airplanes—virtually complete.—Editor's note.]

The refurbished Tokyo plant is reported to be in full production. The American firm, which maintains associate branches in Paris, Sheffield, England, and Montreal, is understood to fear for the return of its investment, since the treaty abrogation move.

Advised Against It

Officials of the American firm called at the Department of Commerce several weeks ago, seeking advice on Government attitude toward the proposed transaction. They were refered to State Department officials, who were understood to have urged against the deal, but to have informed them there exists no statutory provision to prevent it.

Soon after these interviews the transaction was completed. A Commerce Department official, dealing in Far East matters, later said, "We have washed our hands of the affair." The department advised against the financial risk involved in granting any credits to Japan, and called the firm's attention to numerous past Japanese cancellations of order commitments.

the blame on Poland for rejecting "peaceful settlement."

Confirmation Lacking

Rome, Aug. 14 (AP).—A four-power conference was reported today to be the Italian-German plan for solving Danzig and other problems.

There was no official confirmation, but some diplomats gave credence to the report and assumed that if Foreign Ministers von Ribbentrop and Ciano had adopted it as Salzburg, it was due largely to pressure from Premier Mussolini.

Mussolini, it is believed, is against the precipitation of a crisis over Danzig, which might well cause a European war, and is more interested in moving toward an adjustment of African colonial power with France.

It was not believed that any proposal had yet been given to London and Paris. One source insisted the Italian and German embassies to the Holy See had submitted a memorandum concerning a plan to the Vatican.

Other Problems in Mind

The plan was reported to call for a conference of Italy, Germany, France and Britain for the settlement of not only the Danzig question, but other European economic and colonial problems.

Poland would not be a direct party to the conferences, these sources said, Britain and France being called upon to get her acceptance of the annexation of Danzig to the Reich in return for assurances Polish independence would not be threatened.

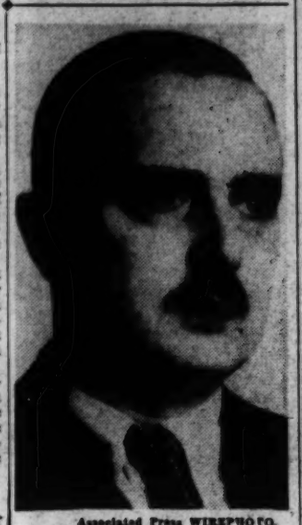
The plan was said to involve a 30-day truce during which no power would move, so the Danzig matter might be negotiated. If a settlement were achieved, a further truce for the consideration of other pending problems.

Burckhardt Report Near

Berlin, Aug. 14 (AP).—Prof. Carl J. Burckhardt, League of Nations commissioner for Danzig, who has returned to Danzig after a conference with Fuehrer Hitler, was unofficially reported to be preparing to go to London to confer with Lord Halifax, British foreign secretary.

Germans hoped Burckhardt's conversations with German, British and Polish officials would result in a solution by which Germany could take over the Free City without bloodshed, and gain passageway through the Polish corridor to East Prussia.

Informed political circles here expressed belief Hitler, Foreign Minister Beck, of Poland, and Albert Forster, Nazi leader in Danzig, had accepted such a plan as a basis for discussion.



Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

DR. CARL BURKHARDT, League of Nations High Commissioner to Danzig, once called the "most tactful of men" by Adolf Hitler, was reported to have received a compromise proposal from Der Fuehrer for solution of the Danzig dispute between Germany and Poland

Following his visit to Hitler, Burckhardt conferred in Danzig with Forster and the Polish diplomatic representative, Marian Chodacki.

War Held Not Wanted

Informed German circles professed to discern the following:

The Fuehrer does not want a war over Danzig and will accept a solution that will satisfy "German honor."

Beck realizes Poland's precarious position in the event of war and is ready for a compromise.

England, which has guaranteed Poland's independence, even now is not ready to fight and will support a peaceful solution.

The possibility of compromise is admitted if Hitler unconditionally gets Danzig, a German-speaking city, and a strip of Pomorze large enough to insure direct communication between East Prussia and Germany proper.

All German comment indicated that if mediation should fail, Germany was prepared with the aid of Italy to enforce axis demands.

Job Ban in Lawless Strike Acts Urged

Philadelphia, Aug. 14 (AP).—Republic Steel Corporation asked the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals today to rule that strikers who commit acts of lawlessness have forfeited the right to return to their jobs.

The request was made in a brief supplementing arguments by Republic's attorneys August 7 on Republic's petition asking that the court set aside an order of the National Labor Relations Board, which directed the company to reinstate 5,000 Ohio workers involved in the "little steel" strikes of 1937.

A convenient place to wrap up packages and keep all the paper and twine that is needed for that troublesome operation is a joy seldom realized in our homes. If you have a closet in which you can spare one end, set up a shelf about 30 inches from the floor, and as deep as the space will allow.

Another way of keeping the twine is to set up some hooks above the shelf to hang the pieces of twine over. This keeps them from getting tangled.

British Stoned At Chefoo as Drive Pushed

Japanese Officials Promise Protection For English Property

By the Associated Press

Shanghai (Tuesday), Aug. 15.—The anti-British campaign in China produced a new outbreak of violence in Chefoo, Shantung Province port, where official advices today said demonstrators attacked the British consulate and stoned offices and residences of Britons.

Following the demonstrations, Japanese authorities were said to have assured the Britons their property would be protected in the future. The outbreak occurred yesterday.

At Tientsin, meanwhile, North China anti-British leaders adopted resolutions designed to strengthen their drive.

Domei, Japanese news agency, said the Tientsin conferees decided to co-ordinate all anti-British societies; to strengthen anti-British organizations and spread the movement throughout China; to "oppress" British interests and Britons, and to put pressure on pro-British Chinese.

The meeting was followed by a parade through the Japanese Concession past the French area. The marchers waved anti-British slogans and banners.

The British court here was expected to decide quickly whether to grant a writ of habeas corpus sought by several London residents opposed to the release to Japanese authorities of four alleged Chinese terrorists held by the British at Tientsin.

The British government announce last Friday that the four Chinese, who have been the center of the British-Japanese dispute at Tientsin, would be handed over to Japanese authorities for trial.

The United States consulate general here received three additional messages from Kaifeng, confirming that Americans there were safe and unmolested.

Colton Held To Grand Jury In Slaying

Son, 17, Witness at Inquest, Confirms Police Testimony

Richard J. Colton, slight, grey-haired father of ten children, yesterday was held for the action of the grand jury in connection with the fatal shooting Friday of Joseph B. McKenna. Colton sat coolly through a coroner's inquest yesterday at which his 17-year-old son reluctantly supported police testimony.

A faint smile played about Colton's lips all through the hearing and was still there as he walked from the room after the decision. The jury deliberated less than 10 minutes.

Policeman John C. Daniels, of Tenth Precinct, said at the hearing that Colton admitted the shooting when arrested.

Boy's Voice Low

As the low tone of his voice forced the jurors to bend over attentively, young Thomas Colton corroborated the testimony of Daniels that his father knew where the gun was and pointed it out to Daniels in a corner of the living room after the shooting. He also said Daniels found "a couple of shells" in searching his father, and that he had hidden the shotgun in the basement coal bin a week before, after unloading it.

"I don't think father liked McKenna very much," Thomas said.

Asked "why" by Dr. MacDonald in a futile attempt to establish a motive for the shooting, he would only reply: "He didn't speak to him."

Mrs. Francis Reuter, of 3620 Sixteenth street northwest, the dead mans' sister and who was with him when he was shot, testified McKenna saw Colton aiming his rifle at him, cried "Get out of the way, Peg," then dashed down the cement walk and was running away from Colton.

She said Colton had a "terrible, set look on his face, leathery and wild looking" as he approached McKenna's body after jumping the fence around his house.

Brother Wed to Daughter

Sergt. Flaherty testified that Frank McKenna, a brother of the slain man, is married to one of Coltons' daughters.

Detective Sergt. Jeremiah Flaherty testified Colton denied any recollection of the events that transpired and asserted his mind was "a perfect blank."

Thomas, under questioning by Coroner MacDonald, twice replied that he could not recall what his father had said to Daniels. However, after Dr. MacDonald repeated the question a third time, Thomas said his father told Daniels he shot McKenna.

The room was tense and silent after Assistant District Attorney William S. Tarver interrupted Dr. MacDonald to ask the boy, "Did you hear your father say he was glad he shot McKenna?"

Thomas sat biting his lips as though he had not heard the question, but finally muttered, in a whisper, "I believe I did."

condition any longer so I simply took it home with me.

"There (a bare garret studio) I restored it to its original glory."

His eyes flashing, the young Russian pointed to the left border.

"Look there," he exclaimed, "Where I cleaned away the tar. It disclosed a truly athereal green foliage."

Bogousslavsky said he had originally planned to return the painting to the Louvre with a book he had written protesting "the way old masters are mistreated" and commit suicide there.

Friends, however, dissuaded him, he said, and he walked into police headquarters this afternoon accompanied by two lawyers.

After long questioning, he was placed under arrest and charged with theft.

For 15 days, he said, he sketched in the Louvre, so that guards would become accustomed to him. Each day he frayed away a little of the wire holding the picture.

On the fifteenth day, just after lunch, Bogousslavsky finally broke the wire, wrapped the picture in a newspaper and slipped it under his coat.

"I then walked slowly out by the nearest exit and took my painting home," he said.

That's what Maj. and Mrs. Frank C. Griffis called their forty-ninth wedding anniversary, observed here yesterday. From their home in Fruitland, Fla., they came to Washington to celebrate. Maj. Griffis, retired Army Medical Corps officer, and his wife went to grammar school together in Gilead, Ohio, and were married in 1890. Their romance continued through 40 years of Army life in the four corners of the world though seriously injured, in an Elko, Nev., hospital.

Rail Yards Combed For Train Wreckers

One hundred fourteen others were injured or badly shaken up, nearly 100 requiring at least first-aid treatment, when the $2,000,000 train was hurtled into a rocky Nevada canyon by a rail authorities said was deliberately misplaced.

Chief of Police Andy M. Welliver asserted he probably would release Bob La Duceur tomorrow. Federal, local and railroad police spent all day questioning him.

Welliver said the man was arrested because he answered the description of an "earless man" whose strange action made him one of the main objectives of the search.

Whereabouts Established

The police chief reported T. J. McLaughlin, Federal Bureau of Investigation agent, had established that La Duceur was at Pyramid Lake, Nev., Saturday night and Sunday morning and could not have participated in the wreck. He said the man apparently was riding a freight train from Portland, Oreg., to Fernley, Nev., but was left behind at Pyramid Lake when the freight pulled out while he was getting a drink of water.

"He had breakfast with members of the Southern Pacific section crew there Sunday morning, according to members of the crew," Welliver said.

Five men were taken from an eastbound freight train at Salt Lake City. Four were released but one was held for further questioning.

From Ogden to Oakland, Calif., police watched railway yards for the "Earless Man" and for a railroad man who raved against the company the day before the wreck.

Welliver said the earless man had been reported "acting suspiciously at Fernley and had inquired yesterday morning at a Fernley garage, 'has anything happened?'"

The victims were hurled screaming to their death after the swaying dining car caught in the superstructure of a 60-foot steel bridge over Humboldt River and pulled the train and the bridge into the ravine.

The whole train was set rocking after it lost the support of an outside rail as it rounded a turn traveling 60 miles an hour. The rail had been moved 4 inches inward. To do this it was necessary to pull 44 spikes from 22 ties, remove the supporting angle bars, move the 30-foot rail, weighing 1,690 pounds, and spike it down again.

Railway officials calculated it would take two strong men more than half an hour. The rail was moved in a four-hour interval between two trains, moved carefully so as not to disturb a block signal electric cable lying between the tracks, which would have warned Engineer E. F. Hecox.

Thirteen of the 17 cars were derailed, and 6 crashed into the river canyon. Scenes of the greatest horror were in these.

On his way to the scene, President William M. Jeffers, of the Union Pacific, termed it "murderous sabotage." He said a Nation-wide hunt would be continued until the perpetrators were found.

Jury Concurs in Verdict

A coroner's jury yesterday concurred with railway officials that a rail deliberately "misplaced" by a person or persons unknown" caused the wreck.

President A. D. McDonald, of the Southern Pacific, and other high officials of the company, were at the scene, directing the investigation and repair operations.

It will be three or four days before the road will be usable. Meanwhile, trains were being routed over Western Pacific tracks.

Good Will's Open House Tomorrow

600 Children to Join In Demonstration of Outdoor Opportunities

Six hundred children who exchanged city streets for camps will join in a demonstration of what camping means to them, at an open house program tomorrow at Camp Good Will in the Chopawamsic area. There the children have been guests of five Community Chest agency camps.

The program, with the public invited, will start with a tour of the camp at 2 p. m., followed by a water carnival at 3. After supper, an assembly period at a campfire circle will bring talks by camp directors and representatives of the National Park Service. A pageant at 7 p. m. will give each unit a chance to demonstrate what they've learned of camp life and lore.

District Commissioners Melvin C. Hazen and Col. David McCoach, jr., are expected among the visitors, as well as Judge Fay Bentley of the Juvenile Court; Lewis Barrett, co-ordinator of recreation, and William H. Savin, director of the Family Service Association.

Nearly 1,900 children have sampled life this summer at the camps.

Camp Good Will can be reached via U. S. Route 1. Near Triangle, Va., a large sign on the Joplin road directs the way. If weather prevents the program, it will be postponed until Thursday.

The Family Service ssociatiAon and the National Park Service are co-operating in the program. Hugo W. Wolter, director of the program committee which includes Mrs. Charles H. Dodd, director of Camp Happyland, under sponsorship of the Salvation Army; Mrs. Edward P. Lovett, director of Camp Pleasant, sponsored by the Family Service Association; Lee W. Johnson, director of Camp Lichtman, sponsored by the Twelfth Street Y. M. C. A.; Benjamin B. Rosenberg, director of Center Camp, sponsored by the Jewish Community Center; W. R. Hall, project manager of the National Park Service.

Guild Subscription Plays All But Set for Season

This Week Deadline for National Reservations; Variety Selects 'Cinderella' for Coast Trip; This, That and the Other About the Theater

THE ROSTER of six subscription plays, to be presented in the National Theater next season under the joint auspices of the Theater Guild and the American Theater Society of Washington, is rapidly taking final shape. As formulated to date, the list of subscription plays will run heavily to hits.

BELL

First of the notable bookings made available to local theatergoers on a season basis, at rates below the box-office tariffs, will be the Alfred Lunt-Lynn Fontanne production of Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew," booked for the National the week of Monday, October 2. This will be followed in due course by "The White Steed," with Barry Fitzgerald; "Outward Bound," with Laurette Taylor and a star cast, last January's "command performance" drama that opened the President's birthday celebrations to a capacity house with President and Mrs. Roosevelt in attendance; probably a Group Theater production and Ethel Barrymore in her new play. The sixth offering has not as yet been considered by Theater Guild officials, but will be announced in September.

With this impressive line-up in prospect, the local office of the Theater Guild and American Theater Society gives fair warning to all delinquent subscribers that the deadline for payment is this week, with the accent on today. The largest summer-time subscription in the history of the Guild in Washington has practically exhausted the less expensive seats in the balconies for all evening performances of the six Guild plays next season. With balcony seats for all performances, matinees included, rapidly nearing the vanishing point, subscribers are advised that unredeemed reservations cannot be held later than Saturday of this week, August 19.

The local office of the Theater Guild and American Society, in the National Theater, is open each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday from noon until 6 p. m. Or would you rather stand in those long box-office lines at the National next season, after it is too late, and then not get the seats you want?

Strike while the iron is hot—and I defy any iron to stay cool in weather like this—evidently is what the Loew people always say. With the cheers of his one day in the Capital, last Wednesday, still ringing in many ears, Mickey Rooney is coming back to the screen, at Loew's Columbia, on Friday, in "Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever." Judy Garland isn't in this one, but there are other reasons to remember that she was here, too.

Thirteen-year-old Loyola Ignatius Colburn today is Washington's "Cinderella girl."

This motherless youngster finally was selected by the Variety Club of Washington as the most deserving of a considerable group considered for the trip to Hollywood, with Paramount Pictures and Linda Ware, herself an orphan, as hosts. Linda is cast with Bing Crosby in "The Star Gazer."

Loyola is a student at St. Vincent's Home and School where she has distinguished herself as a prize pupil and student leader. She was born in Georgetown on February 23, 1926, and since her mother's death, seven years ago, has known St. Vincent's as home.

At 11:40 tonight, this lucky young lady will be on her way to Hollywood, where she will join 19 other girls between the ages of 10 and 14 as guests of 14-year-old Linda Ware. Loyola will be accompanied by a companion selected by Sister Angela, director of the St. Vincent's School. She was chosen for the trip by a committee of Variety Club members of which Rudolph Berger, Washington manager for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, was chairman.

It will be possible for some two lucky theatergoers to make a handsome profit out of the "Going Native" revue, opening at Loew's Capitol on Friday. Cards will be supplied all patrons during the engagement on which they may express their views of the seventh edition of the all-Washington stage production and also name their favorite performer appearing in it. After the curtain has rung down on the final performance, two cards will be drawn from the barrel. The patron who casts the first ballot drawn will receive a $150 wrist watch, donated by the Ross Jewelry Co.; the second, a $100 Paul Breguette wrist watch, from the same donors. To the member of the cast receiving the highest number of votes, the Ross Co. will present a handsome trophy.

Speaking of trophies, Chief Barker A. E. Lichtman of the Variety Club probably is planning a trip by now. At the testimonial dinner given him in the Willard Hotel last Friday night, on the occasion of his fiftieth birthday, he was presented with a wrist watch, traveling bag and desk set. I don't know just how the desk set will help, but a wrist watch and bag are handy to have around when catching trains, planes or "thumbing" a truck! There was a considerable cash surplus from the testimonial fund which also was presented to Abe, but with characteristic generosity he immediately turned it into the club's welfare fund, where it "would do more good." Nice gesture, and, as I say, characteristic of the man.

Well, those projection rooms are air-cooled, at any rate. Today at 1:30, the Loew executives are running off "These Glamour Girls" for the edification of the drama desks and tomorrow, at the same hour, the Warners will unspool "The Old Maid" for the same panting band, a print just having dropped in from the West Coast by plane. More of this later, unless that small grease spot on the floor becomes us in the meantime.

Not all of the previews are local, however. Lou Pollock, of the New York office of Universal, western-unions an urgent invitation to join critics from 74 other cities on a junket to Scranton, Pa., to view the premiere of Joe Pasternak's production of "The Under-Pup," in which 11-year-old Gloria Jean is star. Scranton, it seems, is Floria's home town. "Plans provide your arrival New York Wednesday, August 23. Special train to Scranton next day for premiere and returning following day to New York for World's Fair visit and other festivities over week-end and time on your own, if you prefer." Many thanks for throwing temptation in our way.

With the summer Festival at the National Sylvan Theater rapidly waning, the Community Center Department makes known its attractions for the last two Tuesday evenings in August. On August 22, the Troupers of East Washington Community Center will offer "Hail, Nero," and, on August 29, the Players Club of Central Community Center will be seen in an abbreviated version of Shakespeare's "The Merry Wives of Windsor." So now you know.

Returns to City of Stage Debut

RUTH CHATTERTON,

appearing this week as guest star at the Olney Theater in "You Can't Eat the Goldfish," a new comedy presented here prior to Broadway. Miss Chatterton, it will be recalled, made her first stage appearance in Washington with the old Columbia Theater Players and later was associated with Henry Miller in many stage successes, before becoming a top screen star

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Aug. 14.

THE GHOSTS of Broadway took their places in Broadway's summer-parade last night, and in the early hours of a Manhattan dawn the procession marched the Gray Watch, living again the glories of the past.

Their tread was soft, this summer morn, as they sought the forgotten paths that rest alone in memories. Down through the years, to that dull fortress that nestled at the foot of Manhattan, and now is the Aquarium. Back to its day when Jenny Lind got $1,000 a night at a performance for which New Yorkers paid $225 a seat . . . Where John Wilkes Booth played "Julius Caesar" just a few weeks before he shot Lincoln.

A STRANGE office edifice at 222 Broadway added its records to the ghost review, and again P. T. Barnum introduced Gen. Tom Thumb to his American suckers, and Tony Pastor sang. Gen. Thumb received $3 a week and board for his parents, but protested that even the world's smallest midget couldn't live on that. P. T. was magnanimous and raised the ante to $7.

THE LOFTS of 585 Broadway shed their factoried staidness to become again the Buckley's Hall, which permitted Lillian Russell to make her debut in a touching little ballad entitled "Kiss Me Mother Ere I Die." A few blocks up and around the corner, Hitchcock's Summer Gardens put out its sign that patrons mustn't protest at the 6-cent admission for the show and free refreshments.

THEY PARADED to the dark of Chatham Street, on the grounds of Roosevelt and James, into the lone building where Edwin Booth made his first appearance and played Wilfred to his father's "Sir Edward Mortimer" in the memorable "Iron Chest" melodrama . . . Niblo's Garden, at Broadway and Prince Street, sent Raymond Hitchcock from his supporting role in "My Aunt Bridget" once more to enter the Atlantic Gardens at 50 Bowery and be the first ever to point to a drunk lying under a table and tell the bartender: "Hey, you, give me some o' that."

MARTIN'S and the old Waldorf's Peacock Alley, where Charles de Kay feared to place his unpolished shoes outside the door, lest he find his footwear gilded. Jim Keene and George Luks, reminiscing over Mrs. Taft's retort to the French Ambassador's wife, who had stated "We French excel in politeness" . . . "Yes," Mrs. Taft had replied, "We Americans admit it—and that is our politeness."

THEIR TREAD was soft, this summer morn . . . Shanley's, Jack's and the cocktail hour at Mougin's. The glowing lights of Rector's, where the laughter of Drew and Mizner and Brady echoed through the hallowed halls . . . "You don't drink," Mizner told Diamond Jim, "and you won't eat hay. So you're not fit company for man or beast" . . . Churchill's and Browne's where the priestly David Belasco arrived from California to win Frohman's acclaim as "a man who could make a play out of a synopsis of scenes from a playbill."

DeMille Does His Plotting On His Boat

The Seaward, However, Is a Modest Craft, Free of 'Orgies'

By Frederick C. Othman

United Press Hollywood Correspondent

Aboard Schooner Seaward, at sea, Aug. 13.—We went sailing today with Cecil B. DeMille, to discover that a movie maker can't even get privacy in the middle of the Pacific Ocean.

The two-masted Seaward, a schooner which DeMille remodeled into a comfortable home at sea, was cruising in the vicinity of Catalina Island when an excursion boat passed close.

"And that, ladies and gentlemen," boomed a man with a megaphone on the top deck, "is the palatial yacht of the great movie mogul, Cecil B. DeMille."

The passengers crowded the rail to stare.

"They do that all the time," DeMille said. "I suppose they think they'll see a goldplated boat, populated exclusively with beautiful blond women. They always seem a little disappointed when they see nobody but Mrs. DeMille, our business associates, and myself.

"I bought this boat in 1918 and there hasn't been an orgy on it yet."

Chats With Mermaids

About that time a couple of girls swam out from the pier and had a chat with the skipper. They said they'd always wanted to see him up close. He invited them aboard, but the girls were fussed. They swam back, in confusion. DeMille ordered the anchor up and the motors started. He headed for a less populated section of the Pacific.

"A peculiar thing happened this morning," he said. "I like charcoal broiled steaks for breakfast, so the cook was cooking them on a special broiler, from which smoke and flames were shooting. I was on deck doing my setting-up exercises.

"Soon sirens began to blow and the fireboat came out. I never saw such an expression on a man's face as I did on that of the chief. He thought my ship was on fire and that I was manning the pumps. So I calmed him down.

"And in a few minutes another boat appeared. It was from the Standard Oil Co. Its man said he had a monopoly of oil at the island and he wanted to know what kind of fuel I was using. I told him charcoal and asked him did he have any for sale. So he went away, fuming."

Not So Luxurious

Aboard the Seaward, which incidentally is not nearly so luxurious as the movie magazines have indicated, were DeMille, his wife, Bill Pine, his associate producer; Gladys Rosson, his secretary for 25 years, and ourself.

For a week DeMille has been cruising up and down the coast, thinking about his next movie, which will be a story of the Canadian Mounted Police. It has a first-rate story, and we'd like to tell you about it, but we promised we wouldn't. It seems that everytime DeMille starts a big-time picture, and an inkling of the plot leaks out, some quickie producer tries to jump the gun with a similar movie.

Louella O. Parsons

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Aug. 14 (NEA)—When Mrs. Paul Muni was first approached by Warner Brothers to play in "Two Sons," she wasn't in the least interested for she felt her interest in the movies was only in her husband's work. But the Mother Raviola in the story is so like the Italian mother role she created on the stage in "Four Walls," she finally relented and agreed to make a test.

LOUELLA PARSONS

She will play under her own stage name of Bella Finkel and is insisting that if she accepts Warners offer her husband's name does not enter into the publicity. The mother role is really the feminine lead. She is seen first as a young woman and later as an older woman and is responsible for her son's success. Her brother, Abem Finkel, is writing the adaptation of the original, which John Fante authored. Yesterday there was talk the title might be changed to "Mother Raviola" because of the similarity to Eddie Small's "My Son, My Son."

Lana Turner, who has been working without rest for these many months, collapsed Saturday in the wardrobe department and was taken home. Yesterday her doctor refused to permit her to return to the M-G-M studio until she has recovered from her nervous exhaustion. "Dancing Coed" was held up yesterday pending her recovery. True, Lana has worked hard, but she has played hard, too, and the studio has for a long time tried to urge her not to burn the candle at both ends. She expects to attend "The Wizard of Oz" premiere tomorrow, unless the studio heads insist she stay home and get herself in readiness for the picture which had just started.

If Ruth Collier hadn't met Colleen Murphy and her mother in a local drug store, Colleen's story would have been very different. She came here on speculation to try to get in the movies, but only those who have tried to crash the gates know it's next to impossible to get in without some kind of introduction. Colleen was about to return home when Ruth saw her and took her to Republic Studio. She was tested and given the lead opposite that handsome gun-toting cowboy, Roy Rogers. So good was the inexperienced youngster that now Republic has signed her on a long-term contract.

Claire Windsor always looks so chic and young, that if some of us didn't know she had a son as tall as she is, we would guess her to be a good 15 years younger than her real age. She's returning to the screen in the Geraldine Spreckles comedy, "The Trail Blazers," in which Fred Keating plays the male lead. I thought, of course, "The Trail Blazers" was a Western, but the Retsama Co., a new corporation, says it deals with the dust bowl area and the migrant situation. Nice Claire is staging a comeback.

Snapshots of Hollywood Collected at Random: Janet Gaynor and Adrian didn't even take the M.-G.-M. Studio into their confidence when they eloped yesterday; rumor is strong June Gale will marry Oscar Levant, famous pianist; even stronger is the gossip that Robert Taplinger and Jinx Falkenberg will shortly make an announcement. Bob and Jinx' whole family ate corned beef and cabbage at the House of Murphy. Ad Randal; and Louise Stanley are now legally free, with a Mexican divorce to make it official; Jock Lawrence is too ill to take the trip East he and Mary planned. He is suffering from nervous exhaustion and will have to rest for several weeks; the Malleu dog show was a great event, with many of the stars and producers turning out for the big dance Saturday night. Cesar Romero and his favorite partner, the oomph gal, were there.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 14.—When I hear some of our picture girls criticizing stage stars, I see red. Especially now, when in all of Hollywood there wasn't one glamour girl willing to fly back to New York and Atlantic City to stand with her fellow members in the Actors' Guild to help keep their union from tieing with others which might have made it a closed shop for the picture business.

HOPPER

You see, they've gained fame the easy way. What with photogenic faces, a smidge of talent, success handed them on a silver platter, they don't know what it means to struggle year after year with one step up on the rung of the ladder, only to have it slip back again. Stars like Katharine Cornell, Larry Tibbett and Tallulah Bankhead didn't attain their success overnight. But through years of knocks and work and worry. Yet they gave up their time and did everything in their power to help the cause. But Hollywood sat on its hilltops and said: "Sorry. We can't take four days away from our suntan, parties, swimming pools and tennis." But how they'll howl if the studios close down and they skip those thousands a week. I'll hand it to Binnie Barnes. She went. And she's an English girl! So did Lucille Gleason, she always does the right thing.

Actor and Restaurateur Bob Murphy says if a strike comes our leading actors should charter the Normandie and take a six-month cruise around the world. Why, Bob, you just know it would come back a battleship!

Bob Taylor showed up on the set with a black eye and took quite a ribbing. Got more when they found the reason. Seems Bob trained his great Dane Hager to jump in the swimming pool and pull people out of the water. So when Bob took a dive, not knowing the dog was near, Hager went after him, gave him a swipe which blacked an eye. First time Hager had a chance to do his stuff. And was he happy?

Sir Cedric Hardwicke was playing billiards with Charles Laughton when he made a terrifically bad shot. Laughton turned around and said: "How do you tell a nobleman he stinks?"

King Farouk's Nephew Here Minus Fanfare

Egyptian Prince Is Interested Merely in Scientific Research

Washington received another royal visitor yesterday, but this time without bringing out the Army or even the keys to the city.

Prince Ahmed Fahkry, nephew of King Farouk of Egypt and grandson of the late King Fuad, arrived at the Wardman Park Hotel in a taxicab, accompanied by his valet, and registered as a resident of Paris, France.

The young prince, who is the son of Mahmoud Fakhry Pasha, Egyptian Ambassador to France, has grown up there during the 16 years his father has held the post, and is now a student at the Ecole Polytechnique.

Remote from the throne in the line of succession and not interested in a diplomatic career, Prince Ahmed is devoting himself to scientific research. On his first visit to America, he expressed admiration for the large scale of American industry, and noted an "entirely different, more objective" attitude toward research in this country.

Of European politics and the danger of war Prince Ahmed said only that France and Egypt are both "extremely calm." "At bottom all wars are social conflicts," he said, "and there is no social conflict to be feared today."

In spite of his aversion to a diplomatic career, the young prince has a diplomat's outlook and courtesy.

"My impressions of America are excellent, to be sure," he said. "I have found the greatest friendship here for my country among your people."

He will return to France in a few days after only three weeks in America, but hopes to come again next year.

Billy Is Afraid Of Wig on Dad

For the first time, 2-year-old Billy Marx, with his mother, the former Susan Fleming of the films, visited his father, Harpo, on a Marx Brothers' picture.

In the menagerie tent for "A Day At the Circus" Billy failed to recognize his father in the red wig and bizarre wardrobe and, clinging to his mother, started to cry.

Instead, he wanted to climb into one of the cages and play with three big "kittens," which happened to be African lions.

Glen Echo Park

Jimmy Livingston, the Spanish Garden's new maestro, took his "bow" with the rest of his fine band last night to the tumultuous applause of a tremendous gathering of feminine enthusiasts. Last night, Jimmy's opening night, was ladies' night. Ladies were the guests and Jimmy was the proud host.

Having come to Washington, this time, straight from a ten-month engagement at famous Murray's Restaurant, in New York City, Jimmy was welcomed by his host of friends—friends who have come to know Jimmy's music through his many radio dance engagements over Columbia, N. B. C. and Mutual networks.

Jimmy and his youthful group of musicians have brought a wealth of entertainment to Glen Echo. With four featured vocalists, the orchestra uses every popular glee club arrangement. The ballads were handled by the fine tenor voice of Nolan Canova, and the rich baritone of Jack Crawley. Jimmy sang with the band and with the three C's composed of Canova, Crawley and Cole.

Study of Co-operatives Urged as Means of Economic Democracy

The assertion that co-operatives are economic democracy and that this counry will never have a really working democracy "until we have an economic democracy," was made by the Rev. G. A. McDonald, S. J., yesterday at the close of the first session of the six-day Washington Summer School of Catholic Action.

He urged study of co-operative methods, telling the younger members of the class to form committees in their schools to further study on the subject. Other nations, to his regret, he said, are getting ahead of the United States in this field.

500 Attend School

Bringing together aproximately 500 persons from 24 States and Canada, the school was opened yesterday morning on the theme of "Six Days that Turn Faith Into Action." The school offers five regular and 25 elective courses, taught by 20 priests. The school is sponsored by the Sodality of Our Lady and is being held in the Mayflower Hotel. This is its second year in Washington.

Father McDonald speaks again today on the subject of leadership and co-operatives. He is associate editor of The Queen's Work and an authority on economics.

Father Daniel A. Lord, S. J., general director of the school, told the students that leaders are not the publicized "big" men so often followed, but rather are relatively unknowns "with courage to be different."

"We too often get a mistaken picture of a leader," he said. "We think that he is a big man riding a horse, drawing millions after him." But the real leaders, he continued, "are few in fame and are relatively unknown."

Modern Literature Discussed

Modern literature was discussed by Father Herbert O'H. Walker, S. J., art and literary editor of The Queen's Work. Father Edward Dowling, S. J., an authority on Catholic political problems, told how Heywood Broun, columnist, was converted to Catholicism.

"In a name-calling period, when the left wing views the right winger as a person who, on the morning of creation, would cry out, 'Let us not disturb chaos,' and the right wing views the left winger as a bug-eyed fanatic beaming with the memory of tomorrow afternoon, Heywood Broun's step is a healthy and delightful shock," he said.

John Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath" brought from Father Walker the assertion that "Steinbeck defeats his purpose because his language shocks too many influential people from reading further into the problem." But, he said, the book called attention to the hitherto ignored problem of migrant labor. He described the sensational novel as "Tobacco Road in a Jallopy."

Lower Voting Age Urged

Father Dowling introduced the idea of relaxing the legal voting age. He saw a lowering to 18 as an immediate necessity.

The schools have been held this summer in San Antonio and Denver under the direction of Father Lord and his staff. Subsequent sessions will be held at Fordham University and in Chicago.

800 Put to Work On NewRelief Plan In Pennsylvania

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 14 (AP).—Eight hundred unemployed "breadwinners" in Pennsylvania were called to jobs today under the State's new "work-or-get-off-relief" program.

Forty-seven projects sponsored by municipalities, governmental agencies and institutions—but not of the type that could be handled by WPA, PWA or private enterprise—were set up as a part of the State's effort to get something for its money.

Eventually the Commonwealth expects to put approximately 200,000 able-bodied relief recipients to work under the plan which requires employables receiving direct relief to take a job if one can be found.

School house painting, landscaping, ditch clearing, weed cutting and road repairing comprise most of the first projects for the "work-for-relief" system. Workers will receive "prevailing wages"—about 30 to 50 cents an hour for common labor—and will work only as long as necessary to earn regular weekly relief check.

Jo Ann Dances In Laraine's Play

The production of Laraine Day's first play by a Los Angeles Little Theater group will also give stage opportunity to Jo Ann Sayers, young actress.

The play, "The Story of Cinderella," a musical written in verse, will be presented by the Willshire Theater Guild. Miss Sayers, who appeared in the Crime Does Not Pay short, "Think First," with Miss Day, will stage the dances.

Divorcing Wife, In Mate's Home, Wins Support

Living in Same House Not Necessarily Living Together, Court Holds

A woman living under the same roof as her husband is entitled to claim separate maintenance during a suit for limited divorce, Justice Rutledge ruled yesterday in the Court of Appeals.

Helen O. Pedersen, whose motion for maintenance during her suit for divorce from Aksel Pedersen was denied by the District Court on November 7, 1938, gained yesterday a reversal of the order from the higher court, although she has continued to live in a house she owns jointly with her husband since before the suit was filed. They live at 3337 Rittenhouse street northwest.

"Continued residence in the same dwelling . . . is not, in itself, a criterion" of living together "as husband and wife," the court held. "Men and women may live as strangers, even as enemies, more separately, more contentiously, more violently, under a single roof than under two."

The court found that Pedersen, a 51-year-old patent lawyer whose income last year was said to be more than $4,000, controlled all household expenses himself "on the 'hand-out' theory of marriage," giving his wife occasional sums up to $5 weekly to supply her clothing, transportation, maid, and "other necessaries of living in a modern city."

Mrs. Pedersen, who is 48, was declared to be without money of her own and with "no, or little, earning capacity." "To compel her, in order to avoid condoning her husband's offense or submitting absolutely to his hostile will in the matter of her maintenance, to leave the only shelter she has . . . would be both unjust and contrary to settled law," stated Justice Rutledge.

Chief Justice Groner and Justice Miller heard the case with Justice Rutledge.

Midget Studies to Get His Diploma

Jerry Marenghi, 3-foot 6-inch midget, who left high school in Boston two months before his graduation to play in, "The Wizard of Oz," is studying in his spare time on the set of the Marx Brothers' starrer, "A Day at the Circus" so that he can take the examinations by mail and get his diploma.

Green Is Hopeful of Peaceful Settlement in Actors' Civil War

A. F. L. Chieftain, However, Indicates Negotiations Are Still in Embryo Stage and Will Continue Into Next Week

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 14.—Negotiations for settlement of the civil war between various unions of stage, screen, vaudeville and other branches of the acting profession continued tonight and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, indicated that there might not be a final settlement for some time.

"There is a strong possibility of these negotiations continuing into next week," he said at the end of the session before the A. F. of L. executive council today. "That is, unless we go into night sessions immediately."

The quarrel is between the Associated Actors and Artists of America, parent body of a group of 11 unions, and the American Feedration of Actors, a union of night club and vaudeville actors headed by Sophie Tucker.

When the A. A. A. A. recently suspended the A. F. A. because they charged their leaders with mismanagement, the suepended union was immediately given a new charter by the I. A. T. S. E., the Stage Hands' International, causing a jurisdictional squabble.

"We are trying to reconcile the conflicting factions to accept a plan of peaceful procedure," Green said. "We hope to receive a final report on the negotiations, but not a settlement, late tomorrow.

"There has been no thought about settling the problem by issuing a separate charter to the A. F. A. so that it would be a unit separate from both the A. A. A. A. and the I. A. T. S. E. Outside there have been a number of plans and solutions reported but none of them have been brought up in the negotiations. We are trying to iron out the trouble here in negotiations and I am hopeful that we can do that."

Mrs. Wendelken's Funeral Services To Be Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Freta Kathleen Wendelken, who died Sunday at her home, 5912 Nevada avenue northwest, will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m., at Mount Pleasant Congregational Church. Interment will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Coming tot Washington in 1915 from Marietta, Ohio, Mrs. Wendelken, then Miss Freta Jewell, was engaged in secretarial work for the United States Public Health Service. In 1917, she married Clyde Wendelken, attorney for the United States Public Health erviec

Besides her husband, Mrs. Wendelken leaves a son, Clyde, jr.; three sisters, Mrs. Lyle O. Cook, Washington; Mrs. Leslie Taylor, Portsmouth, Ohio, and Mrs. Margaret Montgomery, Sharpsburg, Ohio; two brothers, Don W. Jewell, of Portsmouth, nad George E. Jewell, of Cambridge, Ohoi.

Youth Rescues Friend in Quarry

John Hino, 17, of 2808 N street northwest, was at home yesterday after having saved David Noland, 22, of Bolivar, W. Va(from drowning in a 60-foot quarry near the Hino summer home at Harpers Ferry, W. Va.. Noland slipped from a rock and gashed his head in the water. Hino, with whom he was swimming, pulled him ashore.

John works for the American Security & Trust Co., in Washington. Last year he attended George Washington University.

James Harvey Rogers

An unusually interesting life was brought to an untimely close when the crash of a Pan-American plane at Rio de Janeiro on Sunday claimed Prof. James Harvey Rogers as one of its victims.

In a period increasingly characterized by a mania for classifying individuals Prof. Rogers was able to participate actively in the hurly-burly, and yet consistently to avoid definition as "liberal" or "conservative," as New Dealer or economic royalist. As soon as he seemed neatly docketed in one category he would slip elusively into the opposite camp. And, what is more to the point, he derived rare enjoyment from thus shaking friends and mystifying people.

It was this puck-like and seemingly mercurial quality in the South Carolina economist which made him a great teacher—greater as teacher than as economist it may be parenthetically asserted. To Prof. Rogers the stimulation of mental curiosity was always the important objective. The line which that curiosity followed, when once aroused, was of secondary importance. And like other devotees of the dismal science—the case of Stephen Leacock springs to mind—this Yale professor was keenly aware that as a saving grace humor has no rivals.

Undoubtedly his keen sense of humor, plus his congenital inability to take self-righteousness seriously, were instrumental in widening the breach between this erstwhile braintruster and the more devout participants in the New Deal's Messianic complex. Prof. Rogers, along with Prof. George F. Warren—that real "forgotten man"—was a very instrumental person in the days when the aim was to synthesize devaluation and stabilization of the dollar. But after that his contacts with the White House were allowed to rust.

The split, complete of late years, can be measured from the time when, in December, 1933, Prof. Rogers issued a public warning against the "unfortunately high wages" which even then were being paid recipients of work-relief. At that early stage he warned Harry Hopkins that the "prevailing wage" and similar relief policies would "increase unemployment faster than you can relieve it." The event has shown how profoundly right, in this respect, Prof. Rogers was.

For this iconoclasm, and others, James Harvey Rogers laid his early rating as a 100 per cent "liberal" open to grim suspicion. It is not of record that he was worried thereby. What happened was that his long-standing interest in Pareto, the great Italian philosopher, became more pronounced. He drank more deeply of the thought of one who, like Spengler, has influenced the lives of millions totally unfamiliar with these names.

And now, short of his fifty-third birthday, James Harvey Rogers has gone to learn what lies behind the dusty social arena in which he fought, but where his active mind was never wholly compassed.

Another Act

"Candid" is the order of the day. Candid camera shots and interviews with famous personalities that reveal what they do, eat, think and say when out of the limelight are all part of the current vogue. Particularly is this true of stage and screen luminaries, very few of whom dare risk public displeasure by calling their private lives their own.

Apparently the public wants to be assured that these distant and beautiful creatures are human, leading much the same sort of lives, confronted with much the same problems, as their admirers. But a much more realistic bit of evidence to this effect than all the posed pictures of stars cooking and sewing at home are the pictures and stories of stars discussing and debating their union problems at the recent A. F. of L. meeting.

Both stage and screen are, and for some time have been, strongly unionized. In these unions supers and stars have joined forces, the stars—some of whom earn thousands of dollars a week—being as acutely aware that they need the union's backing as are their less fortunate associates.

So the day is past when an element of the bizarre could be detected in the appearance of a stage or screen star in the capacity of a labor union representative. To such an extent has the world become organized that the stars who flew from Hollywood probably gained much valuable publicity. Far from detracting from their own reputations, as can be witnessed by the crowds which gathered before the convention headquarters in Atlantic City, they added to the A. F. of L. meeting, even though they appeared there without make-up and in no play-acting mood, the excitement of a Hollywood premiere.

Waning Patience

The demand voiced yesterday by the Acting Secretary of State, for a definitive settlement of the Mexican oil controversy, suggests that the limits of the Administration's patience with Mexico's dilatory tactics have about been reached.

Almost 17 months have now elapsed since the Mexican government expropriated the holdings of foreign, including American, oil companies in Mexico. And while Mexico promptly admitted the obligation to reimburse the owners of the expropriated property, subsequent discussions between representatives of the Mexican government and of the oil companies have led nowhere. The result is that Mexico remains in possession of the foreign holdings and the companies have neither their properties nor any portion of the cash equivalent.

Recently the Department of State sought to break this unfortunate deadlock by suggesting a way out of the impasse. It proposed that the management and operation of new companies, which the Mexican government and the oil operators had agreed in principle might be established to operate the seized properties, be turned over temporarily to a neutral board of directors.

The department suggested that this temporary board should be composed of three representatives of the oil companies, three representatives of the Mexican government and three chosen by the two parties from a panel selected by the two governments. All nine members of this proposed board would come from countries other than those whose citizens have a "direct and important interest" in any of the petroleum companies involved.

The plan seems fair and reasonable. Unfortunately, it has been rejected both by the Mexican government and by the oil companies, whose alternative scheme is for their continued management of the properties under long-term contracts which would pay off the obligation, all claims and interests of the companies to be released to Mexico when this is done. As Mr. Welles points out in his statement, the refusal of the Mexican government to accept either of the arrangements does not in any sense "relieve the Mexican government of its obligations to make prompt, adequate, and effective compensation for the petroleum properties which have been taken, if the expropriation is to be regarded as valid."

In other words, Mexico cannot have it both ways. The United States Government has never disputed her right to expropriate foreign property within her borders. But unless Mexico is willing to pay for the properties seized, which she obviously is not, she cannot turn down reasonable proposals for a settlement.

To fail to do so would, in Mr. Welles' considered language, create a "material barrier" to the maintenance of "close and friendly understanding" between the two nations. And none know better than President Cardenas how wholly unfortunate, for Mexico, the raising of such a barrier would be.

Polarized Diplomacy

It is a far cry from Woodrow Wilson's plea for "open covenants openly arrived at" to the meeting of Joachim von Ribbentrop and Count Ciano at Salzburg and their subsequent talks with Hitler at Berchtesgaden.

These German-Italian conversations were obviously of the utmost importance and will have a vital bearing on the course of events in Europe during the next critical weeks. But outside of those who are completely in the confidence of the Fuehrer and the Duce, at most a bare handful of individuals, no one knows what was agreed upon at these talks.

It is certain, however, that one of the principal subjects of conversation was the question of Danzig, where a tense situation is soon likely to turn either for better or worse. And it is revealed that, preceding the Salzburg and Berchtesgaden talks, Prof. Carl J. Burckhardt, the League High Commissioner for Danzig, was in consultation with Hitler. Since Dr. Burckhardt would never have taken this step without British and French approval, there is here a strong hint of a peaceful solution of the problem which many have feared might lead to a general European war.

It is further no secret that Hitler's ally, Mussolini, has no desire to drag Italy into war in order to win Danzig for Germany, and may therefore be counted upon to support any settlement that leads to an avoidance of hostilities. Equally obvious is the fact that Poland, which is alone no match for Germany, must move very carefully in order to be sure of the Anglo-French support which gives strength to Warsaw's position.

Events will soon show how the evidence—in the case shapes up. In the meantime what is most apparent is the ease with which Hitler has been keeping his own counsel and also keeping the whole world, with the exception of Mussolini, in the dark.

Secret diplomacy is no novelty in Europe or elsewhere. But secret diplomacy conducted under the white light of an organized publicity, which beats upon the counsel chamber but cannot penetrate it, is something new. Power in Europe has become polarized. In the hands of a few men rests the destiny not only of their nations but also, very largely, of the world. Wholly indifferent to surmise and speculation, playing with the fate of millions as other men play at cards, they speak their minds only as, and to the extent, that it suits their purpose to do so.

"And Sudden Death—"

The horoscopes are said to show that the condition of the heavens in the recent week-end held disturbing auguries for those whose destinies are governed by the Crab, the Lion and the Ram—approximately one-fourth of mankind. Astrologers were advising those under these signs to lie as low as possible. But you had better form your own opinion as to whether or not the stars afford any explanation of the terrible succession of disasters reported in yesterday's newspapers.

Most fantastic of all seems the wreck in the Nevada desert of the Southern Pacific's streamlined flier in which at least a score of persons died and nearly six times that number were injured. Railroad and civil authorities are agreed that the wreck was no accident, but the carefully planned deed of someone willing to go to considerable labor to move and refasten a 30-foot section of rail. It is easy enough to conclude that this could have been the work only of a madman, yet even madmen have motives of a sort. "Even in evil the soul seeks good." Even to twisted reasoning what possible end could this holocaust have seemed to serve?

There is mystery, too, about the death of 14 persons in the Pan-American airliner which crashed on Sunday in the harbor of Rio de Janeiro. The landing conditions appear to have been favorable and the pilot, killed with the rest, was deemed one of the most skillful and experienced in the service. It was the second big American air disaster in slightly more than 48 hours. Friday nine Army men were killed when a huge Douglas bomber plunged at Langley Field.

At Fort Knox, Ky., an artillery shell exploded in a battery street—where it had no business to be—killing six National Guardsmen who were within a 50-foot radius. On an elevated section of track near Coney Island, N. Y., a subway express train split a switch and crashed into a signal tower, injuring 21 persons. Here in Washington, Officer Raymond E. Grant lost his life in the line of routine police duty, one of a number of traffic fatalities in this vicinity.

Very little, perhaps, can be safely deduced from these disasters, except that none of them would or could have occurred a century ago. If our ancestors had far more to fear than we from disease germs—of which they were for the most part unaware—they were at least safe from the dangers that inhere in our mechanical gadgets. If they had more need to pray for deliverance from "plague" and "pestilence," it remains for us to put the emphasis on "sudden death."

A Form Of Piracy

A decision recently handed down in the Federal District Court for the Southern District of New York is a step in the direction of discouraging unauthorized and indiscriminate radio use of phonograph records, without compensation to the artist or the manufacturer.

Phonograph records were never intended for the free use to which they are sometimes put by radio stations. The practice has not merely plagued the recording companies and their contracted artists, but is also said to have cut their profits considerably. Paradoxically enough, too frequent repetition of a record over the air, it has been found, injures rather than promotes its sale. It's the old law of diminishing returns.

Complaints of artists, musicians' unions, and record manufacturers have heretofore gone unheeded. There was no precise legal precedent, and pressure other than moral was difficult to apply. Emboldened radio stations, in some instances, have gone so far as to invite the public to suggest request programs of records; in other instances radio announcers, by carefully worded interpolations, have perhaps not unconsciously created the impression that the artist himself rather than the record was performing.

What may be needed, unless obviated by the current decision, is Congressional enactment to protect artists and disc manufacturers, nationally, in their common-law property rights. It is a protection now afforded in Canada and many other countries.

It is essential that a physician know the financial status of a patient; otherwise he wouldn't know whether to prescribe a vacation or calomel.

Stealing?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Since you gave publicity to a Protestant minister's recent condemnation of stealing when in extreme need, and since you made an indifferent editorial reference thereto in a still later issue of The Post, may I show a defect in the theology of the statement mentioned?

A person who, in the state of extreme necessity, takes as much of another's goods as he actually needs for himself is not guilty of a theft. He is exercising a right accorded him by the law of nature, which law ordains that in extreme necessity all things are common property. In such need the consent of the owner may be presumed. If the owner protests against the thing's being taken, his protest is unreasonable. Hence the taking is not stealing, since theft is "the secret taking of another's goods against his reasonable will."

The four conditions required to justify the taking of another's goods are (a) he who takes must be in extreme need; (b) he must have no other means of livelihood; (c) the owner in question must not be in equal need; (d) and only as much as is absolutely necessary may be taken and there must be the intention to make restitution if it later becomes possible.

To speak of stealing in such an instance is a misuse of the word. The things of this world are destined for men, and when human distribution of such goods cedes to the mortal detriment of men, there is a higher law to protect the unfortunate. There is something wrong in a system that imprisons a poor man for taking a loaf of bread and worships the conscienceless millionaire in all our avenues of publicity.

"Improper Solicitation"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Prompted by subsequent events, I will, with your permission, assume the role of Little Sir Echo and "echo" some additional thoughts about your editorial August 10, "Improper Solicitation."

At his Thursday's press conference, according to newspaper accounts, the Attorney General ruled that action of officials of the Department of Agriculture, in urging employe subscription to a fund, was "perfectly proper." Nowhere in his statement is mention made of "law" or "departmental regulations."

It is presumed that the Cabinet official was speaking in a bipartisan manner and was not attempting an analysis of the law or the departmental regulations on the subject under discussion. The enacted statute reads: "Sec. 1784. No officer, clerk, or employe in the United States Government employ shall at any time solicit contributions from other officers, clerks or employes in the Government service for a gift or present to those in a superior official position . . ." The phraseology does not discriminate as to high-minded purposes of collection, but in very definite language "forbids solicitation."

Likely the respected Attorney General prefers to drop a "hot potato" into the lap of a court of competent jurisdiction—if, as, and when an opinion-seeking issue shall arise for a legal definition.

A Ghost That Cannot Be Laid

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The President of the United States, seeking to stem the tide running at long last so strongly against him, last week with his customary indomitable courage, now vainly employed, brought to the fore his baleful attempt to pack the Supreme Court.

In the oncoming 1940 momentous campaign the spotlight of debate and publicity will reveal again and again the ghastly bones of this Roosevelt tragedy. He must now, as the "attempt and not the deed" confounds him, seek to justify the failure of the greatest and most sinister political effort of his career. The ghost cannot be laid, it must be confronted and outfaced. Hence the President's pronouncement on August 7.

The passing of time but brings out in ever darkening silhouette the true import and character of this measure. As The Washington Post says, "this epic misjudgment hangs forever around the neck of the man responsible."

What was the character and true import of the President's assault upon the Supreme Court of the United States? Entangled craftily amid other proper proposals of reform, it thus with subtlety and guile sought to add to the number of justices a sufficient block of new appointees to overturn the interpretation of the Constitution, not only by the court as then constituted but the interpretation by a long line of distinguished jurists through 150 years of adjudication, labors which had established the court by universal acclaim as one of the world's illustrious bodies, an august tribunal.

The professed aim was to secure a court that would reinterpret the primary law of the land. But the actual aim was to set up a tribunal which would not abide by legal interpretation but would stride over the corpse of 150 years of established law and render the decisions the President desired. Legal interpretation would be retained as a fiction, but under its cloak was to be legal legislation. The New Deal plan was to have a rubber stamp Congress pass the legislation prepared for it and then have a rubber stamp court pronounce such acts constitutional.

This court measure was sprung upon the country. It came suddenly, a complete surprise. At once it was attacked, and in a few weeks the specious but false reasons for its enactment were torn to shreds. The veil of sophistry, speciousness, and deceit was rent and fell—to reveal a dire attack upon the Constitution and the Great Court it established.

When confronted with the fact, clear as crystal, that the end thus sought could not be obtained by reinterpretation but only by amendment of the Constiution, the President made a fatal admission. He stated that amendment was too slow a process. This admission sealed the doom of his swart offspring, "rigged i' th' eclipse." It stamped the chief magistrate of the Nation as advocating and planning the abandonment of constitutional government.

No glozing words of reverence for the Constitution of the United States, no mouth-honor, can counteract the President's avowed design. He claimed that the overwhelming electoral vote of 1936 gave him a mandate to carry out his policies. But by no twisted, tortuous reasoning could that mandate be construed as leave to undermine the great charter of American law and liberty.

The arrogant effort so to construe it was conceived in secrecy and malice, born with a hideous birthmark of misrepresentation and deceit, and died of exposure. The attempt by such means to rule extra-constitutionally, the dark and devious methods surrounding it, have cast a stain upon the official character of President Roosevelt that the multitudinous seas can never wash out.

Doubts Thorning's Facts

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of March 15, Dr. Joseph F. Thorning wrote as follows regarding the Spanish writer Ernesto Gimenez Caballero: "Numerous commentators have overlooked the fact that the deposed Falange official, Gimenez Caballero, who boasted of his anti-Semitism and attempted to lead a movement similar to that of Hitlerite Germany, was soon arrested, tried and sentenced to jail. Senor Caballero is a totally discredited would-be Nazi, whose fate is an object lession and warning to any other potential 'little Hitlers' in Spain who might be tempted to worship false gods."

To keep the record straight, may I point out that Giminez Caballero, far from being discredited, has lately been extremely active in the Falangist fight against the Carlists of Navarre. Late in May, Giminez Caballero was leading a Falangist newspaper attack on the Navarese defense of their ancient fueros. On June 3 of this year, on the anniversary of the death of Gen. Mola, he delivered over Radio-Nacional a vigorous address in which he praised the Navarre of the Franco movement and condemned the Navarre which supported the fueros.

This attack brought an instant reply from Carlist leaders in both Navarre and Alava and on June 7, Gimenez Caballero defended his position in his usual extravagant rhetoric in an article in the San Sebastian newspaper Diario Vasco.

This activity, obviously, is not that of a discredited imprisoned man but that of an active agent of Spanish fascism fighting against Spanish traditionalism.

The Lewis Outburst

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Since John L. Lewis poured the vials of his wrath upon the Vice President of the United States, by calling him a "labor-baiting, poker-playing, whisky-drinking, evil old man," there has been considerable speculation as to what was Mr. Lewis' underlying motive. Many people believe that Mr. Lewis simply lost his temper and said things he would not have given vent to had he taken a few minutes to think.

But there is serious question as to whether this is true. Mr. Lewis is well known as a bluffer, but his blusters are usually timed to do what he considers the most good for Lewis. Furthermore, he knew he would be questioned before the Labor Committee and had plenty of time in advance to decide what he wanted to say, or to say what someone else wanted him to say. His expletives were so incisive that Mr. Lewis surely must have been thinking over his questions in advance.

However, it is not so much his immediate emanations that are important, but what they signify. Like many other anti-American agitators, Mr. Lewis is teaching a dangerous doctrine—the doctrine of hate. Recently a Mrs. Davis of Alexandria, Va., voiced it in a letter to The Post when she stated in effect that Mr. Lewis was merely speaking the thoughts of the exploited against their enemies.

I venture to say that Mrs. Davis cannot define either the exploited masses or their enemies. At any rate, to teach part of the people that the remainder are their enemies is a menace to the life of any democracy, and those who parrot the words placed in their mouths by those more astute than they, are digging their own graves first.

The Post Impressionist

Roadsides In August

THE SIGHT is familiar to you. You've been inspecting a lot of such roadsides, and don't tell me differently. Maybe you are not conscious of having seen them or their adornments, but they are all engraved on your subconscious and will probably pop again and make you wonder if you had lived a life previous to this Hatch bill age.

Back in the horse-and-buggy era you went places. Now you just ride. Formerly we drove the 7 miles to Centerville and knew for weeks afterward we had done so. Now all the best of us know is that we rode No. 240 awhile and bore left on No. 40, finally winding up on No. 1 or No. 50. Where had we been? Why didn't I just tell you we'd been on 240, 40, some other numbers and then 1? Whadda ya mean where had we been?

Recently we drove to Bedford Springs, Pa. I know that was the place, for that was where an industrial organization had coagulated for one of these "we have with us tonight" affairs, and we were participants. Places naturally intervened between Bedford Springs and Washington. If you'll look at a road map, you'll find the places. Motorists don't. People who drive nowadays see a town in the distance. One of the passengers will say, "That's a nice-looking place ahead of us," and somebody else will immediately respond, "Yes, wasn't it?" It is nothing unusual for specially polite people to slow down to 60 in passing through a 25-speed-limit town. Such condescension is regarded as a distinct favor to the community so passed through.

In the mountains the drivers of high-powered cars watch eagerly for the signs, "Dangerous Hill. Go Into Second Gear. This, to the average driver, presages a wild race in high gear with floored throttle down the succession of snake bends beyond the apex, taking almost invariably the wrong side at the hairpin turns. These things lend zest and zip to life, and often a messed-up terminus to same.

But I was about to speak of roadsides, I believe. Just now, in the month of August, when nature is beginning slightly to yawn with ennui before getting ready for the drowsy twilight preparatory to her winter's sleep, you see many things characteristic of the season, especially in the mountains where flowers run riot, veritable acres of golden glow and petunias and nicotiana and gladioli and zinnias. Where the cultivated blooms have strayed away in bypaths and played hooky from the trammels of civilization, they associate on terms of intimacy with queen's lace and yarrow and blackeyed susans—the commingling of the wild and the tame lends picturesqueness and interest to many a semi-neglected roadside drop curtain.

Residents of the lowlands about Washington who have struggled and fought bugs and coddled garden pests by feeding them various forms of insect powder, who have been discouraged by finding how much more quickly a bug or a worm can destroy a plant than you can raise it—people who have had that disheartening experience near sea level turn green with envy when they see the flowers among the high hills of Maryland and Pennsylvania.

In the Blue Ridge phlox loves flamboyantly to strut its tawdry stuff, and there isn't a sign of any sort of mildew or blight on it. Same way with petunias and marigolds—the latter, however, aren't so very bug-pestered anywhere. The dogged things—unless you've got onto the stinkless variety—have an odor that would nauseate a bug.

Here and there are cornfields in various stages of development, if you are not going too fast to see them. The average motorist travels so rapidly that if there were a cornfield and a bean field by the roadside half a mile apart he would think it was a field of succotash he had passed. Buckwheat occasionally pops up as you climb to the high levels—fields of bee-encrusted and hum-haunted snow—from which some of our best and darkest honey comes. The shorter and untasselled corn is too young to have a chance to mature before the six-weeks-till-frost prophecy of the katydids shall have been fulfilled.

Here and there is a wheatfield or oatsfield in which the dead crop still stands—too much WPA'ing to get it harvested. Close by the big barns stand the new straw-stacks—the barn roof still bearing the chaff that drifted there from the stacker—showing that some wheat is still harvested and threshed. Now and then you see a dust-cloud in a fallow or plowed field, showing that team or a tractor is at work there plowing or harrowing. Many of the processes of the old-time farm continue in spite of—well, just in spite of. The orchards are laden with apples beginning to ripen, the leaves bottle-greenish from the sprayer. Wineglass elms, hickories and unbelievably beautiful oaks and maples and tulips stand and dream of the loss of their leaves last fall and the miraculous replacement in the spring—a deciduous tree cannot lose hope unless it first loses memory.

And all this out of the merest tail of a driver's eye. He must keep his sight glued to the black ribbon or the white cement slab in front of him, always alert for the congenital fool he can be sure he will meet just around the next bend or who is behind him looking for a sharp turn or a peaked hill on which to pass.

Yet there are roadsides in August; roadsides literally littered with beauty and an infinite variety of interest. These definitely wonderful machines the motor manufacturers have evolved for us were meant to enable us to see comfortably and with some degree of leisure these beauties—believe it or not. And some folks still use the aforesaid devices for the purpose.

Roosevelt's Build-Ups

By Mark Sullivan

Strategy Questioned

OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S threat to the Democrats — if you nominate a conservative or a straddlebug, I'll take a walk — this can be said: If he wants the nomination for some New Dealer other than himself, his action is good enough politics. But if he wants a third term himself, his threat is not good strategy.

Nobody in recent years ever got the Presidency — first term, or second, or third — by issuing a threat to, or otherwise attacking half his party. Men have got the nomination that way — but not the Presidency. Bryan, to one degree or another, got all three of his nominations after attacking and threatening the conservative wing of his party. But Bryan never got the Presidency—for the reason that the Democrats he had attacked and angered voted against him. They voted the Republican ticket or, in the case of Bryan's first nomination, formed a third party.

Of all this, Mr. Roosevelt must be aware. He must know it as a matter of history, and if not, he or anyone else can figure it out for himself. So much is this true that Mr. Roosevelt's recent action seems to the present writer to have evidential weight that in his private mind he does not expect to try for a third term. By threat tactics he might conceivably get the nomination—but it is hardly likely Mr. Roosevelt, after serving two terms, wants a third nomination if it is fairly clear he can't be elected.

However, assume Mr. Roosevelt has the other wish, the wish to get the nomination for some New Dealer other than himself. For that purpose, Mr. Roosevelt's threat is good enough strategy. A President in office seeking nomination, not for himself but for another, may be helped by an attitude of holding a stick over the other wing of his party. When Theodore Roosevelt was in office and wanted the Republican nomination for a member of his Cabinet, Taft, he was helped in that course by his attitude of attack upon the conservative wing of his party. For that matter, any President in office should be able to get the nomination for a man of his choice, if he tries hard enough.

President Has Tried To Build Up Many

YES, IF Mr. Roosevelt wants to nominate some New Dealer of his choice, he is favored by precedent and most of the other conditions. And his recent threat is good strategy to that end. Nevertheless he has a most embarrassing handicap. He may have the power to nominate—but he has no one to nominate, though he has tried hard to find one.

Mr. Roosevelt, or his New Deal lieutenants, or both, have tried to build up New Dealer after New Dealer. They tried to build up Mr. Harry Hopkins, but he fell down through disadvantage that accrued to his leadership of WPA.

They tried for a time to build up Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace, but he was made unavailable through failure after failure of the gadgets he tried on the farm problem. Today, prices of most farm crops are actually lower than they were when Mr. Roosevelt, during the first year of his Presidency, said: "raise them we will."

They started to build up Mr. Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme Court, but that came to a sudden stop. Washington gossip says Mr. Douglas stopped it in person, with some heat—he was not going to have his decisions on the Supreme Court tainted by suspicion of a political motive.

President In Saddle But Lacks A Horse

They tried to build up Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson. Part of that build-up, as planned, was to have Mr. Jackson nominated for Governor of New York in 1938. He was not nominated, and for that the New Dealers put some blame on Mr. Farley.

Actually, it was probably the best favor Mr. Farley could possibly have done the New Dealers. Had Mr. Jackson been nominated as Democratic candidate for Governor of New York in 1938, he would have been defeated. Mr. Lehman, who was nominated, won the election by only 64,394 votes, and everybody knows that Mr. Lehman, already a popular Governor, got hundreds of thousands of votes Mr. Jackson would not have got.

Had Mr. Jackson been nominated for Governor, and been defeated, as undoubtedly he would have been, New York would have been added to the list of States that swung into the Republican column in 1938. Also, Mr. Dewey would be Governor of New York, and the whole national political picture would be different, to the disadvantage of the New Dealers.

Every effort the New Dealers have made to build up one of their own has fallen down. Today, there is not one New Dealer, other than Mr. Roosevelt, who is regarded as having the faintest momentum toward the Presidential nomination. According to Washington gossip, those who are aware of this include Mr. Roosevelt himself. Gossip reports him as saying to callers that maybe some New Deal dark horse will turn up. But it's rather late for that.

In terms of horse analogies, Mr. Roosevelt, as respects nominating a New Dealer, is in a classic position. He is in the saddle and he holds the reins. All he lacks is a horse.

Mr. Roosevelt could probably nominate himself, but with greater certainly would lose the election—and therefore is not likely to take the nomination. He could nominate another New Dealer—but has not one to nominate. Under the circumstances, about all that Mr. Roosevelt can salvage from the situation is a compromise with the regular Democrats. And his recent threat was probably an opening move toward that outcome.

Texas Shuts Down 87,000 Oil Wells

Other States Expected To Join Drive to Stop Price Slashes

By the Associated Press

Austin, Tex., Aug 14.—Broad hints other States would follow the lead of Texas and order oil production halted came tonight in the wake of a drastic 15-day closing order affecting virtually all of the 87,000 wells in the Nation's largest oil-producing State.

The Texas action, effective at 7 a. m. tomorrow, followed five days of stormy unrest among producers disturbed by sharp cuts in the price of crude posted by purchasing companies. It was ordered by the Texas railroad commission, regulator of the State's oil industry.

Members of the interstate oil compact commission meet at Oklahoma City tomorrow to consider the situation, and Chairman Ernest O. Thompson, also a member of the Texas railroad commission, declared:

"I am very hopeful other States will follow Texas' lead throughout the midcontinent area."

Oklahoma to "Go Along"

Chairman Lon Smith, of the railroad commission, quoted A. S. J. Shaw, chairman of the Oklahoma corporation commission, as saying Oklahoma would "go along" with Texas.

Gov. John E. Miles, of New Mexico, said he would stand behind any move of compact States to "protect the oil price structure."

Gov. Payne Ratner of Kansas called a meeting of the Kansas corporation commission to consider stabilizing plans for presentation to the compact commission.

Smith asserted the supervisor of production in Arkansas telephoned Texas commission engineers for a copy of the shutdown order so a similar one could be written for Arkansas.

The situation was studied by Ernest S. Clements, Louisiana conservation commissioner, but he said he would take no action until after a conference with Gov. Earl K. Long.

Price Restorations Pondered

Beyond the question of further shutdowns, oil men pondered whether the major oil companies would be forced to restore the prices and whether legality of the order would be attacked.

Chief impediment to a general shutdown by all the States was competition for markets among the States, in the opinion of observers. States which closed faced the possibility of losing customers to States which did not.

Texas production currently is about 1,400,000 barrels a day. The State has approximately 87,000 producing well, but exemptions from the shutdown will be authorized for certain operating conditions, such as excess water flow.

Employment Unaffected

Railroad commissioners said they believed no unemployment among the producing industry's 100,000 laborers would result because wells would need substantially the same attention as if they were producing.

Smith declared the order would be extended if conditions necessitated and that it was with this understanding the shut-down had been ordered.

Middlesex, Keswick Shows Are Carded

Richmond, Va., Aug. 14 (AP).—Two horse shows, expected to attract numerous sportsmen from along the seaboard are scheduled August 19 and 26.

The first of the shows the Middlesex County Horse Show will hold its second annual meeting at Stove Point near Deltaville.

The Keswick Hunt Club will hold its annual show Saturday, August 26, at Keswick. Many of the State's best hunters and jumpers will compete in the two shows.

Winchester Seeks Route 45 Highway Link

Richmond, Va., Aug. 14 (AP).—State Senator T. Russell Cather, of Winchester, asked Highway Commissioner Henry G. Shirley today to build a nine-mile road across the northwest corner of Frederick County to connect with Route 45 in West Virginia.

Accompanied by others interested in the development of the connecting link, Cather advanced the proposal as a means of providing a more direct route to Martinsburg, W. Va.

Death Held Suicide

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 14 (AP).—A verdict of suicide was returned today in the shooting of Mrs. Louisa Chisholm, 60, found fatally wounded in a bedroom of her Mount Savage home. Dr. Linne H. Carson, County medical examiner, said Mrs. Chrisholm killed herself with a shotgun.

Some English Attitudes

ARTHUR KOESTLER interviewed the Emir of Transjordania about the troubles in Palestine, and the Emir talked freely. But, before wiring it, Koestler submitted his interview to the prime minister, who argued about each sentence until the statement lost all its flavor.

"You are ripe for Geneva," said Koestler. The prime minister, taking it for a compliment, bowed low.

Koestler is one of 12 writers for English newspapers who contributes to "We Were There" (Putname, $3), a lively and revealing volume patterned somewhat after "We Saw It Happen," on which, a year ago, 13 correspondents of the New York Times collaborated. But Koestler did not mean his remark as a compliment; nor would, probably, any of the other 11 representatives of the London press.

On the other hand, Anthony Eden, who has collected fragments of his speeches, 1924-1938, into a volume entitled "Foreign Affairs" (Harcourt, Brace, $3.50), would bow to such a remark as gravely as did the prime minister of Transjordania. For the one consistent note which runs through his not always consistent expressions of a British attitude is his religious faith in the League of Nations.

"Our problem now closely resembles that which confronted individual countries in respect of their internal order centuries ago," the former foreign minister of England says in a foreword dated April 5, 1939—after Germany had gobbled the last morsels of Czecho-Slovakia. "The warring barons of medieval times virtually destroyed themselves on behalf of the rival houses of York and Lancaster. Exhausted, they had in the end to accept the rule of law of some authority greater than any one of them. So it is with the nations now. They must either accept and support the authority of some international order, or they will destroy each other utterly. There is no middle course. The greater power of modern weapons of warfare only serves to make the choice clearer and more menacing."

VERNON BARTLETT, now an independent member of Parliament, is one of the 12 who "was there"—where things happened. He was at Geneva; he calls his essay "One Dream Thing After Another," and he uses "Geneva" as a kind of cuss word. He attributes the sensationalism of some of his colleagues' dispatches from the League capital to the elaborate meaninglessness of official League communiques, prepared less to enlighten than with the deliberate design to conceal difficulties and dissents. But he excepts Anthony Eden from his sweeping condemnation of League politicians. It never occurred to Eden, he says, to treat journalists with flattery, as did Sir John Simon and Ramsay MacDonald; "in Eden's view we were all—ministers, diplomats, experts, secretaries, journalists—working for the same end, and as the result of that view we developed toward him a loyalty to which I know no parallel."

Anthony Eden seemed, a year ago, to be England's white hope. It is difficult, reading these almost prayerful but platitudinous speeches, to understand why. For in retrospect he seems to have been a singularly conventional statesman. "I myself never criticized the Versailles Treaty and our part in it," he once told the House of Commons, because I had some appreciation of the difficulties in which it must have been negotiated." That was always his trouble; he would never criticize sharply because he understood too well the difficulties. He would express his grief at Germany's unilateral repudiation of a treaty, but he would nejther see that the treaty was, from the beginning, bad, nor that Germany's repudiation was a threat to the peace of Europe. It implied, he assured the patient House, "no threat of hostilities!"

He regretted that Germany and Italy ratified the misnamed nonintervention agreement concerning Spain, yet insisted that it had "saved Europe from the gravest risk of a conflict." "Saved" from "conflict" indeed! Perhaps Anthony Eden really did believe that Europe was not in conflict. On July 19, 1937, before he resigned from the Cabinet, he was proclaiming that the prospect for peace in Europe had improved. Within less than two years Austrian, Czecho-Slovak and Spanish republics were all to be murdered.

One wonders, reading these calm discourses, how the illusion ever grew that Anthony Eden was fundamentally different from Neville Chamberlain. The only evident difference seems to be that Anthony Eden never lost his supreme British talent for keeping cool, while Chamberlain at least flew to make his surrenders.

NEWSPAPERMEN are proverbally less clammily cool than statesmen, but the 12 English authors of "We Were There" for the most part maintain the traditional British pose of amused tolerance. O'Dowd Gallagher, youngest of the group (he was born in 1911) tells of covering the war in China for the Daily Express, from the upper floors of Shanghai's luxurious Metropole Hotel. Ion Munro, of the Daily Mail, gives a coolly appreciative account of Mussolini's technique in handling interviewers. Koestler, Hungarian-born, who in pre-Hitler days roamed the world for the Ullstein papers of Germany, paints a melancholy picture of Palestine.

Douglas Reed betrays his real seriousness by taking refuge in the lighter aspects of a foreign correspondent's life, notably his great scoop about the man with bees in his beard. Darsie Gillie tells how he came of age in the newspaper world by happening to be in Warsaw when Pilsudski turned the Polish state upside down; no newspaper had a regular representative in the Polish capital, but Gillie had a space arrangement with the Morning Post.

Denial Natural

ALTHOUGH Bud Ekins of the United Press has been kicked out of Italy there still is ground for hoping that the report which brought on this retaliation is true. The U. P. disseminated in this country a report heard in London that Mussolini had suffered a heart attack. The Duce had faded out of his army maneuvers and the maneuvers themselves were abruptly curtailed, and it must be assumed that if he did have a heart attack Rome would deny it. The denial therefore means nothing, and those who were briefly cheered need not despair on that account.

Not even his reappearance in public need be accepted as complete refutation, although it is, to be sure, slightly depressing, because it is not impossible for persons having cardiac troubles to rebound quickly. Indeed, if he was stricken, his public appearance soon afterward would suggest that he must have another and worse one reasonably soon. Rest and resignation are the remedies commonly prescribed, and if Mussolini denied himself the customary treatment i.. order to make a showing he will have imposed a strain on his heart which will reveal its effect in time.

Meanwhile, it should be kept in mind that under the conditions imposed on foreign correspondents in Italy and Germany, the chances of error are many more than the actual errors would suggest. We do not know the authority for this report, but anyone who knows the personnel and methods of the American press in the foreign field would be tempted to assume that it originated in Rome and was relayed to London, and that the London date line was camouflage.

THE ITALIANS and Germans have a habit of transcribing telephone conversations on wax records so one would guess that the phone was not used in this case. But it would have been possible to whisper the news to some trusted acquaintance leaving Rome for Paris, and for that person to communicate it to the Paris bureau for relay to London. They also have a trick of planting false information with persons who are suspected of having secret dealings with American journalists so that when the reports show up in print they know whom to grab. And they further have a trick of planting propaganda in such a way that a journalist coming upon it thinks he has made a discovery, whereas the same stuff given out as an official release, would be turned down or strongly coppered.

The Italian and German system of censorship, lately adopted by Russia, and in a minor way by President Roosevelt, too, is one of intimidation and harassment as distinguished from the simpler method of examining all dispatches and deleting parts or suppressing all. Under this system, a journalist is held accountable for everything that he sends, but is given no definite understanding of the rules or limits. He never knows when he sends a story whether he will be kicked out with his wife, the canary and the cat, on 24 hours' notice or called over to the press bureau to be lectured or threatened by some swollen little politician.

THIS BUSINESS of calling a foreign journalist on the carpet and warning him time and again that the tone of a story was unfriendly or ruling that the facts were incorrect when the reporter knows they were absolutely true has an effect on the nerves of the victim.

He may become shy and shade his copy so as to avoid offense or, on the contrary, get sore and shoot the works, in which case the fly-cops come around to help him pack his stuff and boot him over the border.

Mr. Roosevelt adopted the harassment and intimidation method recently with Lyle Wilson, the chief of the U. P.'s Washington bureau, lecturing him on one occasion on the tone or treatment of a political article, and denouncing the U. P. for fakery a short time later, in the case of a news item on which the two reporters involved stood pat. If, hereafter, Wilson must honestly report some political development unfavorable to the President, he may be accused of vengefulness. Mr. Roosevelt has put him on the spot.

The removal of Mussolini from the troubled scene just now or soon might be no great boon, because nobody can predict what would happen then. Nevertheless, if he were to dissolve, the democratic peoples, after Monte Cristo, would raise a finger and a cry of "one."

Ordinarily it is in bad taste or worse to exult at such news, and possibly some will stretch that rule to include even Mussolini. But if he was sick can't we at least remark, as Irvin Cobb did when his city editor was ill, "Dear, dear, I hope it is nothing trivial."

Within The Axis

By Barnet Nover

A Roman Trial Balloon

THE RECENT Berchtesgaden parley between Adolf Hitler and Count Ciano, Italy's foreign minister, coming at a time when Europe is teetering between peace and war, has brought into sharp focus the question of German-Italian relations

It is an old axiom in diplomacy that in every alliance there is a horse and there is a rider. In this instance Germany is obviously the rider, Italy the horse. For of the two, Germany is decidedly the dominant partner.

Does this mean that Italy has no choice but to move in the direction that Germany desires, even if it means war? That is not unlikely, in view of the fact that Mussolini has so committed his nation to the axis that he cannot safely withdraw from that combination. Yet it must also be plain to the Duce that a war involving Italy that was wholly made in Germany for Germany's particular ends would be enormously unpopular in Italy and might have dangerous internal repercussions in the Fascist kingdom.

CERTAINLY it is doubtful if there is any great desire in Italy for participation in a war over Danzig. On the contrary, all reports agree that the Italian people are eager to remain at peace and are increasingly irritated by the axis. So far the axis has benefited Germany infinitely more than it has their country.

Were it possbile for Hitler to continue winning victories without war, Mussolini might ultimately benefit. For instance, the destruction of the British-fostered peace bloc in Eastern and Southeastern Europe would leave Great Britain and France in a highly vulnerable position. The enormous strength of the axis on land might then overbalance the preponderance of power possessed by the democratic powers on the sea.

Then Italy, with German support, would be placed in a position where it could successfully put pressure on Great Britain and France for concessions in the Mediterranean.

VICTORIES won by Germany without war are one thing. Going to war on Germany's behalf is, in the eyes of the Italian people and doubtless of their government, quite another.

There is every reason to believe, therefore, that at the Berchtesgaden meeting Mussolini, speaking through Ciano, who was in constant telephonic consultation with him, put pressure on Hitler to seek a peaceful settlement of the Danzig issue.

In this connection, there is that very interesting and revealing trial balloon floated in Rome yesterday.

According to "Italians outside the government," whatever that may mean, Germany and Italy are agreeable to holding a conference with France and Great Britain for the settlement of the German claim to Danzig. To make such a settlement possible, a 30-day truce regarding Danzig would be arranged to permit arrangements for a four-power parley. And after the Danzig agreement had been reached, the conference would be prolonged for consideration of Europe's other outstanding problems.

THE ADVANTAGES that Italy would derive from the application of such a plan is obvious.

In the first place, it would eliminate the possibility of a war over Danzig, a war in which Italy has no desire to participate but into which she would be dragged.

Secondly, it would mean the elimination of Soviet Russia as a factor in European affairs. That objective appeared to have been momentarily achieved at the time of the Munich parley, which also owed something to Mussolini's inspiration, but subsequent developments have brought Moscow very decidedly back into the picture. And with Russia in the picture the peace front is potentially in a position to outweigh the axis.

Thirdly, any settlement of the Danzig issue which to any extent would weaken Poland, would be a step toward the ultimate subjugation of the East European republic and thus toward the destruction of the peace front.

And last but by no means least, the settlement of other European questions which it is assumed would follow the solution of the Danzig problem, would almost necessarily involve concession to Italy.

THE LONDON TIMES has not infrequently been the bellwether of the British foreign policy. Thus, last year, it proclaimed the wisdom and inevitability of the cession of the Sudetenland to Germany at a moment when the British government was still formally uncommitted to any such idea. This week, in commenting on the report that what Germany and Italy desire is peaceful revision of some of the remaining terms of the 1919 settlement, The Times declared:

"If that should be the genuine object of the policy of the two axis countries, they should find readiness to confer among all interested states with obvious indispensable provisos that there must be a prima facie case for modification of present arrangements and that it is fully understood that the changes, if any, are to take place as a result of negotiations and not of force."

As for Danzig, The Times asserted that, "it is not a question about which negotiations are impossible."

ALL THIS IS VAGUE enough to permit of almost any interpretation, but it does suggest a readiness in imporatnt quarters in London to support the kind of plan being floated in Rome.

But what arrangement could be made regarding Danzig that would satisfy Hitler and satisfy Poland too, is not too clear. Hitler wants Danzig because the possession of Danzig and its transformation into a German military pass would place Germany in a position to intimidate, and even strangle, Poland. Resolved to maintain her independence, this is precisely the kind of arrangement which the Warsaw government has hitherto been determined to refuse. So it is too early to consider the Roman reports as revealing the shape of things to come.

Brookland Playground Becomes a Seat of Culture Over Night

FRONT—MARY CURRAN, JEAN CARROLL WILLIAMSON, FRANCES CURRAN, MARY HUMPHRIES. REAR—BETTY ANN ROSE AND ANN HUMPHRIES—DOING THE VIRGINIA REEL.

A PAINLESS pursuit of culture—which was mostly fun—was exemplified by youngsters who turned out for folk dancing, singing and art work at Brookland Playground, Tenth and Monroe streets northwest, yesterday afternoon in the 1939 Summer Cultural Activities Festival.

Few of the children even knew the slightly formidable tile for the event which, to them, was just a chance to practice the pastimes they enjoy most.

The program at Brookland was part of a festival which is being conducted by the District Recreation Department on playgrounds during the remainder of August.

At Brookland a group of girls danced the Virginia reel and enacted a pantomime which they themselves had worked out. A trio, Jean Williamson, Frances Chisari and Betty Ann Ross, sang. Boys and girls displayed the pictures they had painted, their clay modeling and other crafts.

And finally the playground leader, F. H. Coakley, who is a junior at Clemson College, announced that the program was finished because "the red-headed boy who was going to do some imitations stuck a nail in his foot."

Mrs. Elizabeth Giles, one of the supervisors who is making a circuit of the playgrounds during the festival, explained how this business of culture is conducted so the children aren't daunted by it.

"We don't give the children pictures or anything else to copy. We want the activities to be spontaneous and creative, an outgrowth of their own daily experience," she said.

"We want the activities to be so much fun for the participants that they don't have an audience complex; in fact, so they'll hardly notice whether anyone is looking on. We want them to do it for the joy of the thing."

When Mrs. Giles left, she took one piece of art work to represent Brookland in an exhibit from all the playgrounds to be held at the end of the season. It was a painting of a red brick building with merely "John" signed in the corner, for John Duffy.

The girls who carried the heaviest responsibility for the program, by performing in both the folk dances and the pantomime, were Betty Ann Ross, Mary and Ann Humphries, Mary and Frances Curran and Jean Williamson.

The festival program for the remainder of this week will bring exhibits at Bancroft Playground from 1 to 2:30 p. m. today and H. D. Cooke from 2:30 to 5 p. m. today; Wednesday, Van Buren and Orr at 9:30 a. m.; Stanton, Eastern and Elliot at 1 p. m.; Congress Heights and Benning, 2:30 p. m.; Thursday, Ross, 9:30 a. m.; Henry-Polk, 1 p. m.; Thomson, 2:30 p. m.; Friday, Roosevelt and Macfarland, 9:30 to 11 a. m.; Brightwood, 1 to 2:30 p. m.; Hine-Wallach, 2:30 to 5 p. m.

FCC Rebuked; Questioned Court's Power

Appeals Tribunal Holds Law Provides For Legal Procedure

The Federal Communications Commission received a sharp rebuke from the United States Court of Appeals yesterday for advocating a "method of uncontrolled competition that is one way of creating monopolies."

The attack was contained in a decision by Justice Miller upholding the commission's action in granting a license to radio station WMEX, operated in Boston by the Northern Corporation, to increase from 100 to 5,000 watts.

The Yankee Network, Inc., appealed from the decision on the ground that the financial and economic interests of its station, WAAB, would suffer in competition with the more powerful station. The court found the commission had a "substantial basis" for concluding that the new station would have no such effect and therefore dismissed the appeal.

Court's Power Challenged

The commission's claim that the court had no power to hear the appeal was made the basis of an attack on the "arbitrary and uncontrolled exercise of power" that might result if the claim were allowed.

Quoting the Commission's statement that "one of the chief concerns of Congress . . . was to guard against monopolies and to preserve competition" (in passing the Federal communications act), the court commented, "it is difficult to understand how this result could be achieved by deliberately or carelessly licensing so many new competing stations as to destroy already existing ones, and possible the newly created ones as well."

Right to Appeal Cited

"The method of uncontrolled competition argued for by the Commission in the present case," the court contnued, "is in fact one way of creating monopolies. If it were allowed to go on unrestrained, according to its theory of nonreviewable arbitrary power, none but a financial monopoly could safely exist and operate in the radio broadcasting field."

The right of existing licensees to appeal from decisions of the Commission is granted in the Federal communications act, the court ruled, holding to interpret the section any other way would be to "deprive it of meaning and eliminate it from the act."

Notes Threaten Death to Rogge If He Pushes Louisiana Inquiry

to uncover any scandal in this State or any other place. The United States Department of Justice cannot be threatened!" Rogge declared.

NYA Inquiry Ordered

Rogge said he would delay as long as possible plans to return to Washington so he could help catch those who had threatened him.

Meanwhile, in Washington, National Youth Administrator Aubrey Williams announced that he has ordered a thorough investigation of the handling of NYA student funds at Louisiana State University.

He said that his order was motivated by the suicide on August 10 of George Heidelberg, L. S. U. employe designated by that institution to administer student aid funds.

Williams explained that he considered the inquiry necessary to show that the NYA program has been satisfactorily administered. Dr. Floyd Reeves, of the University of Chicago, was asked to make the investigation.

Earlier the Federal grand jury had handed down two indictments charging mail fraud against George Caldwell, former construction supervisor at Louisiana State University, and one indictment charging misuse of Works Progress Administration labor and materials against Eugene Barksdale, Caldwell's assistant who had succeeded him briefly.

Charged With Conspiracy

Caldwell, discharged after Gov. Earl L. Long found he had received a 2 per cent cut on L. S. U.'s $13,500,000 building program, was charged with conspiring with subcontractors to raise their bids so he could pocket the difference, and using the mails to send correspondence and checks in the transactions. Caldwell allegedly received $18,061.65 from such transactions.

Barksdale was accused of using WPA employes as yard boys and carpenters and to make stepping stones for his river camp.

U. S. Incomes Lead World But Edge Falls

U. S. Tops Incomes of 15 Foreign Nations But Recovery Here Lags

New York, Aug. 14.—The United States still led the principal countries of the world in per capita income received in 1937, but its margin of advantage had grown much narrower than it was in 1929, according to a study just completed by the Division of Industrial Economics of the Conference Board.

Per capita income in this country dropped from its all-time high of $854 in 1929 to $356 in 1933, and then rose during the recovery period to $67 in 1937. In dollar terms, the per capita income of Germany rose from $279 in 1929 to 421 in 1937, that of the United Kingdom from $417 to 500, while nearly all other countries made relative gains.

In terms of American dollars, the national income of the United States in 1928 was greater than the aggregate income of the following 15 foreign countries: Australia, Austria, Bulgaria, Canada, Chile, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Hungary, Japan, Norway, the United Kingdom and the U. S. S. R.

During the depression years these 15 countries all suffered serious declines in national income, but their recovery in this respect has been more rapid than that of the United States. By 1936, this country had recovered to only 82 per cent of the 1929 level, while the total of the 15 countries had risen to 113 per cent.

Again, in 1929, the United Kingdom, France and Germany, with a combined population of 150,000,000, received $33,000,000,000 less in national income than the United States, with a population of only 123,000,000. By 1937, the best income year in the United States since 1930, this differential had shrunk to about $9,000,000,000.

It is pointed out in the Board's study, however, that much of the foreign increase has come from economic activity related to preparations for war, and may not represent a real advance in the economic welfare of the population.

Policeman Grant, a member of the force for nearly four years, was the father of two children. He was speeding to a radio alarm of a prowler in the 4300 block of Forest lane northwest, when killed.

Grant, investigators reported, was several feet in front of a scout car driven by Policeman B. T. Chapman. He was hurled to the pavement when his motorcycle slid from under him on a sharp curve.

Chapman took the injured officer to Georgetown Hospital, where he died at 7:30 a. m. Grant, attached to the Seventh Precinct, was appointed a motorcycle officer January 1.

His wife, Mrs. Grace Grant, and two sons, Edward, 3, and Lawrence, 2, survive.

Following the death of Patrolman Grant, the Georgetown Lions Club urged the substitution of scout cars for police motorcycles in Georgetown. Letters recommending the change will be sent to Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, and the Commissioners.

Maj. Brown recommended to District Commissioners that motorcycle policemen be given an additional $120 a year because of the dangerous nature of their assignment. He said no policeman is now assigned to the motorcycle detail unless he asks for the transfer and motorcycle men now are paid $120 a year more than other policemen of equal rank.

Town Planning Ably Set Forth

A new concept of modern community planning which, it is believed, will influence profoundly the building industry, housing design and even the American way of life, is being demonstrated at the New York World's Fair.

This community, representing a segment of a town of 3,500 population, spreads over ten acres and costs in excess of $1,500,000. It is known as the Town of Tomorrow and is planned as an integrated neighborhood—not just a collection of model homes put up by individual exhibitors. The houses have been designed by a group of nationally known residential architects appointed by the world's fair board. They are all fair-built, with manufacturers contributing materials and furnishings and sharing in the cost.

The project has been approved by the producer's council and the manufacturer's housing council. Details were worked out by fair architects and engineers under the direction of the committee on theme of the fair's board of design.

Roosevelt Changes Thanksgiving Date

deduction that it will be an annual custom hereafter."

First One in 1631

The Thanksgiving Day that started all Thanksgiving Days was observed in 1621 by Plymouth colonists in celebration of the completion of their first year on the continent and a good harvest.

Effect of President Roosevelt's change of the date will be most strongly felt by the Nation's football coach to whom it is likely to prove a considerable headache. Many games scheduled for November 30 as "Thanksgiving Day classics" probably will be played on "just another Thursday in November."

Change Opposed at Plymouth

Plymouth, Mass., Aug. 14 (AP).—James Frasier, chairman of the selection of this historic town where Thanksgiving Day was first observed, said tonight he "heartily disapproved" President Roosevelt's announced play to proclaim the November holiday a week early this year.

The town official said he would "place the matter before the selectmen officially," at their next meeting. He declared he was opposed to having Thanksiving Day changed from the traditional last Thursday in November, "because we here in Plymouth consider the day sacred. Plymouth and Thanksgiving are almost synonymous and merchants or no merchants I can't see any reason for changing it."

Italy Guaranteed 1944 Polish Bonds Against Invasion

Special Cable to The Post

Berlin, Aug. 14.—Foreign suggestions the Berchtesgaden meeting of Fuehrer Hitler and Italian Foreign Minister Ciano concerned Italian fears of war over Danzig were given an ironical footnote today.

One foreigner here discovered in the prospectus of a Polish bond issue floated in Italy in 1924, a statement that the loan, maturing in 1944, is guaranteed by the Italian government "in the event Poland is unable to meet service on the issue because of armed invasion."

Meanwhile, the controlled Nazi press angrily denied the Berchtesgaden talks indicated any weakening of Italian support of axis policy.

Old Boat Doomed.

Glasgow, Scotland (AP).—Said to be the oldest steamer in the world, a 129-ton English paddle boat is scheduled to be broken up after 92 years' service. During the World War the vessel, "Premier," served as a British navy launch.

Girl Sues Father To Allow Operation

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 14 (AP).—A 15-year-old girl accused her father today of withholding permission for the appendectomy she must undergo to force her to live with him.

State Supreme Court Justice Clarence MacGregor signed an order directing William C. Holmes, the father, to show cause tomorrow why he should not consent to the operation. A petition filed by counsel for the girl, Teresa Holmes, who lives with an aunt, alleged the consent was refused unless she returns to her father.

Capital Music Lovers Figure In News of Society Circles

Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, at Newport, Hears Works Played at Watergate; Mrs. R. H. Dunlap Back From Europe

By Dudley Harmon

Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, who hates the limelight almost as much as she loves music, did not come to Washington for the playing of two of her compositions by the National Symphony Orchestra at its Watergate Concert on Sunday evening. But at her farm near Newport she listened to the concert by radio, and immediately sent a telegram to Conductor Rudolf Ganz telling him how much she liked the way her works had been played.

Mrs. Howe left for Berry Hill, her Newport place, early in the spring and probably will linger on there until November. She is then expected back in Washington to open her charming, yellow stone house at 1821 H street, almost the last private residence left in a block of apartments and business offices. Incidentally there are two pianos in her living room.

One of Washington's most distinguished composers, Mrs. Howe much prefers to be known simply as Mary Howe, musician, rather than as Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, prominent member of Capital society. Her numerous compositions have won her a name as a true professional, and her works have been played not only by the National Symphony Orchestra, but also by the Philadelphia Symphony, with the famed Leopold Stokowski himself conducting.

Appeared in Concerts While Still Debutante

Music has been a chief interest of Mrs. Howe ever since her hands were big enough to straddle an octave on the piano keys. Born Mary Carlisle, of a well-known Washington family, she was educated in this country and Europe, and studied piano and composition under the best masters. She appeared as a concert pianist while still a debutante, but it wasn't until after her marriage that she began to compose. Between running a house and rearing three children, Mrs. Mrs. Howe has found time to write chamber, orchestral, ballet and so-called "classical" music.

She has done much to further the cause of chamber music in the National Capital, and usually is to be seen at the Friends of Music concerts given throughout the winter at the Library of Congress, and at Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge's famous evenings in the Coolidge Auditorium at the library, when her famous quartet renders distinguished programs. Mrs. Howe is a tireless worker for the National Symphony Orchestra.

Mrs. Edwin Watson Stays in Berkshires

Trickling back to Washington comes news of other prominent Capital residents who are known as musicians, stanch supporters of the local orchestra, or both. Mrs. R. H. Dunlap, who in addition to her interest in music is a novelist of note, arrived on the Queen Mary last week after a stay in France, where she has a small chateau near Paris. She is expected to spend the rest of the summer in the North before returning to Washington.

Mrs. Edwin Watson, who is widely known in music circles as Frances Nash, the pianist, has been at Heath, Mass., in the Berkshires, for several weeks. She and Gen. Watson, who is secretary to the President, are very much interested now in a house they are building on the farm they own near Charlottesville, Va. Though her duties as a popular hostess take up much of her time, Mrs. Watson keeps several hours a day for practicing in her apartment at the Kennedy Warren. When her husband was stationed at the United States Embassy in Belgium, the story goes that Mrs. Watson used to have tea with Queen Elizabeth and then play to her for hours.

Mrs. Tracy Dows, another ardent worker in the interests of the National Symphony Orchestra, has been motoring over from her summer home at Rhinebeck, N. Y., to hear the Boston Symphony Orchestra play at Tanglewood in the beautiful Berkshires. Her son, Olin Dows, accompanies her on these excursions.

Mr. Zilliacus New Attache

Another newcomer to the ever-widening diplomatic circle here is Per Wilhelm Zilliacus, who assumed his duties yesterday as Military Attache at the Finnish Legation.

Mr. Zilliacus, who has taken an apartment at the Shoreham, assumed his first diplomatic post on his arrival in Washington and also became the first Military Attache from Finland to be stationed here.

Timing his arrival in Washington with the military maneuvers at Manassas, Va., to which high military figures of European countries have been invited, Mr. Zilliacus will represent Finland at the maneuvers and plans to go to Manassas the latter part of this week.

Earl Baldwin To Skip Capital

It looks, after all, as though the currently moribund Washington season would not be enlivened by a visit from Earl Baldwin, former Prime Minister of England, and Lady Baldwin, who arrived in New York on Sunday on the liner Britannic to attend the World Congress on Education for Democracy being held this week at Columbia University.

An official of the British Embassy here said that Lord Baldwin would probably skip a visit here and return to England after the conference is over. "Somebody has probably described Washington heat to him," explained the official.

It had been hoped that the Baldwins and Eduard Herriot, formrr French premier, would both include Washington in their itinerary during their stay here. But owing to political uneasiness abroad, M. Herriot canceled his scheduled visit to the World Congress.

Lord and Lady Baldwin are accompanied to the United States by their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Windham Baldwin. The Earl, who was Prime Minister at the time of the abdication, always used to say that his ambition was to "go back to Worcester, read books, live a decent life, and kep pigs," which his retirement now no doubt offers him an opportunity of doing.

Another distinguished Britisher, Sir John Reith, also has left New York without paying the Capital a visit. He is now in Montreal and will visit Quebec before returning to London. He was met on his recent arrival in New York by Group Capt. G. C. Pirie, Air Attache of the British Embassy.

The embassy has not yet received word when to expect Lord Lothian, who will succeed Sir Ronald Lindsey as ambassador.

Senator Gives Birthday Party for Mrs. Nye

Mrs. Gerald P. Nye was honored at a surprise birthday party last evening when Senator Nye entertained a company of 12 on the Terrace of the Shoreham.

In the party also were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bates, Mr. and Mrs. Ben T. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Wirth and Mr. and Mrs. George W. Collins.

Jean de Sibours Will Leave Soon On Vacation Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Jean de Sibour will leave shortly for a vacation whichc will last until after Labor Day. They will visit the New York World's Fair and then motor to stay with Mrs. Reverdy Wadsworth, daughter of Mrs. Henry Latrobe Roosevelt, at her home in Geneseo, N. Y. Later they will visit Mrs. Francis P. Garvan in the Adirondacks before returning. Mrs. Garvan is the former Miss Hope Jackson, sister of Mrs. Forbes Morgan, of New York, and the daughter of Robert Jackson.

During their absence, Mrs. de Sibour's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Prochnik, will occupy their home near McLean, Va.

Berdon M. Bells Announce New Son

Mr. and Mrs. Berdon Manly Bell announce the birth of a son, George Manly Bell 2d, on August 12, at Columbia Hospital. Their Other son, Berdon, jr., is now 4 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. Bell have named their youngest son for his paternal grandfather, the late Dr. George M. Bell, who was a prominent physician in North Carolina. Mrs. Bell is the former Miss Grace Atkinson, of Wilmington, N. C.

Patricia Hill To Make Bow

Miss Patricia Uline Hill, whose mother, Mrs. Uline Hill, will present her to Washington society in the Christmas season, undoubtedly will be well to the fore in the run-off for "Glamor Deb" of 1939-40. Black-haired, blue-eyed and gay, Miss Hill has far more than just looks to her credit.

Not only is she an accomplished swimmer and equestrienne, but an artist of merit as well. While a student at the University of Toledo, where she formerly made her home, she won two scholarships at the Art Museum of Toledo, and has had several canvases hung at exhibitions there.

Last year she attended Goucher College and exhibited more of her o.1 portrait work at that school. This fall she plans to attend college again, continue her art work and make her debut in the holiday season, probably at the Congressional ountry lub.

Miss Hill, who is a granddaughter of M. J. Uline, is a direct descendant of Aaron Burr and of Roger Clapp, Colonial Governor of Massachusetts and captain of the harbor at that port.

Miss Hill will leave Washington on Friday and with her mother will spend the week-end in New York, visiting the World's Fair and Miss Hill's grandfather, William Burr Hill. They will then go on to West Point for a brief visit before returning to town. After a few days here, they will leave for Richmond to be guests of Lee Poates on a yachting trip. They will return to Washington around the first of September.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

The French Ambassador, Count de Saint Quentin, spent the week-end at the Homestead in Hot Springs. Miss Elinor Ryan and Miss Nellye Gray, of Washington, have also joined the summer colony there.

Joseph E. Davies, United States Ambassador to Belgium, and Mrs. Davies, after an overnight stay in Newport on their yacht, Sea Cloud, have left for Long Island, accompanied by Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings.

Brutus Coste, Secretary of the Rumanian Legation, arrived in New York yesterday on the Normandie and is expected to come to Washington shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolf A. Berle, jr., have returned to Washington after spending the week-end at their home in Great Barrington, Mass.

Mrs. Harold E. Warner gave a surprise luncheon on Saturday at the Little Tea House in honor of Miss Margaret Cuppey and Miss Martha Byrd Kemon, both of whom will be married shortly. On August 26 Miss Cuppey will become the bride of J. Allen Crocker, brother of the hostess, and Miss Kemon will be married to James Smith Mays September 2.

Other guests at the luncheon were Mrs. John F. Burns, Mrs. Lewis Roberts, Mrs. N. D. Hirsch, Miss Marcia Crocker and Miss Charlotte Hayhurst.

Mrs. Howard Sanderson LeRoy left yesterday to visit Judge and Mrs. Walter G. C. Otto, of Scarsdale, N. Y. She will return to her apartment at the Shoreham in a week.

Col. and Mrs. Henry C. Bradford, of Fort McPherson, Ga., are at the Carlton, accompanied by their daughter.

Prince Ahmed Fakhry, son of the Egyptian Ambassador to France, arrived yesterday from Paris for a brief stay and is at the Wardman Park.

Maj. and Mrs. W. A. Wagner, of Surrey, England, are at the Carlton for several days.

Maj. James E. Duke, jr., who is stationed at Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Duke, at the Wardman Park.

Dr. and Mrs. Otto N. Warner have with them at the Wardman Park the former's brother, Dorr E. Warner, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Mrs. McNutt And Daughter Back in Capital

Join Administrator In His Apartment At Shoreham Hotel

The Federal Security Administrator, Paul V. McNutt, has been joined at his apartment at the Shoreham by Mrs. McNutt and their daughter, Louise, who arrived in Washington yesterday.

Mrs. McNutt reports that "we've come to stay this time." She and Miss McNutt have been spending most of their time since their return from the hilippines in Indianapolis, with only short visits to Washington.

Officially the McNutts won't set up housekeeping until next week when their dishes and silver arrive from their house in Indianapolis.

Miss McNutt will return to Indiana about September 8, when she will go to Bloomington to enter Indiana University, the alma mater of her father.

School won't begin until about the middle of September, but Miss McNutt will be active in the sorority "rush week" activities prior to the school term. She already has received a number of invitations to sorority functions, but, of course, it is much too early for her to predict which of the university sororities she will choose to join.

Girls frequently choose the sororities of which their mothers were members, but since Mrs. McNutt attended a finishing school, where there were no sororities, there is no clue as to Miss McNutt's preference.

Although she isn't sure that she will have time to spend all her vacations in Washington, Miss McNutt is planning to return to Washington during the Christmas season. At Thanksgivingtime the Federal Security Administrator and Mrs. McNutt probably will join her in Indianapolis.

Miss McNutt hasn't made up her mind yet exactly what she is going to specialize in at college, but she plans to take the Liberal Arts course, which will give her a background for a more specialized course if she desires it later.

At present Miss McNutt is learning to play golf, and is particularly interested in swimming and badminton. She intends, too, to resume her piano studies.

Folke Wennerberg Returns to Capital From New England

Folke Wennerberg, Charge d'Affaires of the Swedish legation, has returned to his desk here after a week's vacation at Nonquitt, Mass. Mme. Wennerberg will remain away a fortnight longer, dividing her time between visits in Massachusetts and Vermont.

Mr. Wenneberg is serving as Charge d'Affaires while the Minister, Wollmar Bostrom, is in Europe. He and Mme. Bostrom left early in the summer for Sweden, where they will remain until fall.

Dunhams Depart Today for West

Capt. Williiam H. J. Dunham, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army, and Mrs. Dunham, who have been visiting in Washington, will leave today for Fort Leavenworth, Kans., where Capt. Dunham will be a student next fall at the Command and General Staff School there.

Capt. and Mrs. Dunham have ben in Washington since last Friday, and have been house guests of Mrs. Dunhams brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Batten, in Arlington, Va.

Accompanied by their two sons, William Dunham, jr., and Robert Dunham, Capt. and Mrs. Dunham will stop en route to Fort Leavenworth for a visit to Mrs. Dunhams parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Batten, at Hampton, Va. On Sunday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Batten entertained at a buffet supper at their Arlington home for their house guests.

Capt. and Mrs. Dunham, who have just ocmpleted a tour of duty in the Hawaiian Islands, returned to San Francisco on the U. S. Army Transport Republic, and motored across the continent.

Senator Valves of Puerto Rico And Miss Grace Garcia Wed

SENORA DE VALVES

Ceremony Held Here at St. Paul's Catholic Church

The wedding of Miss Grace Garcia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Garcia, of San Juan, Puerto Rico, and Senator Alfonso Valves, also of Puerto Rico, took place yesterday morning at 10 o'clock at St. Paul's Catholic Church.

The bride wore a gown of white satin with a long, fan-shaped train and a panel of tiny beads down the front. The dress was made with a square neckline and with it she wore a single strand of pearls. Her fingertip length tulle veil was edged in white satin and fell from a coronet. She carried a shower of orange blossmos.

Her only attendant was the bridegroom's niece, Miss Encarnita Valves, who wore a black silk taffeta dress made with a small bustle effect. Instead of a hat she wore a mantilla of cream colored lace, a family heirloom.

Ramon Valves was best man for his brother. Later a buffet luncheon was served in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Valves at 2400 Sixteenth stret.

Among the guests was the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Encarnacion Valves, of Puerto Rico, who is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Valves here.

Miss Howser, J. L. Gittins Wed; Will Live in Arlington Village

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Gittins, who were married Sunday, will make their home in Arlington Village after a honeymoon trip through the Middle West.

The bride, the former Miss Adelaide Howser, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Gregg Howser, of Bon Air, Arlington. Mr. Gittins is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Gittins, of Williamsburg, Iowa.

Their marriage took place at the Columbia Baptist Church in Falls Church, the Rev. U. S. Knox, pastor, officiating. Garden flowers in pastel shades of blue, yellow and white were mingled with ferns and palms at the altar. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a frock of white dotted swiss over taffeta, made with puffed sleeves and a bouffant skirt. Her fingertip-length veil of silk net was arranged in a coronet effect, trimmed in front with seed pearls, and she carried a bouquet of white shasta daisies and lilies of the valley.

Miss Louise Howser, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing blue dotted swiss over taffeta and a picture hat of the same material, trimmed with yellow shasta daisies and blue delphinium. She carried a bouquet of these flowers.

Elbert Moran, of Arlington, Vt., was best man. Ushers were Joseph Lyerly and Nicholas Cureton.

A reception at the bride's home for members of the immediate families followed the ceremony. Mrs. Howser, the bride's mother, wore a powder blue marquisette and lace frock, and Mrs. Harry Hull, aunt of the bridegroom, was in rose lace. Both wore corsages of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Charles Hedstrom, of Ronceverte, W. Va., aunt of the bride; another aunt, Mrs. Annie Milbourne, of Leesburg, Va.; Miss Mabel Lauman, of Leesburg; Miss Ruth Hunzinger, of New York, and Miss Louise Faulconer, of Orange, Va. When the bride left on her wedding trip, she wore a printed chiffon frock in a moss green shade figured in white. The dress was made redingote style and was trimmed with a white collar and narrow black belt. A large black hat and a corsage of gardenias completed her costume. She is a graduate of Madison College, Harrisonburg, Va.

Mr. Gittins is associated with the Federal Communications Commission.

Albanian Envoy Plans Trip Home

The United States Minister to Albania and Mrs. Hugh Grant are expected to sail for the United States in October after spending part of the Minister's leave in Europe, where they will meet their daughter, Miss Louise Grant, a student at the Sorbonne in Paris.

The Minister and Mrs. Grant recently gave a large farewell party at the United States Legation in Tirana prior to the closing of the legations there and just before the departure of the chiefs of foreign missions.

Guests at the party were the Minister of Greece, Pericles Skeferis; the French Minister and Mme. Louis Mercier, the Minister of Bulgaria, Janko Peyeff; the Minister of Great Britain and Lady Ryan; the Yugoslav envoy, Ivan Vukotitch; the Secretary of the British Legation and Mrs. Pierre Sorlot, Dr. Louis Hackett, Dr. Hartson Bates, of the Rockefeller Institute in Albania, and Mrs. Bates; Clayton E. Whipple, representative of the Near East Foundation in Sofia, Bulgaria, and the United States vice consul, Erich W. A. Hoffmann.

Bellevilles Plan To Spend Winter In Tahiti Again

From California comes news Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Belleville, who have been summering there, will leave shortly to spend the winter in Tahiti. They spent last season there, and wrote many enthusiastic letters about the island's charms to their friends in Washington.

Mrs. Belleville is the former Miss Jeannette Fuqua, and met her husband several years ago when her father was serving as Military Attache at the United States embassy in Spain. Mr. Belleville's home is Papilon Hall in England. They recently received congratulations on the birth of their first child, a son.

Mrs. Belleville formerly resided in Washington and has many friends here.

Secretary Ickes Ends Vacation

The Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, accompanied by Mrs. Ickes, returned late last week, from a brief vacation.

They have been spending some time at a lodge near Marion, Va., but expect to be at their Maryland estate, Headwaters Farm, near Olney, for an indefinite period.

Your Figure Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain.

Exercise and Artifice Help to Correct Defects of Neck

WHEN a constructive view is taken of that fragile line from the tip of the chin to the dimple in the throat, it seems as if nothing is impossible! With quite a bit of artifice and a little exercise, you can make a long neck look shorter, or a short neck look longer.

Let's take the artifice first—it's easier! To give length to the short neck or to make the thick neck appear less thick, keep to the upswept hairdo regardless of the styles. And thank that unforeseen frivolity, the bustle, that hair styles are up this season.

Necklines most flattering to the short or thick neck are: the V, the U-neck, oval, and the low, square neck. That gives quite a leeway as to lines and you should never feel tempted by high collars, especially the Peter Pan type that cut inches off your neck, or the cowl effects that make you look as if you were in danger of smothering. Double chins can be minimized by avoiding shiny white collars or cascading frills underneath.

Costume Jewelry Helpful

Necklines most flattering to the long or thin neck are: round necks, high collars, cowl-necks and square necks not cut so low as to emphasize length. Frills and drapery soften angles and enchance the neckline.

With the wide variety of costume jewelry, you can give your basic dress any kind of neckline you wish. Choker necklaces, heavy chunky beads and the new monopoly of those who wish their necks were not so long or thin. Short necks look better in the long, loopy beads and necklaces.

It is unnecessary to point out that the throat should be given the same meticulous care accorded the face. But it's exercise that does the real work in beautifying throats and in keeping them from going downhill too fast. The throat column is seven-eighths muscle, no wonder it responds to exercise or the lack of it!

Exercises for Throat

If you throat seems too short, you can lengthen it by improving the head carriage. If it seems too thick, stronger muscles give a longer line. Here is a good posture and throat exercise:

Lie on the back on the floor, knees flexed, arms straight out at the sides. Pull the small of the back in to touch the floor. Hold, while you try to push the nape of the neck flat against the floor. Relax, repeat five times.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Mother Goes on Warpath When Magdalene-Type Girl Wins Daughter's Beau; What to Think?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am the mother of a daughter 23 years old. For two years she kept steady company with a fine young man 29 years of age. They had been seen together so much, for so long, that everyone thought they would marry. And I know that they had talked of marriage, but they never had set a definite date. However, I felt sure that they loved each other.

Then, all of a sudden, his interest waned. He suggested to my daughter that she have other men friends. He said that he felt they were young enough to wait two years before contracting marriage. His calls grew less frequent and it later developed that he had found another steady girl friend. Now he is engaged to marry this girl who is not of good character.

She has an illegitimate child 3 years old. She is not pretty and I am sure that what she has done proves that she has no sense. She wears very nice clothes and is neatly groomed, but outward appearances never stop me from looking deeper. I had a talk with this young man and asked him if he had thought about what he was getting into. My daughter was too proud to admit defeat, and holds that I should not have said anything to him.

However, the man says that he loves the girl and that he had heard all about her past misfortune before he started seeing her regularly. He said, further, that every girl that he had ever heard of, who had had a similar misfortune, had gotten married at some later date. But the whole mess makes me sick, when I know I reared my daughter right and when I see her inwardly hurt by the invasion of a cheap little female scamp who is not worth a second thought from a fine young man. I would very much like your opinion of the situation.

MRS. D. E. L.

Pharisee and Publican In Modern Dress

DEAR MRS. D. E. L.: Your holier-than-thou-attitude in this instance affords a modern-day parallel of the Scriptural parable of the Pharisee and the Publican. What warrant have you to question the intrinsic worth, the right to forgiveness and happiness, of the girl whom this man has chosen to make his wife? May she not be one of those of whom Jesus said, "Much is forgiven her, for she has loved much?"

The fact that she bore a child out of wedlock does not necessarily afford proof that she is a worthless character. On the contrary, the fact that she dared run the gantlet of scandal mongers like yourself, in bearing and acknowledging a child whose existence has been indiscretly invited, suggests that she does possess both character and courage to a marked degree. It suggests that she is probably a person of considerable integrity, with a keen sense of moral responsibility. As a rule, the woman who is callously or furtively addicted to adultery (a woman of the type you hold this one to be) is far too selfish and too expedient to accept nature's penalty for her profligacy.

If you could indorse this "fine young man's" judgment in appreciating your daughter's conventional worth, why not give him credit for equally sound judgment when he discerns superior qualities in the other woman? It may be that he finds in the latter a person who was truly "more sinned against than sinning;" and that pity for her plight, respect for her honesty and admiration for her bravery quickened his first casual interest into love. One congratulates him, at least, for the basic decency of his social outlook in condoning her lapse as an understandable "misfortune." It is in sharp contrast to your own mean-spirited attitude, at once so jealous and so vindictive.

You were guilty of outrageous impertinence in attempting to dissuade him from marrying her. Such interference was in abominably bad taste, considering the nature of your acquaintanceship with him; was singularly un-Christian, to say the least; and served no other purpose than that of turning the knife in your daughter's heart. It must have intensified the man's allegiance to the other girl. And whatever vestiges of self respecting, noncommittal pride your daughter had managed to preserve, in order to hide her hurt, must have been pretty well stripped away by your muddleheaded effort to bring her admirer back into camp.

Naturally, one sympathizes with your daughter's heartbreak—if heartbroken she is. But one cannot hold the other girl responsible for her failure to hold her beau. One wonders, rather, how much you may have contributed to her desolation through jaking, perhaps, too evangelical an interest in her private life. If you are forcing her to a mold of prig and Pharisee, teaching her to despise and distrust human nature, it cannot be said that you are "rearing her right."

After one has trained a child, by precept and example, from infancy to maturity in decent patterns of behavior, one must set that child free to lead his own life, even to make his own mistakes. And it may be that you are spoiling your daughter's chances of happiness by trying to stand between her and her life as a woman.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Women's Page.

Count Calories To Reduce

A JOB, Mrs. Portly, to hoist that too-too solid flesh of yours up the car steps!

How quickly Mrs. Slim skipped up—she's light as a feather since she adopted a low-calory diet, lost her "surplus cargo."

You could lose yours, too—10 pounds in five weeks—if you'd eat delicious low-calory foods instead of high-calory "bulge-makers.

Mrs. Slim knows better than to eat a fattening high-calory breakfast like yours this morning; a cup of beef hash, a richly buttered muffin, five stewed prunes and juice. Why you had 900 calories before the day really began!

Clever Mrs. Slim plans her tempting meals with the aid of a calory chart. For breakfast she had one egg and a strip of bacon, a slice of lightly buttered whole wheat toast, a glass of grape-fruit juice. Only 260 calories.

No starving on meals like that! Why you can even have desserts if you avoid such "weight-makers' 'as choloclate blanc mange, which is 400 calories a cup—eat instead Spanish cream, only 100 calories a cup.

See how quickly you'll look slimmer—feel younger, livelier—on a well-planned low-calory diet. Our 40-page booklet, "Change Your Weight For Beauty's Sake," has a three day liquid diet to start your reducing, 42 low-calory menus based on protective foods. Gives calory chart and exercises, menus for gaining, too.

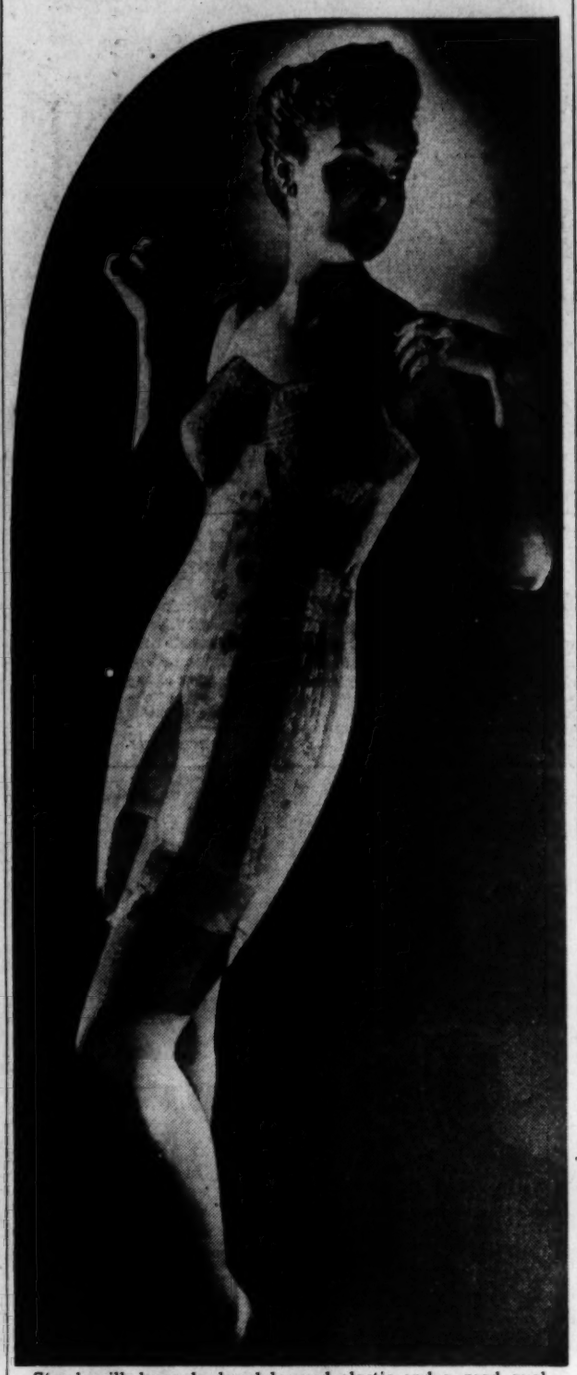
Under the Fall Bustles



Sturdy silk brocade, hand-loomed elastic and a good quality lace were used by Philip Robbins, the creator of this all-in-one. His aim was to achieve an unbroken fluid contour which is the true line of youth even for sizes 36 to 48. Important in the accomplishment of the feminine fall silhouette is Robbins' use here of elastic bias bands which are fagot-stitched to both the front and back side panels. These support and flatten the abdomen, improve posture and carriage—and pull in that troublesome rear, a very necessary move for prospective bustle-toters this fall

Rice Valenciano and Ice Cream Says Attorney General Murphy

By Martha Ellyn,
The Post Food Editor

ATTORNEY GENERAL MURPHY is one of destiny's favored sons who has had an almost unrivaled experience in public life. He holds the unique position of concluding the old regime as the last General Governor of the Philippines and initiating a new one as the first High Commissioner to the Philippine Commonwealth. Continuing in public life as Governor of Michigan he earned further laurels in being a friend to labor. Then on to Washington he came to join President Roosevelt's cabinet as Attorney General. In this position he has become the all-around administrator of justice and one of Washington's most popular bachelors.

Atty. Gen. Murphy

With all his responsibilities he cheerfully took the time to tell me of a dish he learned to like when he lived in the Philippines. In his genial Irish manner he not only told me that Rice Valenciano is a favorite dish, but, without benefit of recipe book, told me the way to make it. The following is the recipe for Mr. Murphy's preferred dish.

Rice Valenciano

First wash 1 cup rice in cold water. Saute 1 tablespoon onion chopped fine, and 1 tablespoon chopped raw ham in 4 ounces of sweet butter for about 4 minutes. Do not brown. Then add 2 whole tomatoes, peeled and diced; the cup of rice, 3 cups chicken broth, ½ teaspoon salt, pinch of white pepper, small boquet parsley, 1 bay leaf and 1 thyme leaf. Cover and cook 15 to 18 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve over boiled chicken, very hot.

Mr. Murphy is fond of the all-American dessert—ice cream, and says to make it "chocolate." In the summer he drinks iced tea. Here is one great man who has never drunk a cup of coffee in his life.

Wall Papers Coming Back

Painted walls have many advantages but wall papers are coming back strong, now that so many attractive washable varieties are available. One of the new washable papers is tested by sponging with soapsuds 50 times before it is put into retail circulation and subsequent washings keep it fresh and colorful indefinitely.

If walls are nonwashable or if they are not yet due for washing or redecorating, superficial dust can be shooed away with a long-handled wall brush or a broom with a clean cloth tied over the whisks. Light finger marks often yield to a soft gum eraser or to gentle mopping with a soap-dampened cloth.

Beauty Found To Be at Least Girdle-Deep

Many Foundations For the Late Summer Are Gay Deceivers

By Marshall Adams
The Post Fashion Editor

WITH SPEEDY Dixie Clippers bringing the newest fall fashions closer every day, it is no wonder that alert women of the world are thinking twice about the foundations they'll wear under them. The between-seasons frocks with their circular skirts and intricate fabric detailings have a way of revealing, rather than concealing, pudgy bulges that often result from over-indulgence under lazy summer suns. The really clever woman is one who isn't passing those paddings off lightly. She is doing something about regaining that long-limbed, clean-cut look of youth. She sallies forth and buys herself a new girdle.

Marshall Adams

That has been the observation of more than one local corsettier. One of these stylists, connected with a popular corsetry shop, has discovered that women of mature figures and years are particularly cautious that the middle of August does not find them stuck with a depressingly limp and clammy girdle. They are careful to replenish their stock of undergarments well before the fall season exposes them as owning all the right new clothes and all the wrong things to go beneath. Our corset expert pointed out that foundations, such as the one pictured on this page, are designed for equal comfort, coolness and control whether the size is a perfect 36 or a 48.

Many of the late summer foundations are gay deceivers. They are as fragile looking as fine French lingerie, yet bias elastic bands control the abdominal muscles while net reinforcements under the arms and across the back prevent unsightly rolls above the waistline. This support under sheer August frocks is very important—yet of equal importance to the wearer's self-confidence is the daintiness of fabric employed. Strategically used for a featherweight feel on the body are the airy nets and porous-weave cottons for panels and bra tops and the lightest of power nets for an elasticized section aimed to smooth away extra bumps. Here and there is an occasional craftily placed bit of boning to protect the heavier figure from waistline wrinkles and help pull in that troublesome rear, made bumpier by a summer filled with too many sodas and sundaes.

Sun-Tanned Skin Needs Daily Care

The best treatment for roughened sun-tanned skin, as for most skin imperfections, is a strict regime that will tone the skin, freshen it, and stimulate it to new and radiant beauty. This calls for a day-by-day program that begins with a sane wholesome diet and ends with meticulous all-over cleanliness.

If the skin is dry, lubricating creams are helpful. Sluggish skins show marvelous improvement if scrubbed consistently with a wash cloth or a firm-bristled brush. But every kind of skin needs washing with soap and water and drying with clean towels every night before bedtime and as often in between times as general freshening up or new make-up is required.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

New York, Aug. 14.

IF YOU READ yesterday's piece, you remember that we are spending a typical "sophisticated New Yorkers'" week-end at the Connecticut country seat of Marian Stephenson and Graham Patmore. Our men, in the prime of life, have succumbed to the attacks of youth, represented by Mary "Spike" Kuhnemann, Marguerite "Slugger" Chapman and Mr. Jay Owen, the handsome youth in the ads.

There has been no intellectual gabble, no vain pow-wows on the international situation. After a Saturday of manly sports and exercises which reduce the elders to helpless masses of aching flesh, we have reached the quiet evenfall of Saturday, when all nature smiles blissfully. After a hearty dinner of roast joint of anchovy, in true rural style, we have settled down to await the end, reading hightoned magazines.

Then, as luck would have it, one of the youngsters found a radio—and before you knew it, a hot band was flooding the settin' room with swing. In a flash an impromptu "jam session" was on, and the three kids were "in the groove"—with "shaggin'" and "peckin'" and "hTe Lindy' 'going full blast, while the century-old farmhouse shook to its very cellar. Squire Patmore, lord of the manor, tried to finish the same paragraph no less than six times, and then gave up.

It was wonderful to watch the youngsters at their mad didoes, but it wore us out. The two lovely girls and the dashing Mr. Owen "gave out," and so did we. Not until midnight did peace descend on the Village of Upper Stepney. We later learned that two dear old ladies, up the road a piece, had suffered slight strokes during the "jam session." But youth will be served—preferably on toast, with a little Worcestershire Sauce. "The Lost Generation" had endured nobly, but sank to rest feeling that the end was not far off.

A CONNECTICUT SABBATH—We were out of bed and at the coffee by 8 Sunday morning, the venerable Hall using crutches. Four of the godly went to nine o'clock meetin' 8 miles down the pike, while the rest skimmed the morning Times. No sooner were we all reassembled than targaret practice began, the weapon being a 22-caliber rifle and the targets a row of bottles on a fence 60 yards away. Merrily they blazed away, with the nerve-shattered World War soldiers doing pretty badly compared with the steady kids.

Mr. Owen, the collar-ad boy, knocked bottles right and left. Brother Partridge, late of the Foreign Legion, had no luck at all, complaining that the bottles jumped just as he fired. Old Mr. Hall busted a bottle on about the twenty-first round, and promptly fainted away from surprise.

Bicycle Safety Club Formed To Cut Mishaps

Two-Wheel Crashes Blamed for Third of Fatal Child Accidents

In an effort to curb Washington's increasing number of bicycle accidents, the American Automobile Association yesterday announced formation of a Bicycle Safety Club, with membership open to all bike-owning youngsters in the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia counties.

Bicycle mishaps, the A. A. A. reported, account for one-third of all deaths among school-age children. There will be no cost for membership in the new club, but each boy and girl must sign a pledge agreeing to abide by certain safety rules. Through the pledge, members of the club will agree to obey all traffic signals and signs, to ride on the right side of the road, and to keep in single file when approached or overtaken by cars; to give other vehicles the right of way; to ride at a safe speed; to be extra cautious during the hours of dusk and darkness, and to ride only one on a bicycle.

In addition to being supplied with a membership card, bicyclists will receive small reflectors to attach to their bikes. They also will be given a booklet covering bicycle operation and suggestions for safe riding.

"The Bicycle Safety Club is designed to serve two purposes," the A. A. A. pointed out. "First, to cut down the number of accidents in which bicycles are involved, and, second, to improve the cycling habits of Washington children for the benefit of general traffic. Similar clubs have been started recently in St. Louis and Cleveland.

"We expect an enthusiastic response from Washington youngsters and several thousand reflectors and other membership material are now on hand to be distributed to those making early application."

Visits Increase 33,000 in Year At Venereal Clinic

"An increasingly intelligent attitude by the public toward venereal diseases" is proved by the expanding number of visits to the District's Social Hygiene Clinic at 512 I street northwest, Clinic Director T. C. Thompson told the District WPA Health Institute yesterday.

Dr. Thompson informed the WPA supervisors and project workers that visits to the clinic totaled 142,000 last year, as compared with 109,000 in he preceding 12 months.

The larger number does not mean that venereal diseases are increasing here, he said, but that more persons are coming in for treatment and examination. Forty-three per cent of the clinic visitors examined in 1938, he added, were found free from infection. More than 400 mothers and children, he said, received treatment for syphilis.

Dr. Thompson told the newly organized institute that the increase in treatments will result in a decrease in still births and, in nearly all cases where the expectant mother has received early treatment, will result in healthy infants.

Mrs. R. G. Moses Dies at 80; Cousin Of Isaac Gans

Mrs. Ray Gans Moses, 80, died yesterday in a Baltimore hospital after a long ilness. She had lived in Washington for several years before making her residence in Baltimore.

Mrs. Moses was the cousin of Isaac Gans, member of the District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. She had many friends here.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 p. m. tomorrow at Sondheimer's undertaking establishment in Baltimore.

Pogue Elevated As General Counsel of CAA

Succeeds Guthrie Who Resigned to Become Hopkins Aide

Welch Pogue, assistant general counsel of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, has been appointed general counsel of the CAA, succeeding Charles Stuart Guthrie, who recently resigned to accept the newly created post of special assistant to the Secretary of Commerce.

Pogue, who has been assistant general counsel since the creation of the authority a year ago, will take his new office immediately, George Neak, who has been with the authority a year and who assisted in drawing up the CAA act, will succeed Pogue as assistant general counsel.

Before coming to the authority Pogue had eight years' experience in corporate financing and reorganization of aviation companies while Boston and New York. His work with the authority has been largely in directing the legal phases of the economic work under the CAA act.

Before coming to the CAA, Neal worked in the legal division of the Treasury Department.

Anacostia Sewer Damaged, River Pollution Likely

The Anacostia River, south of the New Jersey avenue southeast pumping station, will be subject to sewage pollution for two or three weeks, Capt. Patrick Tansey, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, said yesterday. He explained that a slide Friday damaged the sewer running from Poplar Point to Bolling Field.

The slide, he said, ocurred on the St. Elizabeths Hospital grounds, following construction work on the new outfall relief sewer, paralleling existing facilities. Excavations went so deep the pressure caused the existing channel to crack.

Capt. Tansey indicated conditions were too dangerous to permit a complete examination, but it is believed the old sewer can soon be used at three-fourths capacity.

The new sewer will supplement existing facilities. Plans call for simultaneous utilization of both sewers, each 9 feet 4 inches wide by 8 feet 4 inches high.

Municipal Center Contract Awarded For $3,574,000

A $3,574,000 contract for the superstructure at John Marshall place and Indiana avenue northwest has been awarded by the Public Works Administration to the D. M. W. Co., of Brooklyn, N. Y., the District Commissioners were informed yesterday.

The Brooklyn concern was the low bidder among six contracting firms. It is allowed 290 days for completion of the work from the day operations begin.

This date willl not be for some weeks, it was indicated, until the American Bridge Co., which holds the structural steel contract on the new building, has completed the first stage of its work.

The new building, the east unit of the proposed center, will house the police and fire headquarters, the health, recreation, traffic and public welfare departments and other smaller District agencies.

Ad Club Protests Proposal To Prohibit Liquor Handbills

The Washington Advertising Club yesterday registered a sharp protest against provisions of a proposed addition to the Alcoholic Beverage Control regulations which would prohibit handbill advertisin of liquor.

The ABC Board indicated it would "assimilate" the protest, along with "a few others" which have been made since the proposed additions were announced. The board did not indicate whether its proposals will be modified in light of the protests.

The Advertising Club said that to forbid dissemination of printed or mimeographed handbills and circulars—"established forms of advertising"—would be "definitely discriminatory and unfair."

"Summary revocation of a normal medium of communication creates a favored class and opens the way to abuse," the club declared.

The organization also objected to a provision requiring that beverage advertising signs be smaller than those permitted for other forms of merchandise.

Other prohibitions on liquor advertising in the proposed regulations forbid false or misleading statements, disparaging competing products, making medicinal or therapeutic claims, portraying religious figures, the picture of Santa Claus, the mention or illustration of any church, religion, school, college or university or of any athletic contest, nude or seminude women, signs in excess of 10 square feet, flashing lights or display of signs at time when liquor may not be sold.

Clarence E. Emery Dies; Inspector for Maritime Board

Clarence E. Emery, 64, an inspector for the United States Maritime Commission since 1917, died yesterday at his home, 3812 Thirty-second street, Mount Rainier.

A native of Bethel, Vt., Mr. Emery entered the Maritime Commission when it was known as the United States Shipping Board. He was educated at Randolph High School, Randolph, Vt., and the University of Vermont.

He was a member of the Chillum Castle Masonic Lodge. He also served on the official board of the Mount Rainier Christian Church and was chairman of the building committee of the Mount Rainier High School.

Mr. Emory was the only son of Alonzo and Angeline Emery. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Carolyn Emery; a son, Robert, and a niece, Ella Allison, of Philadelphia.

Funeral services will be at 2 p. m. today at the Mount Rainier Christian Church. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Civitan Club to Hear Judge Pleasant Gold

"Our Widening Destiny," an address on American citzienship and its relationship to world affairs, will be given by Judge Pleasant D. Gold, member of the Board of Veterans' Appeals of the Veterans' Administration, at the Washington Civitan Club meeting at 12:30 p. m. today at the Mayflower.

D. C. May Send Tax Bill to Reserve Board

Federal Agency's Real Estate Status to Be Decided by Attorneys

Assistant Corporation Counsel G. Reber Littlehales is going to find out if the Federal Reserve Board, since 1914 the paragon of sound financial dealings and upright fiscal affairs, has been slipping by a fast one in the matter of not paying taxes to the District.

At the request of District Assessor Fred D. Allen, Littlehales announced yesterday he soon will confer with the Federal Reserve Board's general counsel on the subject.

Allen, in common with 99 out of 100 other citizens, assumed the banking institution was exempt from local taxes, as are other Federal buildings, and never sent a bill. The Federal Reserve, however, despite its title, is not a Government organization, but only a quasi-official organization made up of privately owned national banks. Some months ago the question of Reserve Bank taxes was raised in Congress. Investigation showed that its enabling law specifically exempted it from all taxes, save only real estate levies.

Watchdogs of the District Treasury were reported last night as growling and restive.

Senator Byrd Crowns Arlington Girl Queen of Historical Flag Pageant

1. BETSY ROSS made the American flag honored last night in the pageant, "Birth of the Flag." Portraying that scene were (left to right) Mrs. May Burner, Avis Myers and Mrs. May Playmale, as Betsy Ross

2. A CAST OF 1,000 participated. Three dancers were (left to right) Linnie McCraw, Gloria Shields and Lucilee Thomson, resting between scenes. The story of the birth and triumphs of the Stars and Stripes was told in pageantry

3. HIGHLIGHT OF THE EVENING was the crowning of pretty Mildred Bolen as Queen of the Flag. After Senator Byrd, of Virginia, placed the crown of her head, she said, "it is the happiest moment of my life"

Alexandria Marriage Law Parley Planned

Licenses Still Issued Without Required Health Certificates

A conference on the pre-marriage certificate question in Alexandria will be held between City Health Officer William L. Schafer, City Manager Carl L. Budwesky and City Attorney Armistead Boothe, Wednesday, it was learned today.

Dr. Schafer was back at his desk yesterday after two weeks at the Marine encampment in Quantico, and asserted he would discuss the problem with the city officials this week. City Manager Budwesky is out of town, and will return Wednesday morning.

Marriage licenses are being issued daily at the clerk's office in the corporation court, and the clerk is waiting on notification from the city health officer before he takes final action on the health certificates for marriage licenses.

In event Alexandria attempts to enforce the provision of the ordinance it will be the first city in the State to require a medical certificate as a necessary requisite to obtain such a license.

Earle Sullivan, deputy clerk of corporation court, is in charge of the office this week in the absence of Elliott F. Hoffman, clerk, who is vacationing in Atlantic City.

Fishing Ban Planned

A proposal to close all estuaries of the upper Potomac River to all types of commercial fishing will be offered by Judge William S. Snow, a member of the Virginia Game and Inland Fisheries Commission, in a conference with G. Walter Mapp, commissioner of fisheries, in Newport News Tuesday.

At this meeting the jurisdictional problem of game and commercial fishing will be thoroughly gone over. This has long been a controversial subject in the State, and affects the northern Virginia area, as well as the Tidewater section.

Rotarians to Hear Governor

James E. Mallonee, governor of the 187th District of Rotary International, who is a member of the Hopewell Club, will be principal speaker before the Alexandria Rotarians at their luncheon today at 12:30 o'clock at the George Mason Hotel. Prior to the luncheon he will meet with the officers and committee chairmen to discuss their aims and objects for the year.

A seven-day period, Sunday, February 18, through Saturday, February 24, 1940, has been designated by Gov. Mallonee as Rotary Observance Week, and he will point out to the Rotarians his plans for this event. Rotary's thirty-fifth anniversary falls between these dates.

Benefit Unit Meets

The Woman's Benefit Association will gather tonight at 8 o'clock at Odd Fellows Hall on North Columus street. A full attendance is requested as several matters of business importance will be discussed.

Leon Baggett Rites

Leon Baggett, contracting tinner, died suddenly Monday night at his home, 119 South Fairfax street. He was a native of Alexandria, where he has been in business for a number of years.

The wife, Mrs. Ethel Baggett, a daughter, Mrs. D. L. Baggett; a brother, Robert Baggett, of Washington, and the mother, Mrs. Mary Lee Baggett, survive.

Funeral services will be held from DeMaine's funeral home, 817 King street, at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. Interment will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

250 Sign Petitions Asking Vote On Arlington Electric System

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST, Clarendon, Va. Tel. OXford 0509.

Petitions signed by more than 250 voters of Arlington County was presented to Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy yesterday by Robert E. Plymale, asking him to order a referendum on the power system proposal November 7, the date of the general election for State and county officers.

Plymale, chairman of a special committee of the Arlington County Civic Federation in charge of circulating the petitions, said they were signed by representative groups of each community and that no effort was made to obtain a larger number of signatures.

Plymale pointed out that April 26, 1930, an order was issued by the court creating the county as a sanitary district. This question settled, an order will be prepared by Attorney Emory N. Hosmer and presented to Judge McCarthy today for his signature.

$1,475,000 Bond Issue

In the referendum, voters will cast ballots on the question of whether the Arlington County Board shall issue bonds totalling $1,475,000 to raise funds for construction of a light and power distribution system.

Cost of the system was estimated by Wiley and Wilson, consulting engineers of Lynchburg, in a survey ordered by the county board in 1937 and completed February 8, 1938. The engineers pointed out, however, the county possibly could purchase existing power lines from private utility companies at a lower figure.

Under the proposal Arlington would purchase power from an outside source, possibly the Potomac Electric Power Co., and sell it to consumers through its own distribution system. The county's water system is now operated in a similar manner. The water is purchased from the Federal Government.

Private utilities now serving Arlington County are the Virginia Public Service Co. and the Braddock Light and Power Co., a subsidiary of Potomac Electric Power Co. The Virginia Public Service Co. serves the major portion of the county.

Rice Sheriff Candidate

James E. Rice, Clarendon merchant, yesterday announced his candidacy for sheriff of Arlington County in the election November 7. Running as an independent, he will oppose Sheriff Howard B. Fields, Democratic incumbent, and Howard Duckson, Republican nominee.

Rice appealed for the support of voters who believe a change would be beneficial to the county. He emphasized he would not be affiliated with any political organization.

He is a native Virginian, coming from one of the pioneer families of Rockingham County, and has lived in Arlington County 11 years. He was associated with the United States Steel Corporation in McKeesport, Pa., and Newark, N. J., for 15 years and with the Twenty-eighth Military Police Company at York, Pa., for more than four years.

Rice has been active in fraternal and civic affairs in Arlington County for several years. He is a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 285, A. F. and A. M.; past patron of the Eastern Star, Mary Washington Chapter No. 50; vice president of the board of trustees of the Clarendon Fire Department, member of board of trustees of the Visiting Nurses Association for two years, past president of the Highland Park Citizens Association and delegate to the Arlington County Civic Federation.

While he has not fully prepared this platform, he said it will be based principally upon full co-operation with the county manager and harmony with other departments of the county government. He promised he will extend every reasonable courtesy to all citizens who require service of the sheriff's office.

Parkway Action Delayed

Arlington—Owing to details not yet complete, the county board yesterday took no action on approval of plans for development of unit 2 of the George Washington Memorial Parkway.

The agreement would require Arlington County to turn over to the Federal Government approximately $45,000 in cash and land credits, to be matched by a similar amount from the State and about $90,000 from the Federal Government.

The board adopted an amendment to the zoning ordinance requiring all signs to be at least 40 feet from street lines instead of 50 feet as previously advertised.

The amendment as adopted permits billboards in general business, light industrial and heavy industrial districts, providng they are not within 200 feet of any dwelling in the general business area.

Expenditures covering the first half of the month amounting to $71,745.19, of which $21,311.11 was the pay roll, were approved.

Dr. Elmer Klein to Speak

Arlington.—Dr. Elmer Klein, of the Medical Society of the District of Columbia, will be guest speaker at the meting of Arlington County Business and Professional Women's Club tonight at 7 o'clock at Collingwood Tea House on Mount Vernon boulevard. Dr. Klein will speak on "Phychiatry and the Health Program of the Business Woman."

'Bookie' Lauds Crusade That Closed Him Up

'Wheatley's Playing Fair,' Prince Georges' Gambler Asserts

Praise of the antigambling crusade in Prince Georges County, under direction of State's Attorney H. Winship Wheatley, jr., came yesterday from an unexpected source—a man who was forced to close his thriving "bookie" business because of the law enforcement drive.

The victim of the gambling "purge," a dapper fellow with a gift of gab and a gambler's philosophical outlook on personal misfortune, sized up the situation thusly:

"My place is closed. It cost me money, but what can I do? Just charge it to overhead.

"Wheatley Means Business"

"Wheatley means business. He's going to clean up this county. But he's playing the game fair. Everybody's getting fair warning. If they want to disregard the warning and stay open, then they haven't got any kick if they get put out of business by force. I never have heard of any cleanup campaign where the gamblers got as fair a break as they are getting in this one. Of course, none of us like the idea of having to close up, but a real gambler never holds any malice if he loses fairly.

"In Baltimore recently, the police broke into places, destroyed equipment and put the gamblers and the city to a lot of expense and trouble. Here, Wheatley is accomplishing the same purpose with the minimum of cost to the county, State and gamblers."

Moving Back Into District

Most of the "bookie" and "numbers" headquarters were reported to be moving back into Washington as the result of the county's harrassment campaign. It was a concerted anti-gambling campaign by Washington police over a year ago that drove large numbers of the operators into Prince Georges County, long regarded as a sanctuary for such establishments.

Wheatley's current drive got under way about two weeks ago when police began "picketing" Jimmy LaFontaine's casino on Bladensburg road and succeeded after three days in closing it down.

The State's attorney's announcement that the campaign against Jimmy's was only the beginning of a sweeping anti-gambling drive was the signal for scores of other establishments to close up.

Adventist Faith Gains 17,193 During Year

World Collections Of $13,141,921 Set Record, Says Church

A gain of 17,193 new members and collections amounting to $13,141,921 in the Seventh Day Adventist Church throughout the world last year were announced yesterday by church leaders in a report presented at the General Conference headquarters, Takoma Park, D. C.

H. Edson Rogers, of Takoma Park, Md., statistical secretary, who has just completed the report for 1938, sai dthe church collected the largest amount of money that year in the history of the faith.

Most of the gain in members was in Africa and Central Europe, Rogers said. Last year more than $400,000 was spent in China for missionary work.

The church, which began less than 100 years ago, with its 8,570 churches all over the world, now has a membership of 469,951. The increase in membership since 1912 has been 371,907 and since 1929 it has gained 170,396. The report shows that work was conducted in 387 countries, islands and island groups by 28,084 evangelistic and institutional laborers who used 766 languages and dialects.

Adventist work is based on the belief that the second coming of Christ will occur when the gospel is preached in all nations throughout the world and then will come the end of the world. The rapid progress of the Adventist Church during the last ten years is a sign that the end of the world is near, according to the churchmen.

2 Motorcyclists Hurt in Collision

Christiansburg, Va., Aug. 14 (AP).—C. H. Clark, 22, and Mrs. Fred Williams, both of Princeton, W. Va., were injured early today in an automotorcycle collision.

Clark, enroute with Mrs. Williams from a motorcycle contest at Danville, suffered fractures of both thighs and a broken left ankle. Mrs. Williams suffered a broken leg. Both are in a hospital here.

Police Chief Dave Sumner said John A. Burwell, jr., 26, of Floyd, Va., whose car was involved, was charged with reckless driving. He was held under $500 bond.

2 Units Will Camp At Spotsylvania

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 14.—Many officers in this vicinity for the Army games at Manassas have visited the museum and battlefields of the Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania National Military Park.

Two units, an artillery outfit and a medical unit, on their way home, will camp on the Spotsylvania Court House battlefield Friday, where they will view the famous "Bloody Angle" and other historic points. Local National Park Service officials are making preliminary arrangements for the encampment.

3,000 See Opening of Arlington Pageant Depicting Flag's Birth

Senator Byrd Crowns Mildred Bolen Queen; 1,000 in Cast of Spectacle To Continue for Week at Youth Center

To more than 3,000 at Arlington Youth Center last night the story of the birth and triumphs of the Stars and Stripes was told in pageantry that carried to the young among them its "promise for tomorrow."

The pageant, which will continue all week, was opened by Mildred Bolen, Queen of the Flag, with "It is the happiest moment of my life . . . I extend my greetings to American Youth."

Crowned queen by Senator Byrd, of Virginia, Miss Bolen and "Miss Columbia," 17-year-old Helen O'Day, took their places with their court, girls from Alexandria, Fairfax, Falls Church and Arlington, in their regal box and the spectacle was under way.

1,000 in Cast

The pageant they opened was a running account of history made significant by the presence—or absence—of the flag, portrayed in lifelike fashion by a cast numbering more than 1,000.

To emphasize the civilizing influence of a national banner, the first two of 12 scenes portrayed brutality of Stone Age and early Babylonian eras. Then in rapid-fire order, the implications of flags in the Crusades, the "Banner of Faith," and in Columbus' discovery of America, "Adventurous Banner in the Western World" were depicted.

From then on the show was strictly American. Colorfully costumed in Colonial fancy dress, a group of 46 danced the Virginia reel at a ball, interrupted by the announcement of the Battle of Lexington, and the realization of the necessity for a flag.

Three pretty misses re-enacted the 162-year-old scene of Old Glory's birth at the hands of Betsy Ross and her two friends. Roars of approval and applause burst from the audience when "Betsy" finished her sewing and raised the young flag with its 13 stars above her head.

Battle of Fort McHenry

As popular was a striking scene portraying the Battle of Fort McHenry. As a modern Francis Scott Key gazed at a tattered Old Glory from the bridge of a "British" ship, the first notes of the Star-Spangled Banner filtered through the offstage roar of guns. Heat lighting sweeping across the sky behind the stage resembled powder flashes as guns roared off-stage.

A colorful ballet of the colors, with dancers dressed in red, white, and blue was followed by a scene in which the flag was carried into the pioneer West. A replica of the famous Baltimore and Ohio engine No. 207, of 1853, and a 125-year-old stage coach pulled pioneers across the stadium as the Stars and stripes billowed at the flagpole.

Climaxing the pageant was a "Living Flag" scene in which 44 girls and boys in three phalanxes of red, white and blue, converged in a tri-color panorama as Fort Myer cavalrymen rode on the field with "Old Glory" flying proudly in the breeze.

Bride-to-Be Runs Second as Police Get Her Man

A colored woman was all set to "get her man" yesterday at Upper Marlboro, but police beat her to it.

When the couple applied for a marriage license, Prince Georges County police took the man into custody and held him for Washington police, who wanted him for questioning in connection with an incendiary fire.

The woman, however, refused to be discouraged. She borrowed $3 from her husband-to-be and filed the application for the license anyway.

Family Reunion Held at Kimball

Luray, Va., Aug. 14.—Seven hundred and fifty persons yesterday attended the eleventh Beahm-Myers-Moyer reunion at Rocky Branch Church, Kimball. Mrs. E. L. Whitaker, of Charlestown, W Va, first woman to hold the office, was elected president for the coming year. She succeeds Luther Beahm, of Roanoke. Other officers are S. L. Batman, Kimball, treasurer, and Mrs Barney Shenk, secretary.

The program consisted of talks by representatives of families, with a special song program morning and evening. The singing was led by G. O. Myers, of Clarendon, and B. C. Strickler, of Luray.

Montgomery Liquor Board To Rule on Tax

Retail Dealer Cited For Failure to Pay County Imposed Levy

Richard H. Dietle, retail beer dealer of Montgomery Hills, Md., yesterday appeared before the Liquor Control Board at Silver Spring to show cause why his license should not be revoked on a charge of violating the county beer regulations.

Dietle was one of three beer dealers cited by the board a month ago for allegedly failing to pay a beer handling tax of 10 cents a case and $1 a barrel imposed by the county.

Eugene J. C. Raney, wholesaler, of Kensington, has since filed an injunction suit in the circuit court challenging the county's right to levy a tax in addition to the State license fee.

The board announced that a decision in all the cases would be handed down next Monday.

A beer and light wine license for the Hot Shoppe, 7990 Georgia avenue, was approved by the board. There was no opposition to the application.

Girl, 12, Electrocuted

Warrenton, Va., Aug. 14 (AP).—Agnes Louise Jackson, 12, daughter of an employe on the Belvoir estate of Mrs. Fairfax Harrison in upper Fauquier County, was electrocuted today when she came in contact with a live wire while crossing a field near her home.

$10,000 Fire Destroys Roberts House At Colchester; Furnishings Are Saved

Fire yesterday destroyed the 12-room dwelling occupied by A. Harmon Roberts, at Colchester, Fairfax County, Va. Loss was estimated at $10,000. Most of the furnishings were saved.

The blaze originated in the roof from an unknown cause and rapidly swept beyond control. The volunteer fire departments of Franconia, Occoquan and the District of Columbia Workhouse succeeded in saving several outbuildings. Mrs. Roberts and several of her children were at home when the fire started. This is the third dwelling in which the Roberts family has lived in the last 15 years which has been destroyed by fire.

Guldahl Wins $10,000 Play-Off With Par 70

The Washington Post Sports

16 WASHINGTON: TUESDAY, AUGUST 15, 1939 ★★★

Takes $2,500 First Prize Over Shute

Gene Sarazen 3d With 75, Shute Has 74; Winner's Eagle 2 Is Factor

By the United Press.

Wildwood Country Club, Pittsburgh, Aug. 14.—Ralph Guldahl late today won first prize of $2,500 in a battle of champions at Wildwood Country Club after an 18-hole playoff in the $10,000 Dapper Dan Open Golf Tournament.

The two-time winner of the National Open smashed out a par 70, four strokes ahead of Denny Shute, two-time winner of the national P. G. A. title, and five strokes ahead of Gene Sarazen, holder at one time or another of all the major honors golf awards.

With 5,000 fans in the gallery, Guldahl took the lead at the seventh hole, bolstered it with an eagle 2 on the eighth and led Shute by two and Sarazen by three strokes at the turn with a 34. He added two more strokes to his lead in the back nine, while Shute and Sarazen were taking 38s, three over par.

The playoff became necessary after they tied at 287 at the end of 72 holes yesterday.

Today's win meant $2,500 for Guldahl, the heavy, stoop-shouldered professional from Madison, N. J. Shute took $1,250 and Sarazen $1,000. The trio also splits half the proceeds from the extra day's play.

In wry good humor after his defeat for the first time in a playoff, Sarazen blamed most of his trouble on the well-trapped course. The blasting shots troubled him, he said.

Shute, the cool-shooting professional from Huntington, W. Va., led with a birdie at the first hole, but lost his advantage on the second with a one over par, while his opponents were down in fours for birdies. Two holes were parred and then Shute picked up a stroke with a one over par four as Sarazen and Guldahl met trouble in the traps and took sixes. Shute dropped one behind with a one over par four on the seventh.

Guldahl, in a sand trap on his tee shot on the 291-yard eighth, blasted a beautiful shot that landed 15 feet short of the pin and rolled slowly, ending in a trickle to the left for an eagle two. Shute birdied and Sarazen parred.

Gene Fails on Approaches

Sarazen, erratic with his approach shots, dropped another stroke behind with a one over par five on the ninth while Shute and Guldahl were home in par. For the first nine, Guldahl took 34, one under par; Shute, 36; Sarazen, 37.

Shute dropped another stroke to both Sarazen and Guldahl when he fived, the par 4 tenth, but picked it up again on the 170-yard eleventh, when he was down in 2 and the others took 4s.

Sarazen picked up one with a 4 on the twelfth and Guldahl gained a stroke with a 4 on the thirteenth. Sarazen became irked with the unruly gallery on the fourteenth. Spectators rushed him as he blasted out of the trap, where he had landed on his second shot. The stocky Italian snorted in disgust as the ball reached the green's edge and then trickled back into the sand. Guldahl, sinking a 20-foot putt, and Sarazen each got birdie 3s on the sixteenth.

The seventeenth and eighteenth holes were comparatively uneventful. Guldahl, leading Shute by 3 and Sarazen by 5, played the holes safe for a par 3 and 5. Shute, trying to close the gap with daring shots, dropped one behind on the seventeenth and barely parred the last when he drove across No. 1 fairway and ended in a trap with his second.

Don McNeill, Frank Parker Nearly Upset

Chestnut Hill, Mass., Aug. 14.—America's Davis Cup doubles problem became more acute today when the country's top ranking team of Frankie Parker and Don McNeill were driven to five sets by a pair of little-known youngsters in a first-round match of the national doubles tennis championship.

Parker and McNeill, supposed to hold the inside track to the cup doubles job, looked anything but dependable in beating Bill Talbert, of Cincinnati, and Jack Bushman, of Baton Rouge, 6—3, 4—6, 3—6, 6—1, 6—2. Expected to win in straight sets, they fell completely apart in the second and third chapters as the youngsters belabored them with volleys, drives and smashes. McNeill couldn't hit his hat overhead and Parker all but wore out the net hitting it with his weak forehands and inept volleys.

Favorites Ragged

Frankie and Don settled down a bit in the final two chapters, but never did play tennis to equal that displayed by Talbert and Bushman in their winning sets. Watching the ragged exhibition was the Australian doubles team, Adrian Quist and Jack Bromwich, and what they saw must have bolstered their confidence. Quist and Bromwich reached the second round without lifting a racquet when Ernie Sutter and Gil Hunt, Washington, D. C., defaulted.

The Australian No. 2 team of Harry Hopman and Jack Crawford was very impressive in scoring a 6—2, 6—2, 6—3 victory over Norman Drake and Wallace McIntyre, of Boston. Crawford played as well as he did a few years ago when he was No. 1 in the world, and Hapman was only a shade less effective.

The best tennis of the day was played by the California combination of Jack Tidball and Gene Mako in downing Bryant Grant and Hal Surface, 7—9, 6—4, 6—2, 6—3. Mako, who paired with Don Budge to win the title in 1937 and 1938, won seven tournaments in the winter with Tidball, and they showed fine teamwork today. After losing the first set to Grant's fine retrieving and Surface's sparkling net play, the Californians settled down and won with ease. Mako was tremendous in the forecourt, and Tidball drove with severity and sureness in this first-round match.

Conn, in Heavy Debut, Stops Dorazio in 8th

12,000 See Lightheavy Champion Win TKO as Foe's Eye Is Badly Cut

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Aug. 14.—Young Billy Conn, the lightheavyweight champion, charged up into the heavyweight division tonight to stop Gus Dorazio, rugged Philadelphia campaigner, in the eighth round of a ten-round bout before a crowd of 12,000 fans in Shibe Park. Conn weighed 173½ and Dorazio 186¼.

Referee Leo Hauck stopped the one-sided contest after 1 minute and 52 seconds of the eighth had elopsed. Dorazio, half blind from a badly cut left eye, was all but hanging on at the finish.

The verdict was greeted by jeers from a portion of the congregation. Dorazio and his handlers protested the decision, insisting Gus was not badly damaged and able to continue.

Promoters estimated the crowd paid slightly more than $21,000 to see Conn in his first start since he won the lightheavyweight crown from Melio Bettina in New ork just a month ago.

The Pittsburgher, who already is being touted as a possible contender for heavyweight honors a year or two hence, was far ahead on points when Hauck stepped in and halted tonight's proceedings.

The Associated Press scorecard gave Conn six rounds, including the abbreviated eighth, Dorazio one and called one even.

Olney Beats El Chico To Win Narragansett

By the Associated Press

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 14.—The lightly held Walmac Farms' Onley, 19 to 1 in the mutuels, took the $5,000 added Narragansett Handicap from the favored El Chico by a slim nose today at the opening of Narragansett Park's 30-day summer meeting.

Onley finished the 6-furlong sprint for 3-year-olds in 1:11, four-fifths of a second slower than the track record, and a photo was necessary to separate the winner from William Zeigler, jr.,s El Chico, which had two and one-half lengths on Mrs. Emil Denemark's Prairie Dog.

The Walmac horse's backers received $89.70, $7.60 and $4, while El Chico paid $2.60 and $2.30, and Prairie Dog returned $6.40.

With the original field of 23 cut to 10 horses, Tommy Heard, jr.'s Be Blue broke from the gate like a shot and set the early pace.

Closets to the only filly in the race was B. P. Woodson's Leading Article, with Prairie Dog up forward in the run down the back stretch. As they flashed past the half mile pole, Leading Article showed in front briefly.

El Chico Lays Back

Neither El Chico nor Olney really started their run until reaching te far turn. Then the favorite, with Nick Wall aboard, went through on the rail, while Sammy Renick sent Olney up on the outside.

They came to the quarter pole with El Chico leading Be Blue by a head and Olney only a neck farther back.

Straightening for home, El Chico drove to a lead that seemed destined to bring him to victory, but Olney, carrying 7 pounds less, drove down the stretch to nip the favorite at the wre, with the entire field close up.

The victory was worth $4,950 to Owner R. W. McIlvain, who also bred Olney.

Dodgers Pay $40,000 for 2 Outfielders

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 14.—The Brooklyn Dodgers today announced the purchase for $40,000 of Outfielders Chales Gilbert and Calvin Chapman from Nashville of the Southern Association and the exercising of their option on Ptcher Carl Doyle, of Memphis, of the same circuit.

Gilbert and Chapman may report to the Dodgers after the Southern League playoffs. If not, they will join the club next spring. It is indefinite when Doyle will don his new uniform, as Memphis is eading the Southern League and may get into the Dixie series after the circuit's playoffs.

Gilbert, 20-year-old centerfielder, is a son of Larry Gilbert, Nashville manager, who played with the 1914 world champion Boston Braves. He is playing his first season in organized baseball. Chapman, 27-year-old former infielder, was up with the Reds in 1935. The Dodgers paid $20,000 for Doyle's contract. He was with Brooklyn during spring training, but was not in condition to pitch.

Harry Jeffra, Archibald in Title Go Here

Featherweights To Battle Sept. 11 At Griff Stadium

Joey Archibald, of Pawtucket, R. I., world's featherweight champion, and Harry Jera, of Baltimore, former bantamweight champion, yesterday signed contracts in New York for a 15-round title fight September 11 at Griffith Stadium, an Associated Press dispatch from New York disclosed.

The champion will receive $10,000 with a privilege of taking 42½ per cent of the gate, Al Weill, his manager, said. Jeffra is to get 17½ per cent. The local promoters will turn over a share of the receipts to the convention fund of the National Boxing Association, meeting here September 11-13, it was said.

Although Promoter Joe Turner had not been notified of the details of the signing of the match, he said Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn had gone to New York to make arrangements for closing the Jeffra-Archibald fight.

No Word From Goldie

"Goldie was to wire me if it should be necessary for me to come to New York, but I haven't heard from him," Turner said.

Ahearn went to New York with a promise from Max Waxman, manager of Jeffra, that he would put up the $10,000 Weill demanded before Archibald would put his title at stake, Turner said.

Weill notified Turner and Ahearn Saturday that he had scaled down his original demand of $15,000 and would put Archibald in a title fight with anybody—including Petey Scalzo," Turner said.

Scalzo Rated Highly

The N. B. A., in its recent quarterly ratings, "insisted" upon Scalzo as the "logical contender" for Archibald's crown. The ratings committee announced, however, that it would consider next in line a bout between Archibald and Simon Chavez, of Venezuela; Dave Castillou, of Montreal, Canada, or Jeffra as the most outstanding title fight.

Pete Reilly, Scalzo's manager, is understood to be en route to Venezuela with Scalzo to meet Chavez in a fight in which Archibald was originally scheduled to appear. Beaten by Chavez in a nontitle bout, Archibald had been warned by the N. B. A. of "drastic action" if he risked his title against the Venezuelan before giving the four fighters named a chance. A $17,500 guarantee had awaited Joey in Venezuela.

Jeffra, who won the bantamweight title from Sixto Excobar only to lose it back to him in 1938 when he received a broken jaw in the first round, is now rated among the honorable mentions in the featherweight division.

Gallagher-Robinson Winner to Meet Dudas

Nathan Mann, New Haven heavyweight who beat Steve Dudas last week at Griffith Stadium, will meet the winner of Monday night's ten-round match between Marty Gallagher, the Foggy Bottom warrior, and Jim Robinson, of Philadelphia, it was announced last night.

Now in the "first ten" title contenders' circle, Mann will meet the Robinson-Gallagher winner probably late in September.

Joey Bets Wins First, Merry Caroline 2d At Washington Park; Is All-Time Mark

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 14.—The Washington Park Jockey Club paid $10,772.40 on a daily double ticket today—largest in the history of American racing—to Claude E. Elkins, who spurns the experts in favor of his own handicapping.

Elkins, a 40-year-old bowling alley and billiard parlor operator at Little Anna, Ill., wired in his selections from his home town, but it wasn't a shot in the dark.

He said he had his own good reason for naming Joy Bet and Merry Caroline as winners of the first and second races at Washington. He was the only better having the winning daily double ticket.

Joy Bet, owned by Mrs. Milton Rieser, of Louisville, Ky., and trained by her husband, paid $141.40 to win, $244.00 to place and $31.80 to show. Merry Caroline, running for Paul Kelley, paid $20.00, $9.00 and $5.00. Both races were 6 furlongs. Joy Bet running the distance in 1:14, and Merry Caroline in 1:15.

Elkins' winning choice was wired in by H. E. Davis, of Anna, who said several of his friends sent their selections to the track in a single wire to save telegraph tolls.

"Although I signed the wire, Elkins' bet was his own alone and no one else's," Davis said. "I understand the check from the track will come in my name. If it does, I'll sign it right over to Elkins. I'm glad he rung the bell, he's a good boy."

Elkins said the most he had ever won before was a third share of a $600 ticket.

"Sort of Cold and Sticky"

"I thought some of the boys were kidding me," he said, "when I heard the daily double winner. I felt sort of cold and sticky all over. No, I don't plan any sort of celebration. I guess I'll just bank the money.

"I had been watching the workouts of those two horses for some time and I thought maybe this was just the spot for them to win. So I just decided to take a chance on them and win a big pot of nothing."

He is married and has one son, 14 years old.

Sure of Losing, Married Men Win; Beer's on Them

The married men defeated the single men, 8-7, in a softball game yesterday at Edgewood Playground but probably the unhappiest bunch of fellows ever to grace the diamond there.

The losers were to play hosts to the winners at a beer party after the game, and so pessimistic were the married gentlemen they rushed out before the game and laid in a supply of beer. Their victory caught them short, but they gave the party anyway. Pop Roach, the winning pitcher, played host. Eddie Sherwood was the losing pitcher.

Navy Plebes Draw 1939 Football Gear

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 14.—While Navy plebes stood in an almost unending line and drew football gear for the practice season, which opens tomorrow, John Wilson, the veteran, who will have charge of the first-year team this year, assembled his staff on the field here this afternoon.

Wilson's regular assistants this year will be Archie Soucek, captain and end of the 1936 Navy eleven, and Snead Schmidt, the ace back the same and previous season; "Bullet Lou" Kirn, one of the Navy's great all-time backs, and Lou Bryan, tackle, both of whom played their last season in 1931, will also help, and will complete an unusually strong coaching staff for the plebes.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

New York, Aug. 14.—Step up to the tee, my friend, and the odds are 6,470 to 1 that you won't make a hole in one. In fact, in your case the chances are that the odds are 10,000 or 100,000 to 1, because the 6,470-to-1 odds we have arrived at pertain only to those golfers who have made a hole in one.

POVICH

We get the figures from the World-Telegram's eighth annual hole-in-one tournament now being breathlessly conducted at New York courses. In the seven previous years of the tournament, during which 3,548 golfers, who were eligible by reason of having holed out a golf drive, competed, only three were able to stick their tee shots into the cup. The ratio was three out of 17,740 shots made from the green and that, unless our arithmetic fails us, resolves itself into 6,470 to 1.

Three hundred and fifty makers of holes in one during the past year have already competed in the current tournament and have taken 1,750 shots, five per player, and the result is amazing, seeing as how the greens are within iron-shot distance. Not only have they failed to make a hole in one, but the closest shot to the pin has been 2½ feet distant.

The business of the hole-in-one in golf is more akin to the no-hit game in baseball than anything we know. Luck must be in attendance and thus it is that while Walter Johnson required 13 years in the big leagues before he could record a no-hitter, countless comparative pitching bums were able to turn the trick.

One Ace for Bobby Jones

Thousands of golf duffers likewise have made holes in one, but Bobby Jones, grandest golfer of them all, has made only one ace in his career, and there are outstanding pros and amateurs who have never made an ace. Yet your public links golfer, whose best shot in his bag is his fourth putt, is apt to excel at the hole-in-one business because in the case of a hole in one you never can tell.

Ten, 15 years ago, the hole in one was actually something to be proud of. It was occasion for the lucky maker to buy the drinks and report same (not the drinks) to the nearest newspaper office. Sports desk men could always tell the maker of a hole in one the moment he poked his head through the door. He had a breathless sort of cat-ate-canary smile on his face and he was armed with documents signed by his playing partners to prove that he had made his ace. He wanted his name in the paper, and it was always considered of some news value.

But no more. Holes in one have become so frequent that they are no longer newsworthy unless they occur in an important tournament, and somehow the best golfers never seem to make a hole in one. It's only the Joe Blowes and the Susie Slutes who don't know an overspin from a sand wedge who come up with the aces. The hole in one is not the badge of the good golfer, but of the lucky one. Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen never made holes in one in their life, if you don't follow us.

The only hole in one we ever saw had all the trappings of a Van Dyne mystery, and in fact we never actually saw the only hole in one we ever saw. It was a phantom sort of affair, but we shall forever believe that it was a hole in one.

Walter Haight Drew a Blank

The hero of piece was Walter D. Haight, The Post's racing writer who was a deadly shot with a No. 2 iron he had picked up in the second-hand rack at East Potomac Park ten years ago. It was a club that, normally, a good golfer would use 200 yards from the green, but Haight knew his limits and pulled it from his bag on a 130-yard hole. His idea of playing a 130-yard hole was a run-up shot from tee to green.

His shot lacked height, but it had everything else—direction and distance. It took 20 hops down the fairway, bounded onto the green and then headed for the cup in a slow roll. We saw it disappear, and Height jubilantly dashed for the green to claim his hole-in-one. Confidently he reached into the cup and withdrew nothing but his hand. The ball wasn't there. An hour's search failed to turn it up, but we'll always believe it was a hole in one despite the fact we couldn't produce the corpus delicti.

Ever hear about the guy who made a hole in one and lost the hole? Honest, it did happen.

It happened in Washington only two years ago to a gentleman named Harvey Cobb playing in a twosome against Roddy Thomas, a sports writer. On a par 3 hole, Cobb made his drive, saw it land within putting distance for a birdie 2. It was Thomas' turn to shoot.

"I'm too damned tired," said Thomas, "and I can't match that drive anyway, I quit."

"Don't quit," said Cobb. "I'll shoot this one for you and you rest until the next hole."

Whereupon, Cobb smacked Thomas' ball onto the green, saw it take one bounce into the cup for a hole in one, and defeated himself on the hole.

Grid Schedules Upset By Turkey Day Shift

President Roosevelt's New Order Brings Pain to College Officials; 'Change April Fool Day' Is Cry

College football schedule makers ordered extra supplies of aspirin today as they set about to conform next year's Thanksgiving Day games to the new date set aside yesterday by President Roosevelt. The shift of Turkey Day from November 30 to the 23d will cause a wholesale alteration, it appeared last night.

Thirty-five games, including many traditional battles, already are scheduled for November 30, and with that day no longer a legal holiday, gate receipts would undoubtedly slump, travel conflicts would appear and many trains would ply with only five days rest.

Locally, three colleges will be affected—George Washington, Maryland and Catholic universities—and in the case of Maryland the Presidential decree will force the abandonment of a school regulation, irector of Athletics Geary Eppley said last night.

For years the Old Liners have completed their football season in Baltimore against Washington and Lee on Thanksgiving Day in accordance with the policy of not extending playing time beyond that date. However, Eppley did not believe it would be possible to do that now.

He Hadn't Heard

When reached by phone last night Eppley hadn't heard the news and his first comment was, "What in the world will we do?"

The most logical solution, he reasoned, was to move the game with Syracuse from November 25 to December 2, the following Saturday, or play the General on that date.

The same procedure will likely be followed by George Washington, Publicity Director John Busick indicated.

"In all probability we'll have to move up that game with West Virginia at Morgantown from what we thought was to be Thanksgiving to December 2," he said. "That is the only thing we can do, since we are to play Bucknell on November 18 and Kansas on November 26.

Football Coach and Athletic Direrctor A. J. Bergman, of Catholic University, could not be reached for a statement.

Change April Fools Day

"We must consult North Carolina," he said, "regarding our Thanksgiving Day game at Chapel Hill, but I know the situation is going to work hardships on teams all over the country. If we play North Carolina on the 23d we'll have only five days' rest after the tough V. P. I. game."

As a parting shot he suggested that April Fools Day be changed also.

Among other traditional games to be affected by the new Thanksgiving date are N. Y. U.-Fordham, Cornell - Pennsylvania, Missouri - Kansas, Alabama-Vanderbilt, Auburn-Florida, Arkansas - Tulsa, Texas-Texas A. and M., Washington-U. C. L. A. and V. P. I.-V. M. I.

Outspoken Gus Dorais, football coach at Detroit niversity, had this to say, according to the Asociated Press:

"It's going to ball up things for a lot of teams, but there aren't as many Thanksgiving Day games as there used to be . . . Play in Pittsburgh on December 2? I couldn't think of anything worse; we always get snowed in there on Thanksgivign as it is. I suggest November 23.

French Hurt, Beats Cards For Cubs, 4-0

Halts St. Louis March On Cincinnati Despite First Inning Injury

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Aug. 14.—Left-handed Larry French abruptly halted—at last temporarily—the St. Louis Cardinals' upward march toward the league-leading Cincinnati Reds today, holding them to four hits as the Chicago Cubs won the first of a two-game series, 4 to 0.

The defeat dropped St. Louis seven games back of Cincinnati which was idle this afternoon but plays Pittsburgh tonight.

Stan Hack's two bagger in the fourth drove in two runs and Bill Nicholson's home run in the fifth accounted for another. The first run, in the third, came on Joe Medwick's error. The St. Louis leftfielder let Billy Herman's single roll through his legs and Hack, who had gone from first to third on the blow, reached home.

French's excellent mound performance might not have been achieved had a first-inning spike wound proved more serious. The pitcher covered first on Stuart Martin's infield blow fielded by Glen Russell, who threw wide to the base, and French was spiked on the play. French took time out for repairs, then continued.

Two of the Cardinals' four singles came in the fourth but no runner got past second in this or any other inning. After Martin's safety in the fifth, French pitched no-hit ball the rest of the way.

McCosky Out at Third in Close Race With Ball

The Detroit outfielder tried hard to make the bag ahead of the ball in the third inning of the first game of a double-header between the Tigers and Indians yesterday, but Cleveland's Rollie Hemsley fielded Earl Averill's bunt and threw to Ken Keltner to force him. The Indians won the game, 8-4

G. U. and G. W. to Stage Football Doubleheader October 7

First Home Games Joined In Novelty

Hoyas Meet Roanoke, Colonials to Tackle Davis-Elkins at Griffith Stadium

By Jack Munhall.

Now that the easiest way to excite the public pulse of interest appears to lie in the unorthodox—such as devouring scads of goldfish, phonograph records and other choice unedibles, and in playing softball all night for endurance records—George Washington and Georgetown universities have an idea of their own for next football season.

Under a joint agreement completed yesterday between Max Farrington, director of athletics at the G street school, and H. Gabriel Murphy, graduate manager of athletics at the Hilltop, Georgetown and George Washington will combine their opening home game into a double-header at Griffith Stadium Saturday, October 7.

First Game at 1:30

An innovation at least in this section of the country, the plan is for Georgetown to meet Roanoke at 1:30 in the first game and for George Washington to play against Davis-Elkins in the second at 3:30.

The price of admission for the two games will be $1.10; there will be no reserved seats and all tickets will be sold on a first-come, first-served basis. Students of both schools will be admitted on presentation of their athletic books and both schools are to consider the double-header as their home game.

It is the desire of George Washington and Georgetown, which are renewing their gridiron rivalry after a 16-year lapse on October 28, to give Washington fans and their alumni and students a real spectacle at the beginning of the season and also afford them a basis of comparison between the Colonial and Hoya elevens.

Joint Production.

Murphy and Farrington, who brought about the renewal of athletic relations between the universities which began with a basketball game last season, worked out plans for this novelty together and will produce it jointly.

The Roanoke contest will be Georgetown's opening home game, but not its first of the season. The Hoyas, undefeated last season for the first time in their 64-year gridiron history, are to open their schedule with Temple at Philadelphia September 29.

GEORGETOWN

September 29, Temple, at Philadelphia. October 7, Roanoke, at home; 14, Syracuse, at Syracuse; 20, Bucknell, at Lewisburg, Pa.; 28, George Washington, at home. November 4, West Virginia, at home; 11, Maryland, at home; 18, New York University, at New York.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

October 7, Davis and Elkins, at home; 14, Butler, at Indianapolis; 20, Citadel, at home; 28, Georgetown, at home. November 3, Clemson, at home; 18, Kansas, at Lawrence, Kans.; 25, Bucknell, at home; 30, West Virginia, at Morgantown.

McCoy and Managoff Support Rassle Card

Bibber McCoy, pudgy Boston wrestler, whose ambition is to break Nanjo Singh's cobra clutch and unmask the Golden Terror, will meet Pete Managoff Thursday night at Turner's Arena when the objects of his ambition clash in the 90-minute feature match.

Singh and The Terror will be doing a repeat performance. Nanjo was disqualified last week when he refused to live up to gentlemanly requirements set by Referee Casey Berger. Jack Hader will meet Juan Ologuival in a preliminary.

Champion Underwater Sculler Was a Scrawny Kid in Youth

Bill Calhoun, world champion underwater sculler, is another of those Atlases who evolved into his present blustering health from a scrawny kid who probably inspired the "Before" for "Before and After" advertisements.

"When I was 12 years old," Bill related between gasps yesterday after emerging from a two-minute stay under water at the Glen Echo pool, "a doctor took one pitying look at me, made a clucking noise with his tongue and said I'd never be able to do any athletics.

"I was sunken-chested and skinny, so feeble I couldn't have flattened a gnat in a hand-to-hand fight, but still I wasn't convinced I must always be that way. So first I took up weight lifting and working out on the horizontal bars and later swimming, which was highly recommended as a developer of the chest."

Thus it was that this bronzed 28-year-old husky of Norfolk, Va., started on the road to vigorous health and also success with stunts that are country renowned, especially his world's record for underwater sculling. In the A. A. U. Carnival at Seaside, Va., in 1933 Calhoun remained under for 3 minutes 48 3-5 seconds.

In the meattime the former weakling who had grown to be a well-proportioned 6 feet and 190 pounds went to college, received an A. B. from William and Mary and a law degree from Richmond, starring in football and boxing in his undergraduate days.

Leaving William and Mary Calhoun tried his hand with indifferent success at professional boxing before accepting the job he now holds as director of sports activities at a Virginia Beach Club.

Besides his two-minute stunt under water Calhoun performed several other difficult feats at Glen Echo yesterday as he made his first local appearance.

Among these was walking the width of the pool (30 yards) under water with Joe Aronoff, a 207-pound lifeguard standing on his shoulders. It required about 45 seconds for Calhoun to negotiate the distance. Then, with scant rest, be allowed volunteers to tie his hands behind his back and his ankles together with heavy rope and swam a similar distance with motions.

Lyn Lary Moves Again; To Fly To Aid Cards

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Aug. 14.—The St. Louis Cardinals today announced the purchase of Shortstop Lyn Lary from the Brooklyn Dodgers for immediate delivery.

LARY

Lary, acquired to bolster the infield during the stretch drive of the National League race which the Cardinals hope will lead to a pennant, may come by airplane and be in uniform for the Chicago game tomorrow. The purchase price was not announced, but since Lary could not be obtained unless all clubs beneath the second-place Cardinals waived on him, he probably was gotten for the waiver price of $7,500.

Lary was with Cleveland last year and at one time played with the St. Louis Browns and the Washington Nationals.

Browns Official Sues Dizzy Dean for $6,987

St. Louis, Aug. 14 (AP).—William O. (Bill) DeWitt, vice president and general manager of the St. Louis Browns, today filed suit in circuit court to collect $6,989 from Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean, Chicago Cubs pitcher.

DeWitt, secretary of the St. Louis Cardinals when Dean pitched for that club, claims Dean owes him that amount for acting as his agent in obtaining commercial contracts.

Jack Torrance Signs Contract With Chicago Bears Pro Eleven

Former L. S. U. Star, Shot Put Record Holder, Weighs 312

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 14. Jack Torrance, world's shot put record holders and former Louisiana State tackle, signed a contract today with the Chicago Bears of the National Professional Football League.

Torrance is 25 years old nad weighs 312 pounds, about 40 pounds over his best playing weight in college.

Owner-Coach George Halas, of the Bears, said he offered the former L. S. U. star a job after learning he recently lost a political position in Louisiana. Torrance has never played pro football before, but tried his hand at fightin for a short period after leaving school.

Halas also announced Ray Buivid, one-time Marquette star and bear halfback the past two years, had decided not to play pro football this season.

Tigers Split With Indians; Rowe Victor

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Aug. 14.—A diligent Schoolboy Rowe rescued the Detroit Tigers from their first losing streak in a month today by beating the Cleveland Indians, 10-3, in the second game of a double-header after the visitors snatched the opener, 8-4, in ten innings.

Loss of the first game stretched Detroit's streak of defeats to three in a row after two successive batterings from the St. Louis Browns, but the Schoolboy, industriously trying to come back to his old greatness, mastered Oscar Vitt's Braves in the nightcap. It was his sixth victory against nine defeats.

Rowe, helped ably by the rookie rhythm boys, Barney McCosky and Benny McCoy, allowed nine hits but pitched seven straight scoreless innings and walked only one man. The Indians got a run in the first and were blanked until the ninth.

Reds Defeat Bucs, 9-8, on Rally in 9th

League-Leaders Make 4 Runs in Last Frame Of Night Contest

Cincinnati, Aug. 14 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates stampeded six Cincinnati pitchers tonight, but the Reds came back with a smashing four-run rally in the ninth inning to win the ball game, 9 to 8. Lew Riggs pinch singled the winning run with the bases full and two out.

In the first three innings Fletcher, of the Pirates, was the only batter on either team to reach first base. Derringer gave him a walk and he went to second on a fielder's choice in the second, but died there. Both pitchers had the batters hitting over and under the ball.

Derringer gave three singles in the fifth and was replaced by Davis, who was replaced by Johnson after four runs were in. Manager McKechnie and Ernie Lombardi, of the Reds, were ejected for arguing over a topped foul by Fletcher which could have been turned into a double play if ruled fair. Hershberger took Lombardi's place.

The Reds squeezed a run across in their half after filling the bases with none out, and then bounced back into the game with four in the sixth, featured by Myers' double with the bases loaded.

Portsmouth Buys 3 Salem Players

Salem, Va., Aug. 14 (AP).—Three Salem ball players were purchased by Portsmouth, of the Piedmont League, for delivery next spring, Joe Ryan, Salem business manager, announced tonight.

Ken Moore, 185-pound first baseman; Russell Mincy, leftfielder, and Henry Schenz, second baseman, were bought for an unannounced sum by Frank D. Lawrence, Portsmouth owner, after watching them perform against Harrisonburg last Thursday in a Virginia League game, Ryan said.

Springfield Farmhands Down Nats

Special Dispatch to The Post

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 14.—Featured by four home runs, equally divided between the teams, Springfield's Eastern League leaders won a 5-4 eight-inning game from Washington, of the American League, in the twilight here tonight. The game was halted in the eighth to permit the major leaguers to catch a train for New York.

Walter Masterson, picked off the Philadelphia sandlots, hurled for Washington and was touched for ten hits. Two home runs, each without the bases occupied, came in the second to give the home club a head start that the big leaguers never could erase.

Lewis crashed for the circuit in the seventh with Case on the paths, and Bloodworth, a former local player, walloped a homer in the eighth.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Aug. 14.—One good belt on the jaw can overcome all the hexes and evil omens connected with a prize fight, Mushky Jackson once said, and this must be a trifle comforting to Henry Armstrong as he prepares to defend his lightweight championship.

CONSIDINE

In Lou Ambers the minute mauler is fighting a man who has a habit of beating blokes who have beaten him. The first time Ambers fought Canzoneri, Tony gave him a flogging the likes of which Ambers hasn't had since his early gutter-fighting days. But the next time Ambers beat Canzoneri pretty much as he pleased, won the lightweight title from him, and then gave him an even worse licking the next and last time they fought.

Pedro Montanez drew his right duke back with the calculating form of a master archer one night at Madison Square Garden and hit Ambers so hard on the pimple that it spun him. Pedro went on to win the fight as he pleased. But not too long after that Ambers fought him again and the only thing Pedro could throw that night was a fit of frustration, over his inability to tag Ambers. Ambers won easily.

Baby Arizmendi, the barrel-chested Mexican whose infantile paralysis as a child gave him a man's trunk and a boy's legs, held Ambers to a draw when they fought in Los Angeles, and many believe he was robbed of the decision. But when he came East not long ago to fight Ambers, Lou cut him up and stopped him.

It was the first time Arizmendi had been stopped during a career which included 50-odd rounds of toe-to-toe fighting with Armstrong two decisions over Hammering Henry.

Henry has taken the trouble to consult his astrologer before this fight with Ambers. Various clusters of meteroids and planets have assured him, through the good offices of a Harlem star gazer, that he will do okay against Ambers. His consultation with the stars came immediately after word leaked out of Ambers' camp (by the sub rosa means of 17 batteries of mimeograph machines) that Ambers had renounced his old powder puff punching theories and was returning to his original role of slugger.

Ambers once killed a man. He hit a fighter named Tony Scarpati on the jaw and Scarpati fell over backwards and hit the thinly insulated ring with the back of his head. He never regained consciousness. If the decision had been left to him, Ambers probably never would have fought again. He was haunted for weeks, and he remained in the ring because the men who own him insisted on it. He fought a charity fight for Scarpati's people and he began giving money to a church. He must have dreamed a lot about this tragedy, for he changed his style of fighting. He began to dance, and flick his fists, and jig on his feet with great speed. During the entire year following Scarpati's death Ambers didn't score a single knockout, though he won the title from Canzoneri.

As a matter of fact, Ambers has been hitting harder for some time now. He is probably getting a little slower, a little more flat-footed, and like a million predecessors in the fist-fighting racket he is trying to do with one punch what he used to do with ten. He did a pretty good job on the solemn brown face of Arizmendi, and the damage he wreaked on Armstrong the last time they fought kept Armstrong out of the ring for three months. He opened a miniature grand canyon on the inside of Henry's lower ubangi and pummelled the bleeding member so unmercifully throughout the fight that Henry walked dazedly to the wrong corner when their mad dance was over. Armstrong was a 1-to-3 favorite over him in the first fight, but it was so close, and Ambers does so well the second time he squares off against a fellow, that Henry will only be a 6-5 or perhaps 7-to-5 for this one. We think Lou is an even money bet, with an excellent chance of winning.

Dutch Leonard Seeks Fifth Victory Over Yankees Today

By Shirley Povich.

A Staff Correspondent.

New York, Aug. 14.—Oldest inhabitants hereabouts don't recall the last time an American League pitcher beat the New York Yankees five times in a single season, but their memory may be refreshed tomorrow.

Because, you see, it will be Dutch Leonard on the mound for the Nats.

The Nats moved into New York tonight for the start of a three-game series with the Yanks, and within reach of big Leonard is some sort of a modern record. Four-time conqueror of the Yankees without a defeat this season, Leonard will be gunning for his fifth straight. If the Yanks are thankful for any one item this season, they are probably thankful that there is only one Leonard in the league.

The stoutish knuckle-baller was withheld from the Boston series by Manager Bucky Harris with tomorrow's effort in mind. Leonard has been a Yankee-baiter from the start of the season. In his first three efforts against the New York Club he allowed only 4 runs, won all three games. He has outdueled Red Ruffing, Lefty Gomez, Oral Hildebrand and Monte Pearson.

Other clubs have beaten Leonard. The St. Louis Browns twice knocked him from the box in the first inning. He has lost to the Tigers, the Indians and the White Sox. But against the Yankees he and his knuckle ball have been unanimously successful.

Faced with the Leonard problem, Manager Joe McCarthy tomorrow is expected to start either Lefty Gomez or Oral Hildebrand against the Nats. It is something of a crucial series for the Yankees, because meanwhile the second-place Red Sox will be entertaining push-over opposition in the Philadelphia Ath-

Home Night Debut Success as Rigney Gives Only 3 Hits

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 14.—The Chicago White Sox made their home debut under lights tonight an artistic as well as financial success was a 5-to-2 victory over the St. Louis Browns, moving back into third place behind the three-hit pitching of Johnny Rigney.

In a pre-game ceremony the newly-installed floodlights were turned on by Charles A. Comiskey, 2d, son of the late J. Louis Comiskey, and grandson of Charles A., the "old Roman" who founded the white Sox organization.

The White Sox have five more night games scheduled this season, one with every club except Detroit. The club's home debut under lights attracted close to 40,000 spectators.

War Plumage Drives Home by Length in Alabama Stakes

Lays Claim To 3-Yr.-Old Filly Title

Bass Wood 2d, Foul Claim Disallowed; Wheatley Entry 3d; Winner Pays 7 to 2

By the Associated Press

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 14.—James Cox Brady's War Plumage today staked a strong claim tothe 3-year-old filly championship when she drove home a length winner of the sixthy Alabama States of a mile and a quarter, standout event of the meeting for the equine members of the weaker sex. The brown daughter of On Watch-War Feathers defeated E. R. Bradley's Bass Wood for the $10,100 major share of the purse. She ran the distance over a drying out track in 2:05 and paid her backers 7 to 2.

The Wheatley Stable's Hostility, coupled with Bel Air Stud's Wise Lady, finished third, eight lengths behind. Solar Flight, followed by Red Eye, the disappointing 11 to 5 choice; Teddy's Girl, Wise Lady, Otra and War Regalia. Ciencia and Redlin were about the only noticeable absentees from the race, the oldest in the country for fillies.

Foul Claimed

Freddie Smith, who rode Bass Wood, claimed foul against the winner, saying his mount was carried out by War Plumage in the stretch, but the stewards deemed that the original result stand.

War Plumage has started only three times this season. She began her 1939 campaign with a galloping score in the Coaching Club American Oaks. Then she finished second to Wise Lady in the Delaware Oaks, but it was said that she did not ship well to the Delaware track.

Otra had the early speed of the lot, with Solar Flight and Red Eye also in front of the eventual winner. The fast beginners wilted rounding out of the backstretch as War Plumage ran into a daylight lead. Bass Wood loomed as a real threat turning for home and drew up to within a half length of the Brady filly at the eighth pole. Then War Plumage again pulled into the clear. Hostility closed with her usual belated speed to be an easy third.

The First Winner in American Racing's Record Daily Double

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TRUE KNIGHTESS, $4.60, $3.20, $2.20; SHORT MEASURE, $5.10, $3.20; MINORCA, $4.10.

TRUE KNIGHTESS went to the front at once, withstood early opposition from SHORT MEASURE, increasing her advantage steadily through the closing quarter. SHORT MEASURE, in closest pursuit of the winner from the outset, held on with good energy to the close. MINORCA went forwardly throughout although no match for the first two. POLLY PORTER was taken back after rounding the far turn.

Daily Double, Cleaning Time and True Knightess, Paid $45.50.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,200. The Hampshire. For 2-year-olds; allowances. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 3:15. Off at 3:17½. Winner, M. M. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GLORIOUS TIME, $5.50, $3.70, $2.90; CARDELL, $4.10, $3.50; PREDICATE, $6.20.

GLORIOUS TIME took command in the opening strides, drew clear in the first three-sixteenths, increased her advantage around the turn and was never seriously threatened. CARDELL was slow to settle into his best stride, was hard ridden to gain a forward position early, closed willingly in the stretch, but was unable to seriously endanger the winner. PRECEPTRESS unable to reach the leaders during the first 3 furlongs, came willingly in the stretch run.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:46. Off at 3:50. Winner, S. H. Fairbanks' ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—RANGE DUST, $49.70, $19.20, $8.00; GRISETTE, $12.30, $7.80; RISSA, $5.50.

RANGE DUST, hard ridden to gain a slight lead over XANTHEIN in the run through the backstretch, drew clear after rounding the far turn and, under severe pressure through the late stages, held GRISETTE safe. The latter, unable to keep pace early, found clear sailing on the inside entering the stretch. RISSA moved up stoutly on the outside to enter into contention, but was unable to go along with the first two through the last three-sixteenths. MY ELSIE closed ground in the last quarter.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $5,000 added. Narragansett Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:19 Off at 4:22. Winner, Walmac Farm's br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—OLNEY, $39.70, $7.60, $4.00; EL CHICO, $2.60, $2.30; PRAIRIE DOG, $6.40.

OLNEY, unplaced early, began working his way forwardly after rounding the far turn, moved up stoutly approaching the stretch and, closing in resolute fashion in the stretch run, was along in the concluding stride. EL CHICO was steadied along in pursuit of the leaders early, moved up on the inside when making his effort, readily assumed command and, while holding on determinedly, was not quite good enough. PRAIRIE DOG, well placed, dropped back after rounding the far turn, but came stoutly through the stretch run although unable to endanger the leading pair.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 4:51. Off at 4:53. Winner, R. A. Winier, R. A. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WAXWING, $9.80, $5.90, $5.30; TOW ROPE, $7.10, $6.20; LOVICK, $10.70.

WAXWING, going in his best form, went to the front in the run to the first turn, soon drew clear and, rated along under slight restraint, opened up a commanding advantage which was never seriously threatened. TOW ROPE, forwardly placed the entire trip and held on with good energy. LOVICK dropped back after rounding the far turn, but, holding to a position on the outside, finished willingly.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:22. Off at 5:27. Winner, D. J. Sullivan's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BROADWAY JUEL, $18.50, $10.40, $5.40; FLUSHING, $12.30, $7.60; STEEPLETOP, $3.90.

BROADWAY JUEL, bumped at the start and forced to take back in the run to the first turn, was not called upon for improved speed until the last five-sixteenths, moved up willingly on the inside and, wearing down FLUSHING, drew out fast in the last sixteenth. FLUSHING was prominent throughout, went to the front when called upon and, while holding on willingly under punishment, was not good enough. STEEPLETOP worked his way up gradually on the outside, loomed up menacingly nearing the stretch, but was unable to close any ground.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:55. Off at 5:58. Winner, W. E. Parker's gr. g. 1940 Printers' Golf Tourney To Washington

E. A. Merkle Elected 1st Vice President; Rack's 71 Leads

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Aug. 14.—In a meeting of the executive committee of the Union Printers International Golf Association here today preceding the annual tourney, Washington, D. C. was awarded the tournament for 1940.

Edgar Merkle, who with C. E. Purdy worked to get the event for the Nation's Capital, was elected first vice president, and Harold Hough, Baltimore, president. Harry Heskamp, Fort Thomas, Ky., was elected second vice president, and Ezra Craft, Detroit, secretary-treasurer.

Eddie Rack, of McKeesport, Pa., led the pack in the opening 18-hole medal-play round in defense of his 1938 title.

Rack, playing in a threesome with Ed Gableman, of Cincinnati, three times titleholder, and Ed Merkle, of Washington, D. C., former champion, turned in a 36, 35—71 to lead his closest competitors by 5 strokes.

R. Allen, of Kansas City, and J. Balestri, of Washington, were tied for second place with 76s. Allen's card was 37, 39, while Balestri turned in a 42 on the out nine and came back with a subpar 34 to gain a second-place tie.

D. Jacobs, of Chicago, posted a 39, 38—77 for third position. Gableman put together a 39 and 40 for a 79, and Merkle posted a 45, 37—82 over the Summit Hills course in Covington, Ki. A field of 26 was entered for the women's tournament tomorrow.

Leonard Tries For Fifth Win

letics and Yankee defeats by the Nats will be costly.

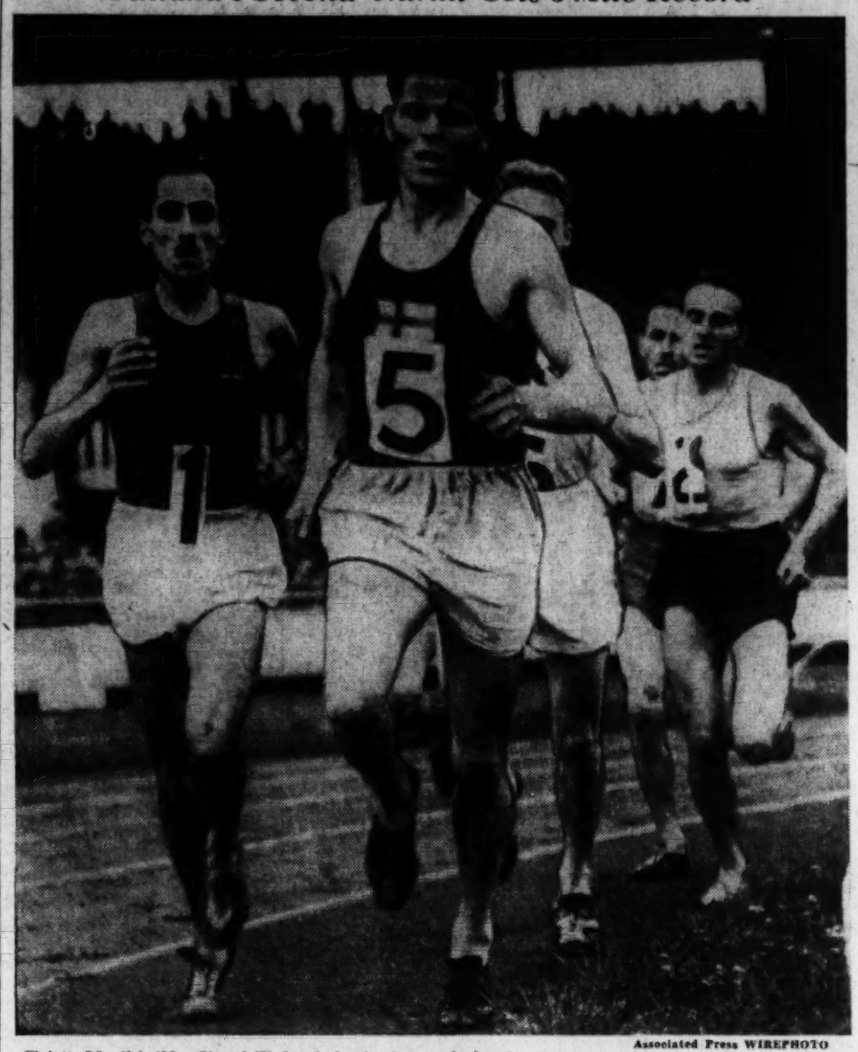
Against the Philadelphia pitching over the week-end the Yankees emerged from their batting slump with a rush and a roar, scoring 30 runs in a Sunday double-header, but the Yankees' pitching of late has bogged down horribly. Red Ruffing is the only man to go the full route in any of the Yankees' last eight starts.

He admits to being optimistic, but Bucky Harris is entertaining hopes of sweeping the three-game series with the Yanks. He is counting confidently on a victory by Leonard, and then will toss his left-handers, Joe Krakauskas and Ken Chase, at the New Yorkers. Krakauskas licked the Yanks in his last start but Chase was beaten, following which it was revealed he was pitching with a badly bruised finger, now healed.

Behind the bat for the Nats tomorrow will be Angelo Giuliani, the catcher Leonard prefers when he is pitching his knuckler.

Currently on a batting spree for the Nats are Jimmy Bloodworth and Buddy Lewis, who pounded the ball hard at Boston last week. Bloodworth walloped seven hits during the three-game series including a pair of doubles and a home run. And in the last game, Lewis collected four straight hits, including a pair of triples and a double. Lewis is now far in the van in three-base hits in the league.

Finland's Second 'Nurmi' Sets 3-Mile Record



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Taisto Maeiki (No. 5), of Finland, leads the pack in the 3-mile event of the recent White City, London, meet. Maeiki, being hailed a second Paavo Nurmi, negotiated the distance in 13:59.4 to set a new British record. Recently he bettered three world marks in three weeks and he is expected to keep Finland in the fore in the 1940 Olympics

Harrisonburg Nine Holds Slender Lead

Turks Ahead by Single Contest in Virginia League Race

VIRGINIA LEAGUE STANDING	W.	L.	Pct.

Salem-Roanoke	36	46	.439

Special Dispatch to The Post

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 14.—Putting on the steam in the last three days to take two from Staunton and one from Salem, the Harrisonburg Turks begin the new week with a one-game first place margin in the Virginia League.

Their hold is menaced by the Lynchburg Grays who climaxed the league's most successful week with six wins and three losses, scoring a double victory over Salem on Sunday in what was an all-important twin bill to both clubs. Staunton could turn in only three wins against five defeats, while Salem captured four of nine games.

Harrisonburg's seven-game winning streak which carried the Turks to first place a week ago, was halted by Staunton Monday and then Salem took two out of three from the pacesetters. The Turks came back to divide a two-game series with the Friends and then took two from Staunton, one in ten innings and the other by a runaway margin.

Lynchburg set a terrific pace with double victories over Staunton and Salem and single victories over each as well. The Grays dropped two games to Staunton on brilliant pitching by Southpaws Walter Poland and Wilkins. Lynchburg and Harrisonburg did not meet last week as they met five times the previous week.

The week saw the league's leading hurlers, all southpaws—Lefty Ernest Utz, of Harrisonburg; Walter Poland, of Staunton, and Vincent Palumbo, of Salem, turn in their thirteenth victory. Palumbo went the other two one better and turned in his fourteenth at the expense of Lynchburg, but he was charged with a loss in a one-inning relief role when a ninth-inning uprising by Harrisonburg netted seven runs and the ball game.

Baering Down

That's all right, too. A minute's rest between rounds at this stage of the game would seem like six weeks in the country, a month at the seashore and a trip to the mountains.

On Fishing

With a count of 910 white marlin for the total of the catch of the 1938 season off Ocean City, there were few who believed it would never be surpassed. Yet there have been taken this season to date more than 1200. And there are two full weeks, and possibly three or four with good breaks in the weather, to go. With catches continuing on the average daily catches of the past ten days there is every likelihood the total will be more than double the record take of 1938.

ACKERMAN

Anglers from every section of the Eastern seaboard, from the New England States, western Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia have been following this surprising fishing, until it has become almost impossible to get a boat, even through the middle of the week, with less than a reservation of five or six days in advance.

Boats Getting Rare

Don't forget the usual procedure is a sawbuck for the deposit. Wired, it is both a receipt and a matter of record. And pick more than one day that will be suitable to you in case your first choice has been taken.

The weekend saw a material change in the marlin schools which usually tighten up and surface more during August. There is very definitely a new run of fish during the past few days—largely, and due to the almost continuous southerly winds, being taken off the northern limits of the feeding grounds, Fenwick Shoals.

On Friday, with the schools only a few miles straight off the Inlet—well inside of the first steamer lane and the Jack Spot—the top fish of the season was boated on Cap't. Bill Bunting's Miss Maryland. It weighed 113 pounds and took an hour to land. In far better condition than many longer fish that have been caught—it measure 7 feet 2 inches, with a girth of 32 inches—it is thought by many to indicate the possibility of a record fish being brought in during the present run.

One Record Missing

With every other white marlin record being held in this area with the single exception of the largest ever caught, why not try to garner it also. Cap't. Leo Droughton, on whose boat the Sampan, the world record white marlin, weighing 162½ pounds, was caught early in 1938 at Bimini, has been a member of the Ocean City fleet for the past two summers.

On the same day Cap't. Jim Lombard raised to his baits a pair of sailfish. One, weighing 42 pounds and measuring 6 feet 9½ inches, was boated by a Newark angler. Its mate, regardless of several hours circling on the part of the captain of the Jim Dandie, reused to take the bait.

Last season Cap't. Raymond and several others were able to raise them, and in several instances even had them hooked, but Cap't. Jim Whaley on the Em-Pries II was the only captain lucky enough to bring one in.

It isn't too fantastic to believe, taking into consideration the other Gulf Stream fish feeding in Maryland waters, that we might get runs of Florida number one finster. The only difference in the modus operandi is the longer period of drop-back.

Smith, Murphy Win in North Virginia Play

Washington Net Stars Gain Quarter-Final; Meet Stiff Test Today

Special Dispatch to The Post

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 14.—Alphonso Smith, defending titleholder, and Dick Murphy, both of Washington, knocked off two opponents each in easy fashion here this afternoon to enter the quarter-finals of the Northern Virginia Tennis Tournament.

Smith, playing the same steady game that won him the honor last year, looms to cop the title again, but he can expect competition from Murphy and Bobby Leitch, Richmond City and Southside Virginia champion.

Smith today defeated Frank Billingsley, Fredericksburg, 6—1, 6—0, and John V. Holberton, Aberdeen, Md., 6—0, 6—1.

Murphy first downed Richard F. Lewis, Fredericksburg, 6—1, 6—2, and then Orrick Johnson, Fredericksburg, 6—1, 6—3.

Other results:

Singles

Bob Chichester defeated Barney Driscoll, 4—6, 6—1, 9—7.

Doubles

Peck Garrett and Brokie Lamb defeated Byrd Holloway and George H. White, jr., 8—6, 6—2; Beverley and Otis Jones, of Orange, defeated Fred E. Miller and Jim Simpson, 6—3, 6—3; Lieut W. S. McCormick and Lieut. P. J. Speckman, Quantico, defeated J. P. Rowe, jr., and Garnett Gouldman, 8—6, 6—4.

Paychek, ChicagoHeavy, On Shelf for Month

Chicago, Aug. 14 (AP).—John J. Paychek, Chicago heavyweight contender, will be on the pugilistic shelf for at least a month.

X-ray examination disclosed today that he fought Maurice Strickland 10 rounds in Des Moines, Iowa, last Tuesday night with a chiped bone in his left thumb.

Prece Hurls, Naiman Beats Ida's Nine, 7-2

Lefthander Prece scattered nine hits yesterday to lead Naiman Photo to a 7-2 victory over Ida's Department Store nine on the Monument Grounds.

Gregory, with three hits, and Mosser, with two, including a triple, led the winners' attack. The victory was Naiman's twenty-fourth in 26 games and preserved their undefeated status in the Takoma Recreation League.

Rep. Randolph Wins in Oakland, Md., Net Tourney

Oakland, Md., Aug. 14 (AP).—Four seeded players in the twentieth annual tennis tournament for the Western Maryland championship skipped through first-round matches without difficulty today but faced stiffer competition tomorrow from a narrowing field.

On hand for the tourney's opening was United States Representative Jennings Randolph, of Elkins, W. Va., who turned in a surprise three-set victory over Denwood Kelly, of Baltimore, 8—6, 2—6, 6—2. Randolph is a veteran competitor, having attended most of the tourneys since the first one in 1919.

Seeded players who advanced today were Ed Alco, who defeated Daniel S. Sullivan, jr., Baltimore, 6—2, 6—2; Albert Baker, Baltimore, No. 6, who disposed of Gail Barnes, Fairmont, W. Va., 6—2, 10—8; Roger Kirkpatrick, Baltimore, No. 8, who defeated Ken Whoolery, Fairmont, 6-2, 6-4, and Price Volvin, Baltimore, seeded No. 4, who beat Ralph Weber, Oakland, 6-4, 6-3.

Two more rounds will complete the 72-hole medal event today.

Arlington Girl, Only 6, Weaves Reed Cradle That Shows Able Skill and Craftsmanship

Margaret Owens Also Models in Clay With Talent

Only 6, Margaret Owens, of Arlington County, Va., has developed a craftsmanship in basket weaving and clay modeling to which many grown-ups could point with pride.

Her most recent creation is the reed cradle she has just finished weaving in the domestic arts playground directed by Miss Gertrude Smith at the James Monroe School, Arlington County.

Margaret is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard N. Owens, of Lyon Village. She has attended the class for two years.

She is as busy as a bee throughout her school day. She attends Gunston Hall private school in Washington. Taken to school each morning by her mother, she is in a class of 40 children.

Reed baskets are not her only product. She is fond of modeling pots and pans and animals in clay.

Chrysler Net Is 4½ Times 1938 Half Year

Profit of $5.83 a Share In 6 Months Compares With $1.31 a Year Ago

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 14.—Chrysler Corporation and subsidiaries today reported net profits of $25,345,771 for the first half of this year, nearly four and one-half times the earnings of $5,709,599 for the like 1938 period.

First half reports were equal to $5.83 a share on the common stock, contrasted with $1.31 a share a year ago.

For the second quarter the company showed indicated earnings of $13,707,481, almost four times greater than the $3,599,630 for the June quarter last year. This year's June quarter net was equal to $3.16 a common share, against 83 cents a share in the like 1938 period. June quarter earnings were substantially ahead of the $11,638,290, or $2.67 a share, reported in the opening quarter of this year.

Directors voted a dividend of $1.50 a share on common stock, payable September 13 to holders of record August 24, which will lift disbursements thus far this year to $4 a share, contrasted with $2 a share for all of 1938.

The earlier 1939 payments were $1.50 a share on June 12, and $1 a share March 14.

"The immediate prospect seems to be that business will continue at current levels, or possibly show some improvement," K. T. Keller, president, said, in announcing earnings and dividend.

Foreign Silver Price Advanced To 35⅝ Cents

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—The import price for foreign silver today was boosted to 35⅝ cents an ounce, a rise of ⅜ cent over Saturday.

The advance increased to ⅝ cent the premium quoted in the trade over the 35 cents an ounce the United States Treasury pays for the white metal. Imported silver went to a premium over the Treasury price last week, the first time since 1937.

Building Loans Set Ten-Year Peak in June

Total, $94,154,000; ½ Year, $453,955,000; 16% Over 1938 Period

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Members of the District of Columbia Building and Loan League have received word of a new national record for their industry. Savings, building and loan associations in June passed all previous months of the decade with loans of $94,154,000 to home-owners, the United States Building and Loan League reports to the local group, and this record month brought the total for the half year to 453,955,000, a gain of 16 per cent oved 1938's similar comparative period.

Clarence T. Rice, Kansas City, Kans., president of the National League, gives credit for the upward trend both to rising volume of home building and increasing amounts of available funds in savings and loan associations due to their current popularity as a channel for savings and investments. Each month of the first six this year saw an increase in loan volume over the preceding month. The rise from May to June was 5.7 per cent, considerably larger than that between these two months in either 1936, 1937 or 1938.

Mr. Rice explains the entire second quarter brought much more spectacular gains over last year's lending performance than did the first, demonstrating the increasing momentum of savings and loan associations' activity. The margin over 1938 was 21 per cent in the second quarter as against 13 per cent in the first.

31.8 Per Cent For New Homes

Loans for the building of new homes in June represented 31.8 per cent of the total, a larger proportion of the loan program than in any other month yet recorded since the depression. Coupled with this contribution of the thrift and home financing institutions to building trades' employment was the usual 6 per cent or so of loan volume disbursed for modernization and repair of homes, a further creator of employment.

Construction loans in the June record were surpassed in importance only by home purchase loans which continued as in previous months of this year to use the largest block of savings and loan financing, 34.2 per cent. For the six month period $1 out of every $3.40 loaned went for home construction, and $1 out of every $2.93 loaned was to assist some family to buy a home either newly built or older.

"No other period of savings, building and loan history has seen such a variety in the types, size, value and location of the homes being financed," Mr. Rice states. "The increasing use of the variable interest rate plan, the attractions of the savings and loan mortgage for the moderate-priced home borrower as well as for the little home borrower, and the development of savings and loan institutions in hundreds of communities where there were no specialized home financing facilities five years ago, all contribute to the unprecendented breadth of savings and loan activity today."

The Market

Broad Advance Made in Light Trading; Motors, Steels, Coppers in Demand; Bonds Follow Stocks Upward

New York, Aug. 14.—Share prices went a little higher today on development of some selective buying. Gains were well distributed over the list with some of the higher priced issues advancing rather sharply on a few dealings. Manufacturing specialties, motors and steels were inclined to be buoyant and coppers made good progress. Speculative carrier shares, rail equipments and the oils were irregular.

Foreign exchange transactions were featured by strength in the guilder, attributed to repatriation of funds by banks fortifying themselves against possible demand resulting from the Mendelssohn & Co. suspension. The difficulties of this international banking firm also accounted for a sudden bulge in the demand for gold in London which lifted the price to a new high since February.

Commodities Dull

Commodity markets continued in the August doldrums. Wheat gained a cent in the early dealings but reacted on hedging. The close at Chicago, however, was fractionally higher. Cotton ended 4 points off to 2 up in an irregular, narrow market. Failure of commodities to pull up along with securities is receiving more and more comment from analysts and chartists. Today Moody's index of 15 leading staples equaled the 1939 low established April 22 of 138.6. The high for the year, on March 6, was 145.8. The 1938 high for this barometer was 152.9 on January 10 and the low 130.1 on June 1.

Chrysler Dividend

The best piece of business news of the day—the Chrysler earnings and dividend—came after the close, but was discounted in the motors division where Chrysler jumped 1¼ and General Motors firmed ¼ in active trading. The Chrysler profits for the half year and third quarter were about in line with expectations. Profit was between four and five times as large as for the first half of 1938 and deliveries were up more than 90 per cent compared with the depressed period a year ago. The company not only appears to have consolidated sales gains but to be increasing its proportion of automobile business. The strong cash position at mid-year reflected normal liquidation of inventories in line with seasonal sales and, apparently, satisfactory collections.

Quite a few stocks opened on fair sized transactions, including Steel common on 1,500 shares, Radio-Keith-Orpheum on 1,300, General Motors and National Power & Light on 1,000 each. Late in the first hour there was a flurry of activity in the low-priced Commonwealth & Southern issue, a block of 10,000 shares changing hands. The activity soon died down, however, and transactions for the balance of the day were only 4,000 shares additional. Loft again lead the list and Seaboard Air Line, second most active, started the day at 50 cents a share and ended with sales at 25 cents, a loss of 50 per cent of its indicated market value.

Oils Hesitant

Hesitancy in the oils could be traced to the confused price picture for crude. According to mid-continent advices producers are incensed over the 20-cent-a-barrel price cut posted by some companies. The Texas Railroad Commission, meanwhile, announced a 15-day shutdown. This, some observers thought, would force restoration of crude oil prices. Others, however, considered it would be logical for other States, including the nonprorated areas, to increase output of crude should any temporary shortage result from the Texas curtailment. There was general agreement that whether through fault of the industry, confusion over Government policy on oil or other reason, the petroleum business should be much more prosperous than it is in a year of record domestic consumption of oil products.

More optimistic opinions were heard today on the foreign outlook. One rumor was that Italy is seeking to have Germany delay any immediate Danzig move. The belief that further negotiation will precede occupation or attempted seizure of the Free City, however, appeared to be growing.

Rise in the steel operating rate to a new high for the year accounted for what interest developed in shares of the group.

Bonds Firm in Dull Trading

New York, Aug. 14.—Listed bond dealings again were at a low ebb today, but the tone was far better than in the closing sessions of last week. Trading totaled only $2,952,000, which is a low since 1918, save only for the July 3 period of this year. Small gains appeared in long-term United States Treasury bonds, and best corporate issues were steady. In the speculative group gains of fractions to 2 points were recorded, with medium priced rails in best demand. The foreign dollar groups was quiet and irregular.

Business in Treasury obligations was on a small scale, both in the formal and the counter markets. The good tone resulted in advances of 1-32 to 6-32 point in long bonds, while short-dated issues were neglected. Guaranteed bonds of the farm and home corporations were unchanged. Best-grade utility, railroad and industrial bonds were idle at former levels as investors preferred to await the sizable new loans due to be offered this week.

Medium-Priced Rails Gain

Medium-priced carrier bonds were picked up on the theory that business betterment may impend, making continued service the more likely. Advances were mostly small, but some issues showed gains of a point or more. Borderline and default rails were similarly firm. The holding company and convertible groups did well, owing to the better stock market. Local tractions were in demand, and communications issues moved ahead.

Latin-American default bonds reflected a little buying in the foreign section, which otherwise was dull. Italian and German issues tended to improve, but Japanese bonds remained under modest pressure. Best-grade foreigns of Scandinavian, Canadian and Australian origin were steady.

Georgia Tobacco Brings 11.2 Cents In Week's Sales

Atlanta, Aug. 14 (AP).—A total of 33,507,282 pounds of tobacco was sold on the Georgia bright leaf market last week for $3,779,938.76, an average of 11.20 cents a pound. This average was more than 2 cents under the previous week and more than 3 cents under the opening week.

Commissioner of Agriculture Columbus Roberts reported total sales for the season of 96,047,958 pounds for $12,623,409.88, at an average of 13.14 cents.

Roberts said that about half a dozen warehouses ended the sales season Friday and that most of the others in the 15 Georgia cities were planning to close this week. He said indications were that a record crop had been grown this year "as it is thought this week's sales will swell the total beyond the 103,305,159 sold in 1930, the record crop so far." In 1930 the crop sold for $10,767,000, an average of 9.86.

Westinghouse Bonus 8 Per Cent for August

Pittsburgh, Aug. 14 (AP).—The 43,000 employes of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co., will share an 8 per cent adjusted compensation, or "bonus," this month, the company announced today.

The "bonus" plan is based each month on the net earnings of the preceding three months, which were $3,548,186. Earnings for May were $1,198,740, for June $1,573,605 and for July $773,841. The adjusted compensation to all employes last month was 10 per cent.

Tennessee Power Companies Pass Today to TVA

New York, Aug 14 (AP).—More than 50 representatives of various Southern municipalities in the area of the Tennessee Valley Authority gathered here today in preparation for the transfer of $78,000,000 properties of the Tennessee Electric Power Co. to the TVA.

The ceremony of transfer will be held tomorrow morning when Wendell L. Willkie, president of the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, which controls T. E. P., will join the municipal representatives and representatives of Southern electric co-operatives in transferring the deeds for the properties to the TVA.

Among those who already have arrived are Judge W. C. Cherry, corporation counsel of Nashville, and State Senator James A. Newman, of Nashville, counsel for the power board. Others will represent Chattanooga, Athens, Columbia and Murfreesboro.

Retail Advertising 4.5% Above Year Ago

Chicago, Aug. 14—Volume of retail newspaper advertising during the week ended August 5 was 4.5 per cent above that for the corresponding week in 1938, Advertising Age reported today.

This figure is based on reports covering all daily newspapers in 79 major cities, in which 15,433,380 lines of retail display advertising were carried during the week, compared with 14,782,102 lines carried during the corresponding period of last year.

Wheat Prices Recede After Brisk Rise

Closings Are ¼ to ⅝ Of a Cent Higher Than Saturday's Last Prices

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 14.—Gains of a cent lifted wheat prices to around the best level in ten days during a moderately active session today.

Part of the advance was erased before the close, however. Prices fluctuated nervously most of the time, dipping about ⅜ cent in early dealings, then rising a full cent. Hedging of new wheat, through abnormally light, and mill purchasing together with some short covering comprised the bulk of the dealings.

Continued underlying support was derived from the prospect that a substantial portion of this season's crop will be held off the market temporarily as collateral for Government loans. However, uncertainty as to the extent of this holding as well as the effect of the export subsidy program tended to check market activity.

Wheat colsed ¼ to ⅝ cent higher than Saturday; September 65¼@65¼; December, 64⅞@65. Corn declined ⅛-⅜; September, 43⅜@43¼; December 42⅝@42½. Oats lost ⅛. Rye closed ¼ off to ⅛ up, and lard lost 8 to 10 cents.

Cotton Closings Are Irregular In Narrow Range

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—The cotton futures market calmed down a bit today to take stock of the latest news affecting the staple. Prices, never far from the previous close, were 2 points higher to 4 lower at the finish. Highlights of the day's trade were spot house buying in the distant positions and selling by Bombay interests.

Forecast for needed Texas rains attracted pressure early but later weather news indicated heavy unwanted precipitation in Alabama and professionals turned to the buying side. This, in turn, spurred further demand.

Selling by Bombay, brokers said, was based on the theory that recent western rains have dispelled any bullish effects of the August Government crop estimated, plus the belief considerable hedging can be expected over the next few weeks as the new crop moves to market.

Cottonseed Oil

The cottonseed oil futures market went into another tailspin today. Although closing prices were well above the day's lows, they were still down 13 to 16 points and at a new bottom for the season.

A week-end accumulation of selling orders hit the market following issuance Saturday of the July statistical report of the Government, which confirmed trade estimates of more than ample supplies on hand and in prospect for the coming season.

Sales totaled 343 lots: September, 5.20; October, 5.27 bid; December, 5.41; January, 5.47 bid; March, 5.58.

Hudson Reduces Motor Car Prices

Detroit, Aug. 14 (AP).—The Hudson Motorcar Co. announced price reductions today on its 1940 models. It said the Hudson Six coupe would be listed at $25 lower than last year's similar model and the four-door Hudson Six sedan at a reduction of $43.

A $38 cut on the Super-Six four-door sedan also was announced.

HOW A LOAN HELPS YOU
1. It pays bills, restores credit. Balances the budget. Reduces monthly payments.
2. It earns cash discounts. Buys better value at lower cost.
3. It does all this at a total cost to you of only a few cents a day. Better look into it.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

Loyal followers of the Culbertson system will find pleasure in testing their bidding in these questions taken from the "What-Do-You-Know?" quizzes prepared by the Culbertson National Studios. Others may enjoy comparing their ideas with the expert's.

There are five questions. Score 10 points for each correct answer. A perfect score would be 50 points.

1. The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 NT.	Pass

Is South's two no-trump bid: Forcing for one round; Forcing to game; Non-forcing; Bid hogging?

2. Your partner has opened the bidding with 2 no trump. You hold:

♠7 3 2 ♡8 5 ◇Q 7 5 4 2 ♣9 8 4

Do you: Bid 3 diamonds; Bid 3 no trump; Swear at your luck, pass?

3. The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 NT.	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♡

You, South, hold:
♠ Q J 8 6 4 ♡ 9 7 4 2 ◇ 8 5 3 ♣ 7

What is your next call: 3 spades, 4 hearts, Pass, three no trump?

4. In figuring the honor tricks scattered around the table, do you use: The rule of 4—5—6; The rule of 8; The rule of 2 and 3; The rule of 11; The rule of X plus 1; The rule of the thumb?

5. What name is given to the play of sacrificing an unsupported honor for the purpose of either killing an entry in the dummy or creating an entry in partner's hand: Bath coup, Deschapelles coup, Vienna coup, Whitehead coup, coup d'etat?

Answers to Questions

1. Non-forcing bid. 2. Three no-trump. 3. Four hearts. 4. The rule of 8. 5. Deschapelles coup.

The Federal Diary

By The Diarist

Quaint bits of information from the National Park Service can be plucked out of the latest clipsheet by vacationing Washingtonians who are going to emulate the person who mounted a horse and rode off in all directions.

The evolution of the wine bottle can be traced in a glass exhibit excavated from historic areas in the Colonial National Historical Park in Virginia, and displayed at Jamestown and Yorktown. Perfume vials, drinking goblets and even window panes are included.

Closer home, an historic relic has joined the exhibit at the Lincoln Museum in Washington. A portion of the dress said to have been worn by Mrs. Abraham Lincoln on the night when her husband was shot in Ford's Theater has been presented to the museum by Miss Caroline E. Parke of the District. The dress of black silk had a white flower design.

Quaint old-fashioned herb gardens, similar to those which served as "family medicine chests" for early settlers, can be seen at the George Washington Birthplace National Monument, Wakefield, Va., as well as at the two national historical parks administered by the National Park Service, Colonial, Va., and Morristown, N. J.

"The most famous autograph album in North America" shows six sages of American culture to travelers who go as far as Inscription Rock, El Morro National Monument in New Mexico. However, modern tourists are warned not to sign their names. The soft sandstone of the cliffs is scrawled with petroglyphs and pictographs left by the "Old People," followed by carvings and inscriptions made by the Spanish Conquistadores from about 1600 to 1772. American soldiers on the way to the Mexican War, a group of "Forty-Niners" and finally cattlemen and cowboys have autographed the "album."

The "social evolution" of walking sticks is being shown in a collection dating back more than a century, in the museum of Morristown National Historical Park in New Jersey. In fact the new clipsheet, "Facts and Artifacts," proves that the National Park Service—with cliffs and peaks under its wing—doesn't overlook little colorful items, either.

Who has been longest in the Federal service without a raise? The Treasury Organizing Committee, U. F. W. A., is offering a prize (a gold-plated pen) to the person who turns in the winning name before midnight, September 30. The contest is open to all Treasury employes in the District of Columbia, and a person may submit his own name or the name of another person.

The American Federation of Government Employes has written the President: "The A. F. G. E. would deeply appreciate it if you could see your way clear to issue an Executive order declaring Saturday, September 2, 1939, as a holiday in order that Government employes generally might find another opportunity for a week-end of rest and recreation."

The Woman Worker, Labor Department publication, touches on a universally interesting subject, as follows: "Women more quickly than men suffer a job handicap because of age, according to the findings of the committee on employment problems of older workers . . . . Employment opportunities begin to decline for women after they become 35, for men after 40. The committee concludes, however, workers are not through after 40. An examination of available material showed no evidence of a decline in earning power due to age alone. . . . Government service provides a larger share of employment for older workers than does private industry, the report shows. The committee proposes that age limits be abolished in recruiting for Government service.

Many From Here Will Attend Fair On District Day

From the skyline dominated by the Capitol dome and the Washington Monument, delegations will journey to see New York's scenic equivalent—the Trylon and Perisphere—on September 9 for "District of Columbia Day" at the World's Fair.

The "District of Columbia Special," leaving Union Station at 7 a. m. that day, will carry groups from civic, social and patriotic organizations. Thomas P. Morgan, jr., general chairman of the event, reports that the Junior Board of Commerce, the California State Society, Boy Scouts, District National Guard and Federation of Citizens' Associations are among the organizations planning to send delegations.

District Commissioners Melvin C. Hazen, George E. Allen and Col. David McCoach, jr., will head the group.

Alpha Chi Rho Club To Meet Tomorrow

A meeting of the Alpha Chi Rho Club, of Washington, will be held tomorrow night at the home of W. Ernest Offutt, 4540 Chesapeake street, northwest. Among those to attend are Guernsey T. Cross, president of the local organization; Lieut. Col. Thomas J. Frailey and George B. Supplee, jr.

Grows Avocadoes

Educators, Ministers Invited to Festival

The District Commissioners, Board of Education officers, public school officials and ministers will be honor guests at the festival concert to be given at the Sylvan Theater tonight by the Tempo Choral Society.

The concert, under the direction of Dr. W. Scott Mayo, will begin at 8 p. m., and will include the singing of spirituals.

ADRIANA

By George Dyer

A Story of Love and Intrigue in Vineyard Sound

Garret Marriner has inherited from his Uncle Nathan 48 per per cent of the stock of the Sea Reduction Corporation, which he deems worthless. But he falls in love with the yawl Adriana, to which he also fell heir. The boat is perfect and seaworthy, so he sets out from Plymouth for the south seas, or anywhere, although he knows next to nothing about sailing. Under full sail he runs through a dense fog, ties up at a private dock on an island and meets the owner, Mrs. Blake, and her daughter, also named Adriana, strangely enough. He also meets the two great Scottish deerhounds, which had first greeted him—the MacGlashan and Craigie of Rannoch. The Blakes invite him to supper and their home turns out to be a fascinating old place, called Powder House Farm because part of it had been a powder magazine during the Revolution.

GEORGE DYER

Chapter III

IT WAS CLEAR that her immaturity was the result of a sheltered life; she had probably never been allowed to do anything on her own; she had never been given a chance to feel confident that she could accomplish something worth while. I could understand all this because I had been that way in my 'teens; but now, at twenty-two, I had a better perspective on the problem.

Anyway I decided at last that Adriana II was promising material; and when I went downstairs I had more than half pledged myself to put my shoulder to the wheel and help shape this material into an acceptable grown-up.

Supper was very pleasant, with candles in tall sticks, and lots of silver and glass and good china, and delicious food. I learned a great deal about the island I was on. Both Mrs. Blake and her daughter were evidently very fond of it. I asked about Nantucket, which I knew lay somewhere in this neighborhood, and learned it was 'way out there in the ocean to the eastward of the Vineyard, an island far different from the little Eden I had landed on. Mrs. Blake, with twinkling eyes, gave me a picture of a flat treeless desolate sandbank, to which in winter, cut off from the world, clings a small wretched storm-beaten population, and in summer a slightly larger number of misguided visitors who would do far better (if they only knew it) on Martha's Vineyard. I thought Mrs. Blake gay and wonderful. The girl didn't talk much. She looked pretty satisfactory in the candlelight.

After supper we had coffee, and then I invited Adriana—and her mother—to go down with me to the boat and have a liqueur on board. (Uncle Nathan had even provided for after dinner guests.) Mrs. Blake declared that she was tired, and asked to be excused with such decision that I felt it safe to urge her. So I did, until everyone was satisfied that the right thing had been done. Then the girl found a flashlight, and slipped a polo coat over the dress she had put on for supper, and we went back to the boat alone.

I say alone, but in fact The MacGlashan of Rannoch came along. He and his brother had been grilling themselves before the big open fire in the living room, and he made it clear to his mistress that he was quitting the hearth with the greatest reluctance. He preceded us down the path to the beach, in a faint odor of scorched hair, every movement indicating that he was a slave to duty.

The fog was breaking apart. Stars were shining through in handfuls overhead. The girl raised her finger as if to test the wind, but she said nothing, and neither did I. I was wondering what she would say when she saw the name of my boat.

The stern was still pointing toward the shore, and as we stepped up on the first boards of the wharf I threw the beam of the flashlight square upon it. The girl glanced at the bright gold letters burning against the dark mahogany; you couldn't miss them: "Adriana Plymouth Mass." But what she said was:

"Heavens to Betsy, what a beautiful yawl! May I have the flashlight?"

A LITTLE surprised and even disappointed (since I repeat it isn't a common name), I gave it to her. We stood for a moment leaning on the rail of the wharf while she played the beam all over the deck, along the bundled sails, and up and down the masts. The light held motionless for an instant while she thought. Then she said:

"And this was left to you!"

The emphasis on the sentence was a trifle odd. I assumed she had meant to say: "And this was left to you." So I agreed that it had been, and invited her inside.

I reached out in the darkness to give her a hand, but she was leaning over taking off her slippers. She stuffed them in the pockets of her coat and said:

"I wouldn't think of going on a deck like that in leather soles—and high heels, too!"

"It's not slippery," I said, but she had tucked up her skirts and vaulted over the rail to the boat with a clean certainty that confirmed my guess she was sure footed. The MacGlashan of Rannoch went under the rail in one smooth leap.

"Oh, I'm sorry!" she exclaimed, "but his claws are quite short. Here, lad, below with you. Quick!"

The great beast dropped out of sight into the cabin as though he had been born on a boat, and the girl ran down after him. The way she negotiated the ladder amazed me; I was not yet altogether master of that contrivance myself.

The girl looked around quietly, but with what I read as delight.

"It is, it is beautiful!" she said, as though in wonder.

"My Uncle Nathan," I said, "was never one to grudge expense. You can see that from the finish, I guess. They told me at the shipyard that everything on board was absolutely top quality."

"Do you mind if I poke about?" she asked.

I said of course not, and got out a selection of liqueur bottles from the cupboard over the icebox, and two liqueur glasses from the rack over the sink, while she went forward into the other cabin. The curtain between was pushed back, and I could see the beam of the flashlight prying into the place where the anchors and the stainless steel cable and extra ropes were kept, then all about the room, and finally into the closets between the cabins. She made no comment, but when she came back her cheeks had turned from peaches to apples, her eyes were blue flame, and the corners of her mouth were curving in a smile. I decided, once and for all, that she was pretty.

"What will you have?" I asked.

"Yes," I said, and she nodded, and I poured her some. Then, in a casual fashion I handed her the glass with the two flags painted on it, and her own name below them.

"RATHER a coincidence, this boat having your name, isn't it?" I offered, when she seemed likely to say nothing, although she stared thoughtfully at the thin-stemmed glass.

"Isn't it?" she said, looking at me calmly. She took a sip, and her eyes swung once more appreciatively about the cabin. Fortunately I had done a pretty thorough job of housekeeping that morning before leaving Onset. At last she became aware of one sour note in the general harmony; The MacGlasham of Rannoch had gently laid himself upon the berth by the steps.

"Ah, the shame of it!" she cried to him. "Losh, the disgrace of it all! Who told you you could lie on that lovely blue cushion? What would your ancestor, who nipped the hocks of the English horses at Bannockburn, say if he could see you now?"

The relaxed animal made only two movements. He rolled his brown eyes toward his mistress to show the whites, and beat his long tail three times upon the berth. He was not ashamed.

"Let him stay there," I said. "He's tremendously decorative."

So the girl curled up on what fraction of the bunk he had left her, and took his broad shaggy head in her lap, and stroked it with her free hand as she sipped her cordial. I sat down on the opposite berth and drank a benedictine, and made up my mind that she was a beautiful kid. She had a way of looking at you, squarely and steadily with those bright eyes and that wide white forehead, which seemed rather alarmingly pentrating, until you realized that it was only the innocent interest that a child takes in everything new in the world.

It was clear to me that men, in general, were novel to her, and that she had lacked the advantages of much contact with them. She possessed great natural poise in every inch of her, but she had developed no "line" at all. Conversationally she was a total loss. So I did my best not to overawe her, but to put her at ease and draw her out.

To Be Continued.

Women Only Keep House, Lawyer Says; No Divorce Suits Filed

By the Associated Press

Lapeer, Mich., Aug. 14.—The domestic lives of George Davis and Clarence June, who traded wives and divided their children, rolled on today apparently unruffled by a court appearance to answer charges of lewd and lascivious cohabitation.

The four returned to their homes in the sand hills of western Lapeer County to continue living as they had for two months prior to today's appearance in court—Mrs. Edith June with George Davis and Mrs. Mildred Davis with Clarence June.

Kenneth Smith, their attorney, said he believed the case would "be thrown out of court."

"I'll admit that there have been no divorce proceedings filed," he said, "but we will be able to prove that there is nothing illegal about this wife trading. The women have been acting as housekeepers and there has been no cohabitation."

"We're happy this way," drawled June.

All stood mute when arraigned before Justice of the Peace Albert H. Perkins. Smith demanded an examination and the four were released for appearance August 23.

The trail that led them into court began two months ago when Davis and June disclosed that they had entered into an agreement under which June traded his wife, seven childre , and one of his 12 cows for Mrs. Davis and her four small daughters.

Mrs. June, 39, moved with her seven children and the cow to Davis' home. The 26-year-old Mrs. Davis and her four daughters went to live in June's nearby home, and as June had kept three of his older sons, the division of progeny was even.
